First-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference selections Greg Ellis, Kivuusama Mays and Freddie Jones, record-setting offensive standouts Octavus Barnes and Leon Johnson and game-breaking defenders Brian Simmons and Omar Brown are among the 16 returning starters and 34 returning lettermen who lead the 1996 edition of the North Carolina football team.

Carolina was 7-5 last year and defeated Arkansas, the Southeastern Conference Western Division champion, 20-10, in the Carquest Bowl. UNC posted a winning record for the sixth consecutive season, the first time since 1940 it has finished above .500 for six straight years. It was also Carolina's fourth straight postseason appearance and the third straight year in which it beat in-state rivals N.C. State, Wake Forest and Duke.

Head coach Mack Brown and his staff — which features five former college head coaches and two former high school head coaches — welcome back eight starters on each side of the ball. Offensively, they must replace record-setting quarterback Mike Thomas, flanker Marcus Wall and offensive tackle Russell Babb. Consensus first-team All-America defensive tackle Marcus Jones, three-year starting safety Sean Boyd and cornerback Fuzzy Lee are the three key losses on defense.

Jones was the Atlantic Coast Conference Defensive Player of the Year and earned first-team All-America honors from the Associated Press, Walter Camp Foundation, UPI and the American Football Coaches Association. He broke Lawrence Taylor's school record for career quarterback sacks, finishing with 24.

Thomas set single-season passing records last fall for most completions, attempts and yards. He completed 185 of 332 for 2,436 yards en route to establishing a UNC record for most yards of total offense in a season with 2,489.

Senior tailback Leon Johnson (Morganton, N.C.) is one of the premier multi-talented backs in the country and should be mentioned among preseason candidates for top national and conference awards. Johnson set a school record last year with 54 receptions and rushed for 963 yards and 12 touchdowns. He is tied for second place alltime in scoring in Carolina history with Charlie Justice with 234 points and needs just 21 points to pass Mike Voight as the top scorer alltime at UNC. Johnson is also second in receptions with 112, sixth in all-purpose yards with 3,996, seventh in rushing with 2,780 yards and 15th in total offense with 2,870 yards. Johnson rushed for 195 yards, a UNC postseason record, and was named the Most Valuable Player of the Carquest Bowl.

One area of concern for Brown and his staff is the status of Barnes, a junior wide receiver from Wilson, N.C., and sophomore quarterback Oscar Davenport (St. Petersburg, Fla.). Barnes suffered a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his right knee in the second half of the Carquest Bowl, and Davenport suffered a similar injury to his left knee at Clemson in the eighth game. Barnes has caught 85 passes for 1,579 yards in two years and was a second-team All-ACC selection last year. He has caught passes for 100 yards or more in a school-record six games in his first two seasons and has more catches for more yards than any two-year player in Carolina history. Davenport was the top reserve at quarterback last year until he injured his knee. He completed 12 of 22 passes for 151 yards and one TD.

In addition to Johnson and Barnes, two of the top game-breaking threats in the ACC, the Tar Heels have several players worthy of preseason all-conference mention. Senior tight end Freddie Jones (Landover, Md.) was a first-team All-ACC selection last year as he made 16 catches for 162 yards and two TDs; junior center Jeff Saturday (Tucker, Ga.) was honorable mention All-ACC after anchoring an offensive line which helped Carolina amass nearly 400 yards of offense per game; junior defensive end Greg Ellis (Wendell, N.C.), a first-team All-ACC pick last fall after he registered seven sacks, 11 QB pressures and batted away seven passes; Kivuusama Mays (Anniston, Ala.), a junior linebacker who also earned first-team all-conference accolades last fall after leading the Tar Heels in tackles with 138; junior linebacker Brian Simmons (New Bern, N.C.), one of the most athletic linebackers in the country; senior linebacker James Hamilton (Hamlet, N.C.), a two-year starter; and strong safety Omar Brown (York, Pa.).

Coach Brown points to the experience and talent at linebacker and running back as two of the strengths of this team. Junior Jonathan Linton (Catasauqua, Pa.) rushed for 102 yards at Maryland last fall and will share playing time at fullback with senior Chris Watson (Clayton, N.C.). Senior Maurice McGregor (Marietta, Ga.) and junior Mike Geter (Arlington, Va.) back up Johnson at tailback.

Brown also credits a veteran offensive line, with four returning starters, depth and talent along the defensive front four, and a pair of returning tight ends with Jones and Ebenezer Ekuban.

Four of the eight returning starters on offense are linemen, including Saturday, left tackle Byron Thomas (Oxford, N.C.), left guard Mike Hobgood (Durham, N.C.) and right guard Brian Honeycutt (Benson, N.C.). Johnson, fullback Chris Watson (Clayton, N.C.), Barnes and Jones also return.

Defensive starters returning include defensive tackle Rick Terry (Lexington, N.C.), defensive end Russell Davis (Fayetteville, N.C.), Ellis, Mays, Simmons, Hamilton, Brown and cornerback Terry

Carolina has posted six straight winning records, played in four consecutive bowl games and earned CFA Awards for outstanding graduation rates in seven of the last eight years.

Billups (Orlando, Fla.).

The Tar Heels have three new assistant coaches, including secondary coach Ron Case, who tutored defensive backs at LSU last year; offensive coordinator/quarterbacks coach Greg Davis, who coached the passing game at Georgia; and running backs coach Ken Mack, a former Tar Heel running back, who spent the last 14 years at Virginia. Cleve Bryant, who coached quarterbacks last year, will direct the receivers and coordinate the passing game in 1996.

Brown and Davis have installed an offense which will borrow from the playbooks of the two most dynamic and successful NFL franchises of the past two decades - the Dallas Cowboys and San Francisco 49ers. Multiple formations, men in motion, one-back sets with three and four receivers, two-back sets, and other wrinkles have been added to the game plan. All this to further energize an offense which has averaged 410.6 yards per game over the last four seasons.

BRIAN SIMMONS made 113 stops last year, including five sacks, and added two interceptions and eight pass break-ups.

"The biggest change is we would like to be more balanced on offense," says Brown. "We will be in the two-back system we have been in, still a tailback-oriented system, very much like the Dallas Cowboys and still be able to throw a lot of play-action pass, where we run the tailback and the fullback. The fullbacks and tight ends should catch more balls. On third downs there will probably be more four-wideout formations with one back, like the 49ers. I think this will be more exciting to play and watch, gives us more diversity, and adds the ability to change up formations."

"We still want to run the ball and be able to throw the ball deep," Brown continues. "If you don't run the football and be a tough, physical college football team you are not going to win. We still want to get deep with the play-action pass, but we will have less option than we have had in the past."

The biggest holes to fill on offense are at quarterback and wide receiver. Thomas accounted for 90.7 percent of all passing yards and 92 percent of all completions last year, and Wall caught 57 passes the last two years. With Barnes rehabilitating an injured knee and questionable for the start of the season, an entirely new passing game is possible when the Tar Heels tee it up against Clemson on August 31.

Chris Keldorf, a junior from Manhattan Beach, Calif., and Davenport go into preseason drills as co-starters at quarterback. Keldorf transferred from Palomar Junior College in San Marcos, Calif., enrolled in January and participated in spring practice, working mainly with the first unit. Davenport was not allowed to have contact in the spring, but did take part in passing drills.

"Oscar and Chris will compete for the job from day one," says Brown. "Keldorf had a really good spring, but we want to see him progress within the offense. We had great competition with Jason Stanicek and Mike Thomas a few years ago and this could work into a similar situation. Neither one of these guys are proven in Division I games as starters."

Senior Darrin Ashford (Richton, Ill.), sophomores L.C. Stevens (Clinton, N.C.), Na Brown (Reidsville, N.C.) and Chuckie Parquet (Marrero, La.) and red-shirt freshman Greg Harris (Mebane, N.C.) all will have an opportunity at wide receiver. Ashford and Stevens are the starters heading into camp, but each of these players, plus a healthy Barnes, will be called upon in the Tar Heels' spread attack.

Defensively the Tar Heels would like to further build upon the foundation set last year when eight new starters emerged. Half that number of starters have to be replaced this fall and the Tar Heels were the number-six rated defense in the country as they allowed only 267.3 yards per game.

"We would like to play an even more aggressive style of defense than we did last year," says Brown. "We were concerned that even as well as we played last year we still didn't force enough turnovers. We want to have more movement, more blitzing and be more aggressive than we were last year."

Any time you lose a player as talented as Marcus Jones, it is difficult to fully replace him. However, the Tar Heels have several players with some experience ready to step in and attempt to fill that void. Those players include Vonnie Holliday (Camden, S.C.), Marcus Dow (Thomasville, N.C.) and Andre Purvis (Jacksonville, N.C.). Other defensive linemen like Terry, Ellis, Davis and Mike Pringley (Linden, N.J.) must also raise their level of play.

The linebacker trio of Hamilton-Mays-Simmons could be as good as any group in the country. They are fast, athletic, intelligent, hard-hitting and experienced. The secondary, with the loss of Boyd and Lee and injury to Billups, is the one area on defense with the most questions. Many of those answers will come from new faces.

Omar Brown shifts from strong safety to free safety and has a chance to be one of the top players at that position in the ACC. Billups should start at one corner, if his shoulder, which was operated on in the winter, heals in time. If it doesn't the starters should be sophomore Robert Williams (Shelby, N.C.) and either junior Reggie Love (Durham, N.C.) or red-shirt freshman Dre' Bly (Chesapeake, Va.). Sophomore Jomo Legins (Winston-Salem, N.C.) will start at strong safety.

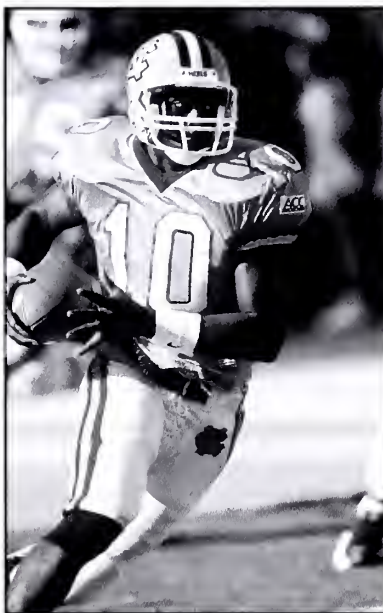

"I don't think you can compare the losses in the secondary to that of Marcus Jones, but because of our depth up front there is absolutely no doubt we have more concerns about our secondary," says Brown. "Hopefully our front seven will do a great job and provide enough pressure to let the secondary to grow up some. We are talented back there, but inexperienced."

In addition to concerns at wide receiver, quarterback and the secondary, Brown knows another set of questions surround the kicking game. Scott Caparelli handled almost all of the place-kicking duties and nearly 70 percent of the punting last year. This year there expects to be competition for place-kicking responsibilities between senior Chris Welch (Greensboro, N.C.), red-shirt freshman Josh McGee (Pearl, Miss.) and freshman Brian Schmitz (Park Ridge, Ill.). Red-shirt freshman Derrick DePriest (Homestead, Fla.), senior walk-on David Secrest (Shelby, N.C.) and Schmitz will handle the punting.

Welch has made one career field goal in three tries, a 48-yarder at N.C. State. He is the only member of the Tar Heels to have ever attempted a field goal or extra point in college.

"The kicking game is such an important part of field position and winning in college football," says Brown. "We must find some consistency in our special teams play to have a successful season."

OSCAR DAVENPORT is the only quarterback to have competed in a Division I game. He and Chris Keldorf enter preseason as the co-starters.

QUARTERBACK

Chris Keldorf and Oscar Davenport are co-starters heading into preseason camp. Keldorf worked with the first team in spring drills after transferring to UNC from Palomar Junior College in California. He completed 264 of 461 passes last year for 3,037 yards and 30 touchdowns.

"Chris has great footwork, a quick release and was very accurate as a passer in the spring," says Brown. "He showed us good work habits and a good feel of the offense. The junior college at which he played did a lot of things similar to how we do them. He showed a good grasp of the team and fit in very well."

Davenport was 12 of 22 for 151 yards and one touchdown in limited work off the bench last year. He tossed a 42-yard scoring dart to Barnes against Ohio. In week eight at Clemson, he suffered a torn anterior cruciate ligament in his left knee and was unable to play the rest of the season or in spring practice. He did run the offense some in non-contact drills and participated in many of the passing drills, however.

"Oscar really has a great amount of talent," says Brown. "He runs well, has a strong throwing arm and his height allows him to see receivers easily. I think he is as talented as any quarterback who has played for us at Carolina. He just needs to get some experience and find his niche with this team. He will be a good quarterback for us."

Red-shirt freshman Jason Peace (Durham, N.C.) is the third-string quarterback heading into the fall. The Tar Heels signed a pair of freshmen, Kevin Carty of Summerville, N.J., and Antwon Black of Central, S.C.

RUNNING BACKS

Leon Johnson is tied for 12th in ACC history in career scoring, 16th in all-purpose yards with 3,996 and 18th in career rushing yards with 2,780. He also is second in Carolina history with 112 career receptions, 43 behind the leader, Corey Holliday.

"Leon Johnson is one of the great backs ever to play here," says Brown. "He is so versatile; Leon can block, can run, makes the long run and catches the ball out of the backfield. The offensive changes will only help Leon. We will still get him the ball in a lot of different of ways. When the defense is crowding the line of scrimmage we can spread the offense, spread the defenders around field. That should give him more creases in which to run."

Maurice McGregor and Mike Geter back up Johnson at tailback. McGregor is a bruising back with thick, powerful legs. He has tailback speed in a fullback's frame. Geter rushed for 98 yards against Ohio last year and had his most productive spring in 1996.

Chris Watson started every game at fullback last year and should see extensive playing time there again this fall. Watson rushed for 131 yards and caught eight passes for 76 yards, an average of 9.5 yards per reception.

Jonathan Linton played tailback in 1995 but will likely share time at fullback this season. Linton was the second-leading rusher on the team last season with 350 yards and four touchdowns. At Maryland he gained 102 yards on just 14 carries and had scoring runs of 14 and 22 yards. Two weeks before the Carquest Bowl he suffered a broken bone in left elbow after he fell on the artificial turf in practice and was unable to play against Arkansas and in spring drills.

"Linton has a knack for the game and makes right decisions," says Brown. "He has tremendous hands and is a powerful runner."

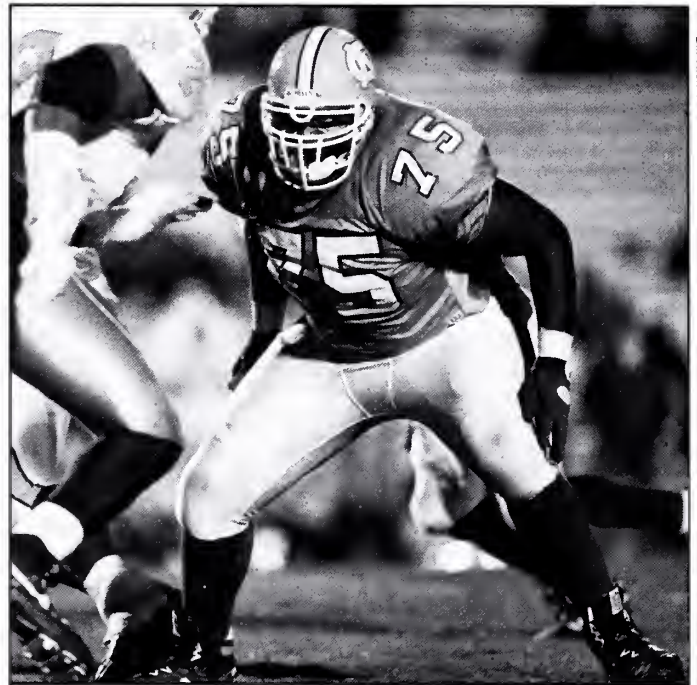

Sophomore walk-on Shawn Lyons (Garner, N.C.) and red-shirt freshman Allen Mogridge (Sevierville, Tenn.) provide depth at tailback and fullback, respectively. Mogridge could also see some action as a deep snapper. The Tar Heels also signed two freshmen backs, Deon Dyer of Chesapeake, Va., and Mike Simmons of New Bern, N.C.

OFFENSIVE LINE

Carolina returns six players who started at four different positions last year. Three of those six players, tackle Byron Thomas and guards Brian Honeycutt and Mike Hobgood have started in each of the last two seasons.

Center Jeff Saturday may be the most talented offensive lineman. He has become quite adept at making the calls at the line of scrimmage and is a stabilizing presence on the line. Saturday's strength, smarts and enthusiasm make him one of the top centers in the country.

Left tackle BYRON THOMAS is one of six different returning offensive linemen who have started games in the last two years.

Thomas has started at left tackle in all but one game over the past two years. He has really good footwork, especially for a 300-pound lineman on the corner, and had a productive spring. He could emerge as one of the top tackles in the ACC.

Honeycutt received the Morris Mason Award as the top offseason performer in the conditioning program and is another player who has made the most of his talents by hard work and enthusiasm. Honeycutt was outstanding in the Carquest Bowl as he helped open the holes through which Leon Johnson rushed for 195 yards. "Brian is very aggressive and continues to make progress to being a really good football player," says Brown. "He has a great attitude and helps our team play more physical football."

Mike Hobgood started three games last year, including the bowl game, and six games in 1994 at left and right guard. In preseason practice last year he suffered a badly torn tendon in his hand and was unable to play early in the regular season.

Jerness Gethers has made 15 starts the last two years at guard and should compete with Honeycutt and Hobgood for the starting duties at the guard positions.

Shawn Crouthamel (Steel City, Pa.) missed all of last year with a knee injury but returns at tackle along with John Surigao (Durham, N.C.) and Jeff Wortalik (Wayne, N.J.). Carolina red-shirted six offensive linemen last year, including Ryan Carfley (Ridgewood, N.J.), the top reserve at center, and Joe Ellison (Winston-Salem, N.C.), listed on the depth chart at left guard.

Other red-shirted players include guards Mike Gimbol (Doylestown, Pa.) and Jon Hall (Hagerstown, Md.) and tackles Kareem Ellis (Jacksonville, N.C.) and Robert Nixon (New Orleans, La.). Carolina signed two newcomers, freshmen Cam Holland (Franklin, N.C.) and James Wagstaff (Charlotte, N.C.).

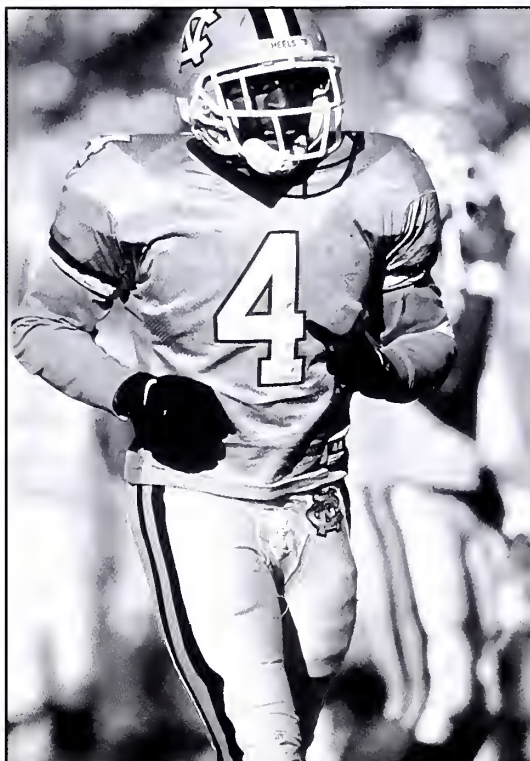

WIDE RECEIVERS

Octavus Barnes could become one of the top receivers in ACC history. After only two seasons Barnes has caught 85 passes for 1,579 yards and eight touchdowns. He is on pace to become the Tar Heels' alltime leading receiver and among the top five in ACC annals. Few players have made the impact in games like Barnes has. A year ago he set the single-season UNC record for receiving yards with 970 and caught 53 passes. That would also have been a record if not for Leon Johnson catching 54 last year.

Barnes is a big-play receiver, as evidenced by his spectacular six-catch, 165-yard effort at Duke in 1994; nine grabs for 165 yards against Texas in the 1994 Sun Bowl; game-winning, last-minute touchdown catch at Louisville last year; and four straight 100-yard receiving games in 1995.

His playing status for the first part of the season is in question after the knee injury which he suffered in the Carquest Bowl. "Octavus may be limited right off the bat, he may practice just once a day at first, and there is some question to as how he will be for the Clemson game," says Brown. "He is one of best receivers to ever play here and could be one of the best players in the country. We have to get him back on track. He has great speed, can jump up high to get the ball and has a knack for making the big play."

Darrin Ashford has 26 regular-season receptions, including the 40-yard grab in the end zone just before halftime in the 30-28 win at N.C. State last year. He also opened the scoring at the Carquest

OCTAVUS BARNES has 85 catches for 1,579 yards in only two years and is on pace to shatter many of the Tar Heels' alltime receiving records. (Craig Jones/All Sport)

Bowl with an 18-yard touchdown catch. He came on strong in the spring and stepped into a leadership role with Barnes on the mend. His contributions, with or without a healthy Barnes, will be vital this fall.

Three sophomores — L.C. Stevens, Na Brown and Chuckie Parquet — and red-shirt freshman Greg Harris all will have chance to see extensive playing time, especially as the Tar Heels spread their offense with three- and four-receiver sets. Stevens gained a great deal of confidence following his 87-yard touchdown catch-and-run against Arkansas. That play marked the second-longest passing play in school annals and the longest in UNC's postseason history. "Stevens has height, speed, is very physical and becoming a better blocker," Brown says. "We expect him to step up and be a great player."

Na Brown has exceptional hands and caught three passes as a true freshman. Parquet came to Carolina as a quarterback, switched to cornerback in the spring of 1995, moved back to quarterback after Davenport was injured, and shifted to receiver in the spring of 1996. He scored on a 25-yard option run against Duke while playing quarterback. "Parquet already has been a good player, is a very bright young man, and a good leader," Brown says. "He made a good adjustment in the spring."

"I am concerned about our limited depth at receiver," says Brown. "There is talent there, however. Ashford was much more aggressive in the spring and Stevens was outstanding. He gained confidence out of the Arkansas game. Parquet has to help us and we might try (Jason) Peace out there some. We have to sign skill players at wide receiver, tailback and conerback next year."

TIGHT ENDS

Freddie Jones earned first-team All-ACC honors last year, the second straight season a Tar Heel garnered that award (Greg DeLong in 1994). Jones caught just 16 passes for 182 yards, but was a key factor in Carolina's run-blocking schemes. "Jones is getting stronger, becoming a more aggressive blocker," says Brown. "He has always had good hands, he runs good routes and should be more involved this year in the passing game."

Sophomore Ebenezer Ekuban saw action on about 10 plays per game last year and caught one pass, a four-yard touchdown late in the third quarter in the win over Duke. Ekuban should see more action this year.

Toney Coles shifted from quarterback to tight end in the spring and is the leading candidate to handle long-snapping duties. Carolina also signed freshmen Alge Crumpler of Wilmington, N.C., and Dauntae' Finger of Newton, N.C.

DEFENSIVE LINE

There is without question more talented depth along the defensive line than any set of positions on the squad. Tackle Rick Terry is the one of the top professional prospects on the team, end Greg Ellis is hoping to repeat all-conference honors he won a year ago and several young players are on the verge of making immediate contributions.

Terry will start at one tackle slot. Last year he led the team with eight quarterback sacks and had 12 tackles for losses and 11 pressures. He isn't a very flashy player, yet he consistently makes plays. Without Marcus Jones alongside to take on the double teams, Terry will have to be even more productive. Sophomore Marcus Dow and junior Nate Hobgood-Chittick (Allentown, Pa.) back up Terry.

Andre Purvis and Vonnice Holliday should share playing time at the other tackle. Purvis is in the best shape of his life and could become a dominant player if he can stay on the field for an extended period of time. Holliday played as a true freshman in 1994 and continues to make progress toward being a very good player.

Holliday made 39 tackles and caused two fumbles a year ago.

Red-shirt freshmen Bryan Jones (Valparaiso, Fla.) and Chris Mintz (Tryon, N.C.) both shifted to tackle, from offensive line and tight end, respectively, and have a chance to play in the future.

The Tar Heels have a bright, young corp of defensive ends which may be as talented as any group in the ACC. Ellis is a major problem for offensive linemen to handle because of his size, strength and quickness. When he doesn't get to the quarterback, he gets his hands up in the air and knocks balls down at the line of scrimmage. This is the year the coaches expect him to become an ever greater presence in the ACC. He was the sixth-leading tackler on the team a year ago with 71 hits and had seven of the team's 15 pass deflections.

"Greg Ellis could develop into one of those great defensive ends," says Brown. "He has the height (6-6) to disrupt the passing game, the strength (250) to move people around and he intimidates the quarterback by pushing upfield and batting down passes."

Sophomores Russell Davis and Mike Pringley share first-string honors at the other defensive end position. Davis was the Tar Heels' Freshman of the Year in 1995 after making 46 tackles, including three sacks, and forcing three fumbles. He played his best football in the wins over N.C. State and Arkansas. Pringley made 41 tackles, pressured the quarterback 10 times and had four quarterback sacks.

"If they continue to progress like last year they must be considered one of the best groups in the country. Kivuusama Mays has been very physical up inside, Brian Simmons and James Hamilton are both physical and have great speed. They allow us to blitz from the corner and they are still fast enough to cover people man-to-man out of the backfield."

"Russell and Mike both need to step up their games," says Brown. "Davis has great ability; he can run, is quick, makes good decisions, is a tremendous pass rusher and forces turnovers. Pringley is such a smart player and he will play much stronger this year."

Teto Simpson (Greenville, N.C.) played as a true freshman last year and is the top backup behind Ellis. Red-shirt freshmen Ricco McCain (Charlotte, N.C.) and Joey Walters (Hollywood, Fla.) also may see some action. The Tar Heels also inked five incoming freshmen linemen, including Chris Allnutt (Laytonsville, Md.), Varian Ballard (Gates, N.C.), Damon Dawson (College Park, Ga.), Stephon McQueen (Raleigh, N.C.) and Joey Walden (Siler City, N.C.).

KIVUUSAMA MAYS led the Tar Heels last year with 138 tackles and was named first-team All-ACC.

LINEBACKERS

This is probably the strongest set of positions on the field for Carolina in 1996, especially considering that James Hamilton, Kivuusama Mays and Brian Simmons form one of the top linebacking trios in the nation. The Sporting News even rates Carolina's trio the top group in the country and Simmons the third-best outside linebacker in the nation.

"If they continue to progress like last year they must be considered one of the best groups in the country," says Brown. "They can all run. Mays has been very physical up inside, Simmons and Hamilton are both physical and have great speed. They allow us to blitz from the corner and they are still fast enough to cover people man-to-man out of the backfield. I definitely think linebacking is the strength of our team defensively at the start of the season."

Mays led the team with 138 tackles, including a season-high 24 at Clemson. He was named first-team All-ACC and honorable mention All-America by UPI. "Mays is tough inside," says Brown. "He plays like a nose guard in the old 50 defense, but he can still drop back and play pass. He makes plays sideline to sideline."

Simmons may be the most talented player on either side of the ball. Last year he did not get any postseason accolades from the media, but he was named the Tar Heels' Most Outstanding Linebacker. "Brian Simmons can be one of best players to ever play linebacker here," says Brown. "His ability to run and think makes him such a great player. He is bright, fast, strong and makes plays."

Hamilton is the unsung star of this group. A two-year starter,

1996 PREVIEW

Defensive end GREG ELLIS is one of four returning Carolina players who earned All-ACC honors in 1995. The Sporting News ranks him the #6 DE in college football.

Hamilton made 73 tackles a year ago, recovered two fumbles and broke up two passes. He has a long arms and makes it difficult for quarterbacks to throw over his extended reach. He had his finest academic semester in the spring, which coincided with a good spring practice in which he developed his leadership role.

Sophomores Keith Newman (Tampa, Fla.), Jamie Carrick (Albemarle, N.C.), Mark Dunn (Waldorf, Md.) and Shane Pierson (Kingsport, Tenn.) and red-shirt freshman Shawn Woodard (Wilson, N.C.) all should get a chance to play in reserve roles. The Tar Heels also signed three incoming freshmen linebackers, including Tim Burgess of Cary, N.C., Ricky Smith of Thomasville, N.C., and Brandon Spoon of Burlington, N.C.

SECONDARY

Defensively there is no place on the field which is undergoing more change than the secondary. Ron Case came in from LSU to coach the defensive backs and he would like to employ an aggressive, man-to-man cover scheme. Omar Brown and Terry Billups started last year and return, but Billups may not be ready for the first game due to a shoulder repair and Brown is moving from strong safety to free safety. At least two of the starters will be new faces.

Brown is one of the top safeties in the league. He broke up two passes late in the game against Virginia which allowed the Tar Heels to hang on to their five-point margin of victory. He made 66 tackles last fall and broke up four passes.

Billups is a talented cover cornerback with experience. He started every game last year and saw extensive playing time in 1994. With so many newcomers in the secondary, it is imperative he be ready to play early in the season.

Robert Williams started playing midway through the 1995 season and should be ready to step in and start at the other corner. Reggie Love has been on the field a lot in his first two seasons and he and red-shirt freshman Dre' Bly will compete for the other cornerback position.

Sophomore Jomo Legins had an impressive spring and should start at strong safety. Greg Williams, a junior from Bolingbrook, Ill., shifted from wide receiver to strong safety in the spring and could challenge for the starting role. Ronald Thomas, a senior from Paterson, N.J., is the top backup at free safety.

Sophomores Steve Fisher (New Bern, N.C.) and Darien Johnson (Houston, Texas) and freshman Quinton Savage (Denver, Colo.) round out the secondary.

1996 PREVIEW

- The University of North Carolina enters the 1996 football season having posted six consecutive winning records. Over that time period (1990-95) Carolina has a record of 47-23-1. The Tar Heels are the 18th winningest college football program in the 1990s.

- Carolina last had at least six straight winning seasons over 50 years ago. The Tar Heels had seven consecutive winning records from 1934-40. The UNC record is nine seasons in a row, accomplished from 1897-1905.

- The Tar Heels have played in four consecutive postseason games, including the 1993 Peach Bowl (following the 1992 season), the 1993 Gator Bowl, the 1994 Sun Bowl and the 1995 Carquest Bowl. Carolina played in a school-record five straight bowl games from 1979-1983.

- Each of Carolina's first four games this year are being televised. That includes three games on ABC-TV and one on ESPN 2. The August 31 game vs. Clemson, the Sept. 21 game vs. Georgia Tech and the Sept. 28 game at Florida State are all on ABC at 3:30 p.m. The game at Syracuse on Sept. 7 is scheduled for a 6:04 p.m. kickoff on ESPN 2.

Last year the Tar Heels played 10 times on television.

- The August 31 season-opener against Clemson is the second-earliest starting date in Carolina football history. The Tar Heels defeated Southern California, 31-9, on August 29, 1993, in the Disneyland Pigskin Classic in Anaheim, Calif. This is the first time the Tar Heels will open the season with a home conference game since 1968 and the first time they will open with an ACC game anywhere since 1992 when they opened at Wake Forest.

- Carolina will play five games at Kenan Stadium this year. This will be the first season with just five home contests since 1987 and just the fourth time in the last 26 years the Tar Heels will have only five home dates.

- Senior tailback Leon Johnson has a chance to establish several school records, including most points scored, most all-purpose yards and most receptions.

Johnson has rushed 555 times for 2,780 yards, the seventh-highest figure in school history. He needs 1,611 yards to tie Amos Lawrence's school record, but only 488 yards to move into third place ahead of Kelvin Bryant (3,267), Don McCauley (3,172), Ethan Horton (3,074) and Natrone Means (3,074).

Mike Voight holds the UNC scoring record with 254 points, 20 ahead of Johnson and Charlie Justice. The Atlantic Coast Conference scoring record is 312 points by Ted Brown of N.C. State (1975-78). Johnson has averaged 78 points per season at Carolina, exactly the number he needs to tie Brown's ACC record.

Johnson also has 112 career receptions, second alltime at UNC and the highest figure ever by a Tar Heel running back. Only Corey Holliday, who caught two passes for the Pittsburgh Steelers in Super Bowl XXX, who has 155 career receptions, has more catches than Johnson.

McCauley holds the school record with 5,014 all-purpose yards. Johnson is sixth at UNC with 3,996 yards. He has averaged 1,332 all-purpose yards per season and needs just 1,019 yards to move past McCauley.

- Junior split end Octavus Barnes already holds UNC records for single-season receiving yards (970 in 1995), 100-yard games in a season (four in 1995), career 100-yard receiving games (six in 1994-95) and career average yards per catch (18.6).

Barnes has 85 catches for 1,579 yards in his first two seasons as a Tar Heel. He is ninth alltime at UNC in receptions and second among active players behind Leon Johnson, who has 112.

Last season the Wilson, N.C., native snared 53 passes, one more than previous Carolina record-holders Art Weiner and Charlie Carr amassed in 1949 and 1966, respectively. Johnson set the new record, however, with 54 catches in 1995. Barnes and Johnson did set the record for most receptions by two players in one season.

- Carolina has five returning players who have earned first- or second-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference honors.

Defensive end Greg Ellis, middle linebacker Kivuusama Mays and tight end Freddie Jones were named to first-team All-ACC in 1995. Tailback Leon Johnson was named to the second team in 1993 and 1994 and Octavus Barnes was a second-team selection last fall.

- Carolina's most recent two starting quarterbacks – Jason Stanicek and Mike Thomas – set school records in numerous categories. Stanicek established marks for most career total offense yards, most career passing yards, most completions and most wins by a starting quarterback; Thomas set new standards for most passing yards in a season, most completions in a season, most total offense yards in a season and tied the mark for postseason wins.

Oscar Davenport, a red-shirt sophomore from St. Petersburg, Fla., and Chris Keldorf, a junior college transfer from Manhattan Beach, Calif., are co-starters heading into preseason practice. Davenport was 12 for 22 for 151 yards in limited action in 1995.

This will be the first season since 1984 in which the Tar Heels opened the season without a quarterback on the roster who has completed at least 20 collegiate passes.

- Head coach Mack Brown reorganized his staff following the 1995 season. Greg Davis is the new offensive coordinator and quarterbacks coach. Davis coached the past two seasons at the University of Georgia. Ron Case is coaching the defensive secondary, the same position he coached last fall at LSU. Ken Mack is in charge of the running backs, a position he coached at Virginia the past 13 years.

Kenan Expansion Taking Shape

Kenan Memorial Stadium, originally constructed in 1927, is undergoing another round of renovations which should bring the level of facilities for UNC football up to par with the sheer beauty and aesthetic value the stadium already maintains. The Frank H. Kenan Football Center will be constructed behind the west end zone (Bell Tower end of the stadium) and will be home to the Tar Heel football offices, locker room, weight room, training room and various meeting and conference rooms.

The project is the latest in a series of upgrades which are preparing Kenan Stadium and Carolina football to compete at the highest levels of excellence well into the next century.

The project is the latest in a series of upgrades which are preparing Kenan Stadium and Carolina football to compete at the highest levels of excellence well into the next century.

Field renovations were made in 1995 and stadium restroom and concession areas were upgraded this past offseason. Current construction schedules project the end zone seating, the North Side Preferred Seating Box and lower level of the Frank H. Kenan Football Center to be ready for the start of the 1997 season.

For more information and architect renderings of the expansion, please refer to pages 258-259 of this brochure.

One of the most experienced players on the football team...Has started 17 games over the last two years at outside linebacker...Very likely the most underrated player on the team...Hasn't gotten as much attention as some of the other Tar Heel linebackers, but he has been an invaluable contributor on the field...The most improved linebacker from late last season through spring practice...Has become much more confident in his own ability...Becoming more of a physical player...Just now starting to mature physically...Is very tall, plays with good leverage and has good speed and quickness...Coaches can move him up to the line and play as a down lineman...Can also play any of the linebacker positions...Must avoid the injury bug which has plagued him in his collegiate career.

1995—Started 10 games at outside linebacker and finished the year as the fifth-leading tackler on the team...Made 45 primary stops and assisted on 28 more for 73 total tackles...Had three tackles for losses and one quarterback sack for 10 yards...That sack came in the first game of the year vs. Syracuse...Recovered two fumbles...Made a career-high 13 tackles at Clemson...Made 11 tackles the next week against Florida State...Averaged 10 hits per game over the last four games of the season...Made eight primary tackles against Clemson and FSU and seven at N.C. State...Missed spring practice after offseason shoulder surgery but started 10 of 11 regular-season games and the Carquest Bowl...Did not play in the win over Wake Forest because of a sprained back...Averaged 54.0 plays per game in the regular season...Saw action on 60 snaps in the Carquest Bowl...Recorded six tackles, a tackle for loss and a pass break up in the bowl-game win over Arkansas.

1994—Started seven games at the rover linebacker position and split time with Eddie Mason, a sixth-round pick in the NFL Draft...Sixth on the team with 59 tackles...Registered 36 primary tackles and assisted on 23 more...Made three tackles for losses for

13 yards and had one quarterback sack...Made a career-high 11 tackles at Virginia...Also had nine primary stops against Georgia Tech, nine total hits against Clemson, eight total tackles against Maryland and six primary stops against TCU...Graded out his best performance against Clemson...Also had a solid game at Florida State as he made six tackles, including an eight-yard sack and his only career interception...The interception of a Danny Kanell pass in the first quarter set up Carolina's first touchdown of the game which tied the score at 7-7...The sack came midway through the fourth quarter with UNC fighting to get back into the game and led to a Florida State punt...Saw limited action (just 25 plays) over the last two games due to a shoulder subluxation, an injury he suffered against Clemson...Made two hits against Texas in the Sun

Bowl...Also turned in a spectacular play when he dove to break up a potential Texas scoring pass in the second quarter.

1993—Played in all but two regular-season games and made 30 tackles...Had 11 primary hits and 19 assists...Had a season-high six hits against Ohio University and four against both Georgia Tech and Clemson...Did not play at N.C. State or vs. UTEP due to a leg injury...Had a three-yard quarterback sack at Georgia Tech...Played behind second-team All-ACC linebacker Bernardo Harris...Was red-shirted in 1992.

High School—Caught five passes for 130 yards and four touchdowns as a senior at Richmond County High...Also was in on 85 tackles...Named to the Greensboro News & Record all-state team as a defensive lineman...Named to the Shrine Bowl...A three-year starter for the Raiders who played on state championship teams as a sophomore and junior...Two-time all-conference choice who was conference defensive player of the year as a senior...Coached by Hal Shuler...Also lettered in basketball and track...Personal—Born James Samuel Hamilton on April 17, 1974...Majoring in sociology.

than 100 yards on three occasions, all of which were UNC wins...Had a season-high and UNC-best 140 yards against Duke, 133 yards against N.C. State and 110 yards against Georgia Tech...Suffered a hip-pointer early in the season, an injury which hampered him for most of the first half of the season...Had just 184 yards over the first four games, an average of 46 yards per game...Compiled 621 yards over the final seven games, an average of 88.7 yards per game...Each of the last seven games was an ACC contest.

Was the team's third-leading scorer with 60 points...Had seven rushing scores, two touchdown receptions and one punt return for a score...Was third on the team in receptions with 29 for 266 yards, an average of 9.2 yards per catch...The 29 receptions tied his own record for UNC receptions by a running back...Also led the team in punt return yards and average per return...Returned 13 punts for 199 yards, an average of 15.3 yards per return...Returned the first punt of the game against SMU 88 yards for a touchdown...It was the second-longest return in school history and the longest since Johnny Branch's 96-yarder against Maryland in 1930.

Finished second in the ACC in all-purpose yards with 1,359, an average of 123.6 yards per game...That placed him 37th in the country...Also was 11th in the ACC in scoring...was selected the Tar Heels' Offensive Player of the Week a team-high three times...Earned that award for his efforts against Georgia Tech (co-recipient with Curtis Johnson), Virginia and N.C. State...Was the ACC Offensive Back of the Week against Georgia Tech.

Played his best game in the 31-17 win over N.C. State as he rushed for 133 yards and one touchdown and caught five passes for 46 yards, including two scores...It was the third time in his career he had scored at least three times in one game...Opened the scoring with a three-yard run late in the first quarter, upped the lead to 14-0 with a 21-yard screen pass which he took in for a score and then made it 21-3 late in the second quarter on another screen pass, this time from 11 yards...Had 201 yards of all-purpose running in the N.C. State game...Rushed 22 times for 110 yards in the win over the Yellow Jackets...Scored two rushing touchdowns in that game, a pair of one-yard runs in the second half...The second one was the game-winner with 2:27 to play...Gained the last 22 yards on four plays on the winning drive...Had 90 yards on 13 carries (6.9 per carry) against Maryland...Caught a career-high six passes for 83 yards at Virginia...Rushed 23 times for 140 yards and added four receptions for 26 yards at Duke...Carried 20 times for 131 yards in the second half of that win over the Blue Devils...Rushed 15 times for 70 yards and caught three passes for 13 yards against Texas in the Sun Bowl.

1993—Selected the Tar Heels' Most Outstanding Freshman Player...Responsible for one of the most outstanding freshman seasons in Atlantic Coast Conference history...A runaway winner as the ACC's Rookie of the Year and a second-team All-ACC selection at running back...First-team Freshman All-America as named by Football News...Became just the second Tar Heel and fourth ACC player to rush for 1,000 yards in his freshman season...Led the conference in scoring with 100 points, the 10th-highest single-season total in league history...The 100 points broke the previous record for ACC freshman by 16 points...Set a Carolina record for receptions by a running back...Scored 16 touchdowns, 14 by rush and two by pass receptions and added a pair of two-point conversion runs...Had five 100-yard rushing games...Previously only Amos Lawrence and Charlie Justice had five 100-yard games in their freshman seasons at UNC...Set an ACC freshman record with 26 points in one game (Duke)...Twice tied the ACC freshman record of four touchdowns in one game...Combined with Curtis Johnson to score 28 touchdowns, the most by any two players in Carolina history.

Rushed the ball 179 times for 1,012 yards, the 23rd 1,000-yard season in Carolina history, an NCAA record...Averaged 5.7 yards per carry and 84.3 yards per game...Only one other player in the ACC, Wake Forest's John Leach, had more carries...Had the fourth-fewest carries among UNC's 23 1,000-yard campaigns...Lawrence, in 1977, was the only other Tar Heel freshman to rush for 1,000 yards...The other two ACC players were Wake Forest's James McDougald in 1976 and N.C. State's Joe McIntosh in 1981...Reached the 1,000-yard mark on a four-yard carry in the fourth quarter of the Tar Heels' win over Duke.

Was only the third Tar Heel to be named ACC Rookie of the Year and the first in 15 years...Lawrence was the recipient in 1977 and linebacker Darrell Nicholson won the award in 1978.

His 16 touchdowns were the most by a Tar Heel since Kelvin Bryant had 18 in 1981...The 100 points were the fourth-most in school history behind Don McCauley (126 in 1970), Mike Voight (110 in 1976) and Bryant (108 in 1981)...Scored an ACC freshman-record 26 points vs. Duke on four TDs and one two-point run...Earlier in the year vs. UTEP he tied the ACC mark with 24 points on four TDs...That tied Ted Brown of N.C. State, who had 24 points vs. Clemson in 1975...Scored 50 points in those two games — only 12 players in the ACC had as many points the entire season...Had at least one touchdown in eight different games.

Did you ever think that you would be so successful so early in your career?

Octavus Barnes: "I never thought that. I think that comes from a lot of hard work and perseverance. I've had a lot of people give me a lot of support, telling me I could do it. That just makes it that much easier because you have those people supporting you and pushing you along the way."

Who are some of the people that have given you that support?

OB: "I think my family, first and foremost. They're at every game giving me support, cheering me on, and calling me when I'm down. I also get a lot of support from my coaching staff and my friends."

You undoubtedly have all of the physical tools that it takes to be a solid receiver. What else does it take to be such a good one at such a young age?

OB: "Mentally, you've got to go out there and think that no one can stop you but yourself. If you feel like you're the best player on the field then you're going to play that way. You're going to go out there and be dominant in every aspect of the game. I just try to be confident because I know what I'm doing. It's just a matter of me going out there and doing it."

Some of your biggest catches have come in the fourth quarter of some close ballgames. Do you get more confident as the game goes on?

OB: "I think you do because as the game goes along, you've already had three quarters to look at your opponent. You've seen them on film all week, and you just start to get a sense of how he's going to play you. Then you're going to know what it takes to beat him."

You had a game-winning catch last year at Louisville. Do you like being a guy the team looks to in situations where the game is on the line?

OB: "I love it. I'm going to be the last one to receive the ball in any way, shape or form. If the guys put that much on top of me, I know they're going to work hard to block, to give the quarterback enough time to get the ball off and it's just up to me to make the easy catch. I feel like that if they're working that hard to get me open, then I owe them something by catching the ball or trying to do something just to win the game."

Would you call the catch at Louisville the biggest catch of your career, or is there another one that maybe stands out a little more?

OB: "I think the one at the end of the (1994) Duke game may have been the biggest catch. It was the Duke game, it was a big rivalry, it was a conference game and it had a lot of bowl implications. I had dropped a punt earlier in the game. Marcus Wall ran a kickoff back. I threw a pass. I caught two touchdowns. So many different variables were going on in that game, and the game was going back and forth, you really didn't know who was going to win the game."

Is there a point where you just feel as if you can catch anything that is thrown your way?

OB: "I think so because your adrenaline is going so much and your confidence is building up in you so much that anytime a ball comes in your area, you're going to work your hardest to try to catch it. You probably run a play 500 times from time to time in practice. So it's like clockwork once you get out there."

What is your mindset when you get a defender one-on-one?

OB: "My mindset is to try to get off the ball and avoid contact. If I can avoid contact I know anything can happen. I know it's one-on-one, me and him, and he may get me three times, but it may be just that one or two times that I beat him that may decide the game."

Do you consider yourself a game-breaker?

OB: "I don't consider myself a game-breaker. I think a lot of guys misjudge my speed. I have long legs and I'm slim, so I think they think I'm slower than I really am. My speed is deceptive because I have such long legs and I can cover a large area with maybe three or four steps."

This year's team has a lot of young talent at wide receiver. With the graduation of Marcus Wall, are you taking it upon yourself to be more of a leader with this year's receivers?

OB: "I think leadership came out a lot this spring. Darrin Ashford showed a lot of great leadership skills and by me not being there, those guys had to bring it upon themselves to be their own leaders and force themselves to do the things that they need to do. I'm going to try to take on that role, but I think it has to be internal. You have to want to do it, you have to learn how to do it and do it right. I'm going to try to instill in them to be their own leaders and not look to anyone else for leadership."

You missed spring drills due to a knee injury you suffered in last year's Carquest Bowl. What have you learned from the injury?

OB: "My total aspect and feeling on life has changed. Before I thought I was invincible. Before I thought I could run out there and do anything that I wanted. Now that I've had an injury, I've had a setback. It really made me see things that I took for granted as far as being in the weight room, just simply running, just being out there practicing when you really do want to but can't. Those things I learned I took for granted, I want to do them so badly now. It made me want to work that much harder to get back. Now I have a whole new appreciation for the game and for the God-given talent that I have."

Coach Brown has said that this year's offense will be more explosive and wide open than before. Is it exciting knowing that the opportunity is there for maybe more catches than you've had in either your freshman or sophomore year?

OB: "Very exciting. If you're a receiver, you want the offense to be wide open and throw the ball a lot. That's what I want because I feel like I have the God-given talent to go out there and use the offense to take my team to the next level. I feel like we have the skills, the coaching staff and players around me where we can do that."

What are the team goals for 1996?

OB: "Every year we have goals of winning the national championship. Until the season starts, everybody is 0-0 and anybody can win the national championship. And anytime people take you for granted and don't expect you to do that well, that's when you can surprise them. We're just going to go out, hopefully win the ACC, beat the rival teams that we want to beat and just try to work toward winning a national championship."

What would it mean to be able to break some of the records you are close to and be considered one of the greatest receivers Carolina has ever had?

OB: "I feel like records are meant to be broken. When I first came here Corey Holliday had set all the records. I really don't plan personal goals for myself. The goals that come, they come. I just take it that way and go out and compete everyday and try to catch everything that comes in my direction. Anything that will help my team win a game, that's what I'm going to do."

What are some things that you haven't accomplished in your career that you would like to do before you graduate?

OB: "We have one bowl victory, but I really don't feel a part of it because I got hurt in that game. I would like to win a bowl, play the whole game and be there making catches at the end. I would like to win a national championship and an ACC championship and continue to represent my school in a nice way."

How would you like to be remembered when your college career is over?

OB: "I'd like to be remembered as a player who would lay his body on the line in any way to help his team win the game, and also one who gave it his all when he was on the field. I'd also like to be remembered as a nice person who just really liked to play football."

Last year you made all-conference on the defensive line as a sophomore. What are you going to do for an encore?

Greg Ellis: "I'd certainly like to make all-conference again, but I'd also like to make one of the All-America teams."

With Marcus Jones in the NFL now, you're going to get a lot more attention from other teams. How are you going to deal with that?

GE: "I think the best way to deal with it is to start dealing with it now. I've worked out a lot harder in the weight room, trying to get stronger. It's a given that since Marcus is gone I'm going to get a lot of attention, and I'll just have to deal with it and try not to get frustrated."

You're a quiet individual playing a very violent game. What do you do to get yourself pumped up before games?

GE: "I just try to get relaxed. I tried to do all that 'psyching up' stuff like a lot of other guys do — hitting lockers and stuff like that — but that doesn't work for me. I just sit down and get off by myself for a while a couple of minutes before the game. I just try to keep a clear head, and I usually play better when I do that."

You've played on the JV Basketball team while you've been at Carolina. How has that helped you with your football?

GE: "I enjoy it a lot. Many players on the pro level play a lot of basketball, which a lot of people don't realize. I think coaches want us to play basketball, but not so seriously that it takes us away from football. All that stopping and starting in basketball helps you in football. It helps you to be able to change directions and come off the ball faster. So in that aspect, I think it's helped me a lot."

What's the feeling like when you're able to get through the line, get to a quarterback and bring him down. Is it equivalent to a home run in baseball or a dunk in basketball?

GE: "I've got a scale I put them on. I think sacking a quarterback and hitting a home run are kind of on the same scale. A dunk is an excellent thing to do, but it doesn't stand out like sacking a quarterback or hitting a home run does. When you hit a home run, everybody knows you did it so you're the highlight. When you sack a quarterback everybody knows that you did it. You're the one guy out of the four or five defensive linemen that made it through to get to the quarterback. It just makes you feel good knowing that everyone is looking at you and that you helped the team out by getting there."

Can you tell during the course of a game when you're getting the best of an offensive lineman that's trying to block you?

GE: "Yes, and I love it when I get that feeling. If you see you're a lot stronger than him and know you're getting the best of him, all you've got to do is go over and tell your coach what kind of defense you should run. It helps you out as a player, and it also helps the whole team out."

How much will this year's defensive line miss Marcus Jones' presence?

GE: "At first everybody thought, 'Man, we're going to miss Marcus. Nobody can take his place.' But Rick Terry, Andre Purvis, Vonnie Holliday and Marcus Dow have stepped it up at the defensive tackle slot, and we've got all the defensive ends returning. Marcus took a lot when he left, but it's also going to a lot of other guys who have been shadowed by Marcus the chance to step up and play."

Even with Marcus playing last year, a lot of players were still able to get a lot of playing time along the defensive front. How good can this year's defensive line be?

GE: "I think this defensive line can be awesome because everybody has playing experience. Everybody is experienced on the defensive line. We know what the game is like, we know what each team does and we know what to expect out of other teams because we've already played against them. So nobody's going to get butterflies or anything like that."

Is there a particular game that you would call your favorite?

GE: "It would have to be between Louisville and Virginia. I feel like I contributed a lot to those wins. Louisville was about to beat us, and the defense had to step up. I was able to step up and block a couple passes. Virginia was a real close game and we needed some sacks down toward the end, and I was able to come up with two. Those stand out because it was something that I did to help the team."

What do you consider your biggest strengths as a player?

GE: "Pass rushing. I guess it's something I've always been good at since high school. I just love coming off the ball fast and there's just so many things you can do to an offensive guy. You can swim them, rip them, go one way then go back the other way, or spin. I guess because I play basketball, I'm the type of guy who likes to do different moves."

What areas do you think you can improve in to make yourself a better player?

GE: "Playing the run and tackling on the run. I can do it, I just don't like to do it. Playing against the run is just like basic football. You've just got to stand there, come off the block and make the tackle. I don't like that. I would rather just play all pass rushing."

Are you tough on yourself when you know you're not playing as well as you should?

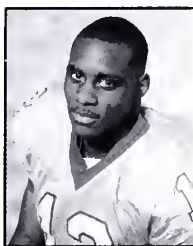

GE: "I think I'm too tough on myself. I think the coaches realize it, too, and that's why they're not so tough on me. They know if I make a mistake I come down hard on myself. Too hard, sometimes."

Do you set high standards for yourself on the field?

GE: "I expect not to miss any tackles and to get at least one sack during every game. When I don't I'm like, 'Man, I can't believe I played that bad. I can't believe I missed a tackler. I can't believe I didn't get a sack.'"

How important is preparation to your play and the team's success?

GE: "Preparation is one of the key aspects of the game. You can't just wait until you report to practice in August. You have time in the off-season to get stronger, you have time in the off-season to get faster or to work on your weakness. And that's what a lot of people are doing this year. I think this is going to be one of our best years because I see things on the team now that I haven't seen in the past. Guys are really putting in the time. Guys are in the weight room just going for it, lifting as hard as they can. Because we all are doing what it takes to win."

After a solid junior season, you could have opted to enter the NFL Draft. What made you decide to come back for your senior year?

Leon Johnson: "I didn't start off last year as well as I thought I could have, and there were a lot of things that I knew I could help the team with this year. Also, there are a lot of records that I knew I had the chance of breaking this year. I thought this year, I'd be able to come back a little bit stronger and a little bit faster, and hopefully, help our team have a better year than last year and break some records in the long run."

You finished up last year as the MVP of the Carquest Bowl in which you set a school record for most yards in a bowl game with 195. In the fourth quarter alone you had 109 yards. Are there times when you feel unstoppable on the field and you want the ball on every down?

LJ: "Sometimes when you get into the flow, you're getting the ball and you just think that you can't be taken down. But I've got to give a lot of credit to my offensive line and my fullback, Chris Watson. They made a lot of big holes for me, and that enabled me to get all of those yards. The Carquest Bowl was a time when our team was really clicking together and our running game came on."

You're not only a good runner, but you're also an excellent receiver out of the backfield, you've returned some kicks and have thrown the halfback pass a few times. Is being versatile your biggest strength as a player?

LJ: "I think so. There are a lot of things that I can help our team out with like returning kicks and catching the ball in the open field. Coach Brown just utilizes my skills. Knowing how versatile I am, he finds a situation where I can help the team out and by doing that it helps our team win."

In addition to football, you've also been one of the ACC's top performers in track and field and were drafted out of high school by baseball's San Francisco Giants. Where does your athletic ability come from?

LJ: "It comes from my parents. Both of my parents are very athletic, and my brothers were very competitive growing up. The many times that I lost to them just drove me to be stronger and put that fight in me. I give a lot of credit to my family because they really brought me up and made me the person that I am. I just took all the skills that I had and tried to bring it all together."

Is that why people call you 'The Natural'?

LJ: "Malcolm Marshall gave me that name a couple of years back. He just said I'm a natural because a lot of things that I did just seemed to come natural to me. People just call me 'The Natural' because a lot of things that I do comes from the natural talent that I have."

North Carolina has produced many great tailbacks. Did you think when you first came here that your name would be mentioned along with some of the former Tar Heel greats?

LJ: "Not really. I didn't come into college to be a running back. It's a position that I moved myself into and I have just worked to be one of the best at this University. Just to get my name up there with Amos Lawrence, Natrone Means and Charlie Justice is an honor for me."

You're closing in on several school records entering your senior year. How important are the records you could break to you?

LJ: "They're just goals that you set for yourself at the beginning of the year. It's something that I'd like to accomplish. It's just a record. Records are made to be broken. I'm sure people will come along and break my records, but it's a chance for me to go out to break a record that somebody already has. If I can do that I'm going to try as best as I can."

You have the chance to set several records but if you could break only one which would it be and why?

LJ: "Probably rushing. I'd like to have a big year this year and be the alltime leading rusher here. I know it would take a lot of yards, but it just gives me a little more incentive to work harder and try to be the best."

How would you assess your running style?

LJ: "It's more of an elusive style. I'm more of a juke-and-jive kind of person trying to incorporate power into my game. It's a mixture of all kinds of things. I may surprise you with things that I do, but it's just something that just comes to me."

What can we expect to see out of Leon Johnson in the new offense?

LJ: "Hopefully, the offense will bring me a lot of yards. Hopefully, I'll get a lot of rushing yards, but I think I'll get a lot more receiving yards with the new offense we have. I know I had a lot last year, but I think I'll bring in a lot more receptions this year. When you mix our passing game and our running game together, I think it's a going to be a good combination."

You started out your career as a 1,000-yard rusher, and you've been close the last two years. How important is it for you to close out your career with a 1,000?

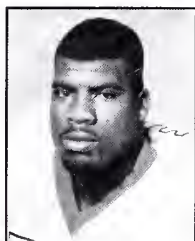

LJ: "It would be special. I started off with a 1,000, and I came close last year. This year I'd like to cap it off and get 1,000 yards and really come through and shine in my senior year."

This being your last year, how would you like to be remembered when your college career is finished?

LJ: "I'd like to make All-ACC. People talk about the Heisman race and me being one of the contenders for the Heisman, but I'd like to be All-ACC, first and foremost. I'd like people to remember me as one of the great backs at this University."

People have touted you as a contender for the Heisman Trophy. How do you feel about your chances to win the Heisman?

LJ: "You've really got to be a big-time player to get the Heisman. I like to think of myself as being one of those big-time players. Hopefully, I can come through this year and make a mark that will put me up in the position to be a Heisman candidate. But I just take one thing at a time, and if I'm in the race for the Heisman or I'm a potential candidate to get the Heisman Trophy it would be an honor for me."

What does your name mean and what is its origin?

Kivuusama Mays: "My name is 'Kah-VAH-YOU-some-uh.' It means 'child of mine.' My parents looked for it, and they just wanted to name me something different. It's Swahili and it comes from Southern Africa. My sister also has an African name which is Nanaasanettwa. Her name means 'strong leader.' We've both got names that fit our lives."

Growing up, you've spent a lot of time in a lot of different places with your dad serving in the military. Where have you been and what are some of your childhood memories?

KM: "I've been to Taiwan, Japan, Germany, Canada and many of the states. I would say my most enjoyable experience probably be Okinawa, Japan. I stayed on the island for three years and that's where I got my first introduction to football. I started playing when I was 6-years-old, and they had to move me up to play with the 8- and 9-year-olds because I was so much bigger than everybody else."

Did you hear from Shaquille O'Neal after you scored 69 points in a game and broke his school single-game scoring record?

KM: "He came back to the school the week after and we talked. We were always cool about it and it was all fun and games because we went to the same school and we grew up together. It was always fun and games with us. We were always good friends, and he lived right behind me. So we had a good time."

As a sophomore, you made first team All-ACC. How do you want to follow that up this season?

KM: "Being All-ACC would be an award that I would want to receive again but it's not something I dwell on because I've already accomplished that. Now I want to go on to bigger and better things like maybe some more All-America teams and other awards like best linebacker. But being All-ACC again would be a tremendous feat, especially to do it back-to-back."

You've been called a classic, middle linebacker. What do you think that means?

KM: "A hard-hitter, one that can find the ball quickly, can read and recognize. Knowing everybody's position — not just your own — is also important. It means being a leader among the defense. When something goes wrong I take responsibility because I'm in the middle and people look to me for answers when they have questions. So when something's wrong with our defense or we have a mental breakdown I take responsibility and try to fix that problem as quickly as I can."

Do you like that role of being a leader on the defense?

KM: "I love it. It's not for everybody. You have to get adjusted to it, and it's not just a one-person role. I'm not perfect, and I look to my roommate, Brian (Simmons), our other linebacker James Hamilton, Omar Brown, Greg Ellis and other people on the team who are also leaders. It's a group effort not just one single person."

Last year you were the team's top tackler. Is it important to you to make a lot of tackles or can you play a good game without making a lot of tackles?

KM: "It's not really important but if you're there make the play. It's not important to make a lot of tackles every game. We look for someone to step up every game and be consistent. That's what we strive to do as a defense; come out every Saturday and all be consistent performers. Not just one person who comes in and makes 18 tackles and next week makes six tackles. Be consistent at what you do."

Brian, James and yourself have been called one of the top linebacking groups in the country. How good do you think this bunch is and how good can this group be?

KM: "We're average right now. I'd say we're average. We haven't reached our potential, but we're only as good as we make ourselves to be. Our expectations for each other and what we want out of ourselves is real high. We like to push each other every day to get better, not so much in the physical parts of the game but in the mental parts of the game because so much is thinking and knowing. We push each other and ask each other questions like 'What do we think about this situation or that situation?' We're looking to be not one of the best, but the best trio in the country."

Craig Jones/All Sport

Carolina has such an outstanding linebacker tradition. Was this something you were aware when you were being recruited?

KM: "I was aware of the linebackers they've had here who have gone on to the NFL. I knew of Dwight Hollier when I was being recruited. He seemed like somebody who, as a linebacker, that I would want to be like. People have told me that my game is similar to his. He comes back and we talk. He was at the Carquest Bowl, so that was fun."

With the linebacker tradition that Carolina has, how would you like this year's group to carry on that tradition?

KM: "We've had great linebackers throughout the years, but not all at one time. I would like us three to go out as the best linebacking group, as a trio, to ever come through Carolina. That would be a tremendous accomplishment. That's how I'd like to be remembered."

When your career is over how would you like your college career to be remembered?

KM: "As a person who came to play for 60 minutes when he stepped between the white lines. His mind was there, and his soul was there, too."

Last year you were honorable mention All-ACC behind Georgia Tech's Michael Cheever and Florida State's Clay Shiver. With those two great players gone, would you like for people to look at you as the top center in the league this year?

Jeff Saturday: "I think that Cheever and Shiver were both great players, and they proved that by going in the second and third round of the NFL Draft. That shows their ability, and it was quite an honor to be mentioned up there with those guys. Now that they're leaving that opens the door for me to hopefully move up to that slot, but I know that I have to have a really good year this year. That's not the most important thing. The most important thing is our team goals, and I think with our team goals, everything else, like individual awards, will fall into place."

The coaches have said that you could be an All-America performer. What do you think about that, and how good do you think you can become before your career is over?

JS: "I look at that as a great opportunity. I came into Carolina and established myself early as a freshman. I started a few games then and took over the starting job last year and played every game. I think that has opened up a lot of doors when it comes to being All-ACC and an All-America. My main goal at center is to be the best in the country like it is for every other player. It's quite a compliment to even be considered up in that area, but that is a goal that I'm trying to get. I want to be the best center. I want to be known as the best center in the country. That's something that hopefully in time I can accomplish."

How high are the standards that you set for yourself?

JS: "I think I'm pretty tough on myself. Coach Williamson does a great job making you play up to your potential. Along with him, I think I put a lot of pressure on myself, especially in the mental aspect of the game. In football, sometimes you're going to be beaten physically, and there's nothing you can really do about that. Sometimes somebody is just going to get the best of you. The most important thing to me is to be mentally prepared and to be mentally stable at all times. If I can accomplish that, then I'm pretty satisfied with myself and my game."

Even though the offensive line doesn't get the same kind of recognition that the so-called "skill" positions get, most critics say that games are won and lost up front. What do you like most about playing on the line?

JS: "I like the fact that we set the tempo. A lot of people don't really realize how much of the tempo we set. The game kind of follows the way the offensive line plays. People love watching Leon Johnson run for 100 yards and 1,000 yards per year and that's set behind the offensive line. We kind of get the team excited. If we're running the ball, that's get down and get dirty football, and that's what people like to come and see. Even though people don't recognize offensive linemen, they understand that when Leon gets his yards and Octavus (Barnes) catches his passes and Oscar Davenport or Chris Keldorf throws for his yards that's where it all begins. It all begins with the front line. It's kind of a war between the two teams to see whose offensive line does the best job."

You are a very vocal player when you're on the field. Are emotions a big part of your game and your style of play?

JS: "I get excited about football. I love playing it. Whenever I quit enjoying playing, I think it's time to give up the game. I express myself because I get excited, and I feel like the more excited I get the better I play. And if I get excited that tends to get people around me excited. It starts a chain reaction. By being vocal and being assertive in what I do, I think it helps not only myself get prepared, but it helps get everybody else excited, and that spreads throughout the team during the game. When you have five guys up there who are excited to play and are talking to your teammates, everybody gets excited about playing, and that's what football is all about."

Do you consider yourself a leader on the line?

JS: "I feel like I'm moving into that spot. That's what I want to be, and that's a goal I want to take over. Being at center gives me a great opportunity because I'm making the calls and being in the middle allows me to get to everyone. I want to be a leader, but it's only by other people allowing me to lead. When I say lead, I mean getting everybody excited and trying to lead by example. When we're on the field I like to get excited and get people motivated."

Since there are no stats for others to gauge an offensive lineman's performance by, how do you think that linemen should be judged?

JS: "The offensive line is a team. It's a team within itself. There are five guys up there and they're all working for the same goal, and I think it's hard to individualize anybody. On the offensive line, you're only as strong as your weakest link, and you have to have five terrific players who work together to create a fluid machine. It's a tough position because there are no single performers. You can have three All-Americas and two poor performers and you're offensive line is going to look pretty pathetic. You have to realize it's not a single man up there who's doing the job. All five have to be working together as a unit to do it. When it comes down to it, people who give up the fewest sacks and rush for the most yards, that's a team thing and you can't break that down to any individual."

What are your primary responsibilities on this year's team? Has anything changed with the installation of the new offense?

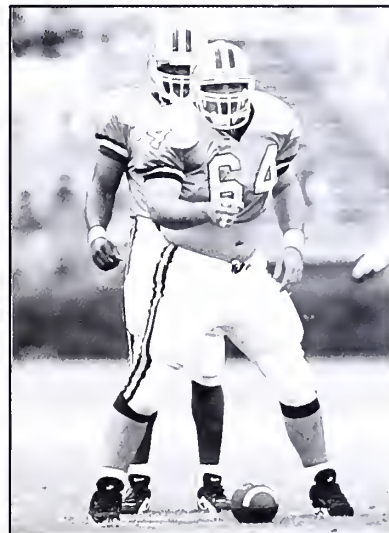

JS: "I've moved into more of a leadership role. I'm taking on some of those leadership qualities like getting things decided. There have been 16 of us who have been voted on as leaders of the team in our respective positions. That's one thing that's changed off the field, and on the field, I'm getting more assertive on the field to take charge of things. When things aren't going in the right direction, I try to pull things back the other way."

In high school you were a standout wrestler. How has that helped you in your football?

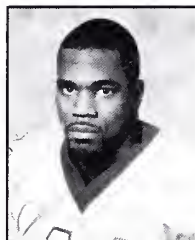

JS: "The first thing it helped me with is my balance. Wrestling gives you a tremendous sense of balance. You keep your hips low, and you keep the same type of football stance. When your feet are spread apart and your hips are down, that gives you good hip movement and that's real important in football. People don't understand how much power comes out of your hips and your body and your legs. Wrestling really teaches that and allows you to control your body and control your movement."

Is there any particular player that you like to watch or try to pattern your play after?

JS: "I got the number 64 from Jim Burt. I remember watching him when he was with the New York Giants, and he was just a super intense player. He was very physical and aggressive and I really enjoyed his nature. I may not have styled my play as much after him as I did his attitude and the atmosphere he brought around himself. I really respected the way he carried himself and the amount of respect people had to give him on the field. I think that's one person I've really patterned myself after in those respects."

Scott Sharpe

The coaching staff has said you are the total package at the linebacker position — you can run, you can hit and you can make the big play — but what do you think you're biggest strengths as a player are?

Brian Simmons: "I would have to say overall athletic ability — speed, quickness, strength and intelligence as far as knowing the game. I feel that I have grown a lot in that area since last year. I think those are probably the main things."

Last year you didn't receive any postseason awards, but many observers felt like you were among the best players in the ACC. Do you feel like you were overlooked or slighted some last season?

BS: "Kind of, but those are the things you really can't worry about as a player. Whoever else makes those decisions are going to do what they want to do. All I can do is go out there on Saturdays and play my game."

Does that motivate you any to try to have an even better year this year?

BS: "A little bit to be honest, but that's not really what I'm thinking about. I'm just thinking about improving as a player and going out there and playing my best game every Saturday. But in the back of my mind I think about it, and being all-conference is something I'd like to do. So I'm thinking about it."

How high are the standards that you set for yourself?

BS: "I think high. I think you have to be your hardest critic, so every day when I go out there I'm trying to do better. Sometimes Coach Torbush may feel like I played a good game, but deep down inside I don't really think that I played my best. I was thinking back on the season, and I don't think that I've played the best football I'm capable of playing here. Hopefully I can reach that level."

Last year you were one of the most ferocious hitters on the team. What's the feeling like when you deliver a big blow on a quarterback or a ball carrier?

BS: "I'm just out there and I'm trying to make plays. If it happens to a big hit, it's a big hit. But the main thing is making the hit for me. I'm not out there thinking about hitting hard. I just like to make plays. I want to be a big playmaker. But it is a good feeling because you can feel the contact, and you know when you make good contact. Kind of like baseball."

If you could script the picture-perfect defensive play what would it be for you?

BS: "Probably me dropping back in the zone and a running back going out in the flat trying to catch a curl, and I jump in front and take it the other way for 50 or 60 yards for a touchdown."

Former Carolina linebacker Lawrence Taylor revolutionized the way defense is played. Is he a player that you try to pattern your play after?

BS: "No disrespect to him because he is a great player, but basically I want to play football like Brian Simmons. I think of him as being more of a rush end, more of like a Greg Ellis type position. So if I'm looking at football, I'm looking at people more like Junior Seau, Greg Lloyd or somebody like that."

Along with Kivuusama Mays and James Hamilton, this year's group of linebackers is one that's being called one of the best in the country. How do you think this year's group stacks up against some of the other teams nationwide?

BS: "I would like to think that we would be the best as a trio, but it's kind of hard to tell because I haven't really looked at all the other groups. But I think we have a good chance at being one of the better linebacker corps in the nation, and that's what we're going to work for."

How good can this group of linebackers be?

BS: "I think we can be really good. Last year, a lot of people were doubting us because we were the main question mark on defense. They were saying, 'The linebackers are inexperienced, they haven't played much, will they be able to step up?' This year there'll be more pressure, and I hope we will respond. I think we will respond very well."

Last year's defense, which finished sixth in the country in total yards allowed per game, loses a great player in Marcus Jones, but has a lot of other experienced players coming back. Do you expect this year's defense to be as good as last year's?

BS: "Yes, I do. Losing a player like Marcus Jones is always going to be hard, but I think we have some key players that are ready to step up. Last year, the last two series of the State game hurt us. I checked and I think we allowed like 10 yards more than the top defense. Even though we were sixth and weren't that far behind, I think we can improve drastically from last year."

If you were an offensive coordinator for an opposing team why would you be worried about Brian Simmons?

BS: "Because he's a good football player. That's what I would see, and I would tell my offensive players, 'He's a good player. He's going to come at you every down. And as far as athletic ability, I don't think you will face too many that are better than him at the linebacker position.'"

With the linebacker tradition that Carolina has, how would you like for this group to be remembered when people look back in a few years?

BS: "As far as individuals, I don't know if anyone could ever say that one of us was the best that Carolina ever had, but as a group, I would like to be remembered as the best group."

Your younger brother is a freshman on the team this year. Are you excited about having the opportunity to play with him in college?

BS: "We're real close, and I'm excited that he's able to go to college and play football. But by him coming here, that makes it that much more special."

In his 16 years as the Director of Athletics at the University of North Carolina, John Swofford has been instrumental in building UNC's program into one of the country's most respected entities. It is rare in this day and age that an intercollegiate athletic program can show the proper balance of outstanding academic performance, unquestioned integrity, championship-producing results and sound financial management. But Carolina's program excels in all of those areas.

"Under the leadership of John Swofford, Carolina sports has become synonymous with quality and integrity nationwide," says Chancellor Michael Hooker. "The Carolina family is fortunate to have such a devoted alumnus at the helm of a program which is so well respected amongst our peers in the world of intercollegiate athletics. Given the outstanding graduation rate of our student-athletes and Carolina's top finishes in the Sears Directors' Cup competition the past three years, it's obvious that UNC is doing things the right way both in the classroom and on the field under John's stewardship."

Swofford served as president of the National Association of Collegiate Director of Athletics (NACDA) in 1993-94 and is one of 14 members of the Executive Committee of the NCAA. That body has the main responsibility of transacting the business and administering the affairs of the NCAA in accordance with the policies of the NCAA and the NCAA Council, while also supervising the NCAA's executive director.

"To serve Carolina as its director of athletics is a great challenge and tremendous privilege," says Swofford. "Having grown up in this state, attended Carolina as an undergraduate and played football here, serving in this position obviously takes on a special meaning. Chapel Hill, the University and, most importantly, its people mean a great deal to me."

"Carolina offers such tremendous opportunities. It's a great institution with wonderful traditions and we're a part of the best athletic conference in America in the ACC. For me, working here is much more than just a job, it's a way of life."

A 1971 Carolina graduate and recipient of the prestigious Morehead Scholarship, Swofford has a special interest in academics. He founded the office of athletic academic affairs in 1985, which has helped guide Carolina to record numbers on the Atlantic Coast Conference Honor Roll and the University's Dean's List.

Carolina's football team has been consistently honored for graduating at least 70 percent of its players by the College Football Association in seven of the past eight years. The men's basketball team has also continued its remarkable rate of graduating its players while maintaining on-court excellence.

Swofford planned the construction of the Student-Athlete Development Center as an addition to Kenan Fieldhouse. That building includes the most modern equipment to aid student-athletes in their studies and physical development.

During his tenure, UNC has claimed 115 ACC championships and 22 national collegiate titles. Carolina has won more ACC team titles than any other school in the league in each of the past nine school years. During the 1993-94 season, the Tar Heels won a then-ACC-record 11 championships, out of 23 contested, and also claimed national championships in women's soccer and women's basketball. A year later, Carolina broke its own record by winning a remarkable 12 ACC titles, more than half the number of the championships contested. No other school in the last two years has won more than four team titles in a year. In 1995-96, Carolina again won a remarkable nine ACC championships and the field hockey team won the NCAA title.

Carolina won the inaugural Sears Directors' Cup in 1993-94. This award, conceived by NACDA, Sears and USA Today, honors the collegiate all-sports champion, a Champion of Champions, so to speak. Carolina edged Stanford for the award in a tight race as 16 of Carolina's 22 eligible sports contributed points towards winning the prestigious trophy. Carolina finished second in the Sears Cup competition in 1994-95 behind Stanford as the two schools flip-flopped places in the final standings. The Tar Heels placed sixth in the Sears Cup standings in 1995-96.

"Having grown up in this state, attended Carolina as an undergraduate and played football here, serving in this position obviously takes on a special meaning. Chapel Hill, the University and, most importantly, its people mean a great deal to me."

— Athletics Director John Swofford

Swofford has a knack for selecting quality people. He has hired 11 of the 20 coaches who currently head UNC's athletic programs, including three who have won national championships (women's basketball coach Sylvia Hatchell, field hockey coach Karen Shelton and lacrosse coach Dave Klarmann), football coach Mack Brown, who has led UNC to four consecutive bowl game appearances, and Dennis Craddock, who has directed the Tar Heel track and field program to 22 ACC titles over the last nine years and top five performances at the NCAA Championships for both the men's and women's track teams in 1996. In addition, he has put together an administrative management team considered to be one of the finest in athletics.

Swofford also initiated the idea and provided the impetus for the founding of the University's trademark licensing program which yields $2 million annually in sales to the university of athletic-related souvenirs. He is also duly proud of the student-athlete advisory council which was founded five years ago and which advises the athletic administration on issues of importance to UNC's student-athletes.

UNC athletics director JOHN SWOFFORD (right) receives the Sears Directors' Cup from John Costello, Executive V.P. for Marketing at Sears. Carolina won the Sears Cup in 1994, placed second in 1995 and sixth in 1996.

Swofford also drew praise in 1995 from the accreditation committee of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. In praising the athletic program, the committee's report stated, "This admiration begins with a realization of what an excellent director of athletics the University has. Again and again we heard, from a variety of sources, that it is the athletics director who gives tone and credibility to a program of intercollegiate athletics, and that UNC-Chapel Hill may well have the best one in the country."

With the help of the Educational Foundation, the University has also enjoyed a tremendous growth in facilities during Swofford's tenure. In 1986, Carolina successfully completed a $34 million fund-raising drive to construct the Smith Center, a complex which includes a 21,572-seat basketball arena and Koury Natatorium, one of the nation's top short course facilities. In 1988 Kenan Stadium was expanded and a new press box built.

Since Swofford became athletic director, the Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center, an indoor-outdoor facility, has been completed and dedicated; Boshamer Stadium has been expanded and renovated; three new holes have been completed at Finley Golf Course; the football practice fields have been reconstructed and lighted; a new AstroTurf playing field has been installed; a new track has been put down at Fetzer Field and the stadium there renovated.

Currently, the department is in the middle of a $38 million fund-raising campaign to expand Kenan Stadium. Over the last two years the field itself at Kenan Stadium has been resurfaced and restroom and concession areas renovated. The major phase of the expansion now calls for the building of the Frank H. Kenan Football Center, the addition of permanent seating in the west end zone and a Preferred Seating Box on the north side of the stadium. The Football Center will be the new home of the Carolina football team locker room, weight room, training room and administrative offices.

That is an impressive list of accomplishments for the department under Swofford's tenure the past 16 years. What's equally noteworthy is the fact Carolina has accomplished all this while running a program without any NCAA sanctions during his entire tenure. Swofford has also directed the program to such heights during a time of increasing financial exigencies. Yet the sound financial management practices put forth by Swofford have kept Carolina as one of the few collegiate athletic programs still operating in the black.

Nationally, Swofford was named chairman of the NCAA Football Television Committee in 1984. He is a past chairman of the NCAA Communications and the NCAA Special Events/Postseason Bowl Committees. He has served three terms as chairman of the ACC Television Committee. He currently chairs the ACC committee on football and serves on the constitution and bylaws, infractions and penalties, television and men's basketball committees. He also was appointed to the newly formed NCAA Special Committee to Study a Division I-A Football Championship.

In May 1991, Swofford was honored with the North Carolina Scholastic Sports Unsung Hero Award for his strong support of high school sports. Swofford was cited for his strong leadership at Carolina, for lending unprecedented access to campus facilities for prep championships.

In November 1994, Swofford was named the recipient of the W.S. Bailey Award, given by the Auburn-Opelika (Ala.) Touchdown Club for outstanding contributions to collegiate athletics.

A native of North Wilkesboro, N.C., Swofford was a two-time all-state football player and a three-sport MVP at Wilkes Central High School. An honor student in high school, he majored in psychology and industrial relations at Carolina.

Swofford played quarterback and defensive back on Tar Heel football teams in 1969, 1970 and 1971. The 1970 team went to the Peach Bowl and the 1971 squad won the ACC title and played in the Gator Bowl. He was named to the ACC Honor Roll and Who's Who in College Athletics. He also served as president of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on campus. In 1973, he earned a master's degree in athletic administration from Ohio University.

Swofford received the Distinguished Alumni Award from Ohio University in 1984. He has been inducted into the Order of the Golden Fleece, Carolina's highest honorary society. In 1989, Swofford became the first athletic director ever added to the Chancellor's Administrative Council at Carolina.

A regular jogger and devoted beach lover, Swofford enjoys reading, golf and tennis. He is the proud father of both a son and daughter. Autumn, 19, is a freshman woman's soccer player at Florida State University. Chad, 17, is a junior honors student at Proctor Academy in Andover, N.H.

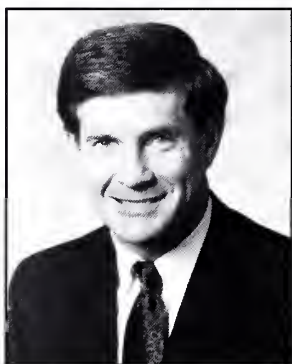

Swofford is a former member of the Morehead Foundation Central Selection Committee, is on the parents' board at the Proctor Academy and is a member of the University United Methodist Church in Chapel Hill.

John Swofford, Athletics Director

University of North Carolina head football coach Mack Brown enters his ninth season in command of the Tar Heel gridiron hopes. Under his direction those aspirations have led to six consecutive winning seasons, 47 wins in the decade of the 1990s and four straight berths in the postseason.

Brown, who in 1996 will be coaching college football players for the 25th year, is in his 13th season as a head coach. Last year the Tar Heels responded from an 0-2 start to post a seven-win campaign. That was capped by a victory over Arkansas, the SEC's Western Division champion, in the Carquest Bowl.

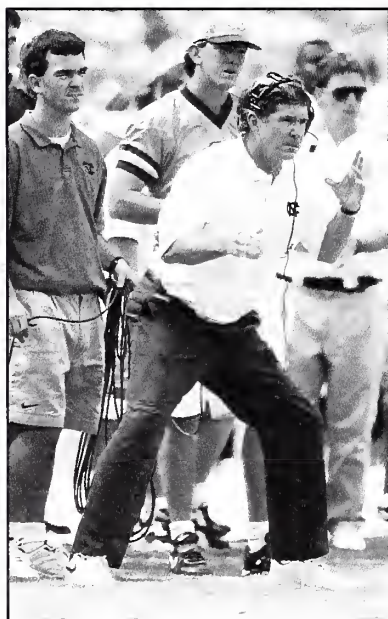

Carolina has in the last four years participated in the Peach Bowl in Atlanta, Disneyland Pigskin Classic in Anaheim, Calif., the Gator Bowl in Jacksonville, Fla., the Sun Bowl in El Paso, Texas, and the Carquest Bowl in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The Tar Heels have won 34 games in that four-year period.

Brown stands third in tenure among active head coaches in the Atlantic Coast Conference behind only Florida State's Bobby Bowden and Virginia's George Welsh. Nationally only 15 men have been head coaches for a longer period at their current institutions. The 45-year-old native of Cookeville, Tenn. came to UNC in 1988 and helped rejuvenate a program with a long and successful football tradition which had slipped in stature in the mid-1980s.

It took a few years and several recruiting classes under his belt to get his program established, but in the last six seasons Brown has restored Tar Heel fortunes to the point where Carolina is perennially a contender in the conference race and a presence on the national football landscape.

The Tar Heels are tied with Southern Cal for the 10th-longest current streak of consecutive bowl games. Only nine programs in the country have played in more consecutive postseason games than Carolina.

"Mack has proven to be exactly what we thought he would be when he was hired," says Athletic Director John Swofford. "He is an outstanding representative of this University and represents the very best of college football. He genuinely cares about his players and has done an outstanding job of competitively rebuilding our program. He has taken us to four straight bowl games and led us to be one of the nation's winningest programs this decade. With Mack's leadership we feel Carolina football is headed back to even greater national prominence.

"His ability to relate to people is second to none and that means a great deal to our players and constituents. He knows the game, how to teach the game and the issues which surround the sport. We have one of the true leaders of college football, both for today and the future."

In his first eight years in Chapel Hill Brown has recruited and coached several of the most outstanding football players in Carolina history. He has helped to develop standout players like Marcus Jones, a consensus first-team All-America defensive tackle who also earned ACC Defensive Player-of-the-Year honors in 1995; Corey Holliday, the alltime leading receiver in Tar Heel history, a CFA/Hitachi Scholar-Athlete and current member of the AFC champion Pittsburgh Steelers; Dwight Hollier, the leading tackler in Carolina football history and current Miami Dolphin; Natrone Means, who rushed for 1,000-plus yards in each of his last two seasons as a Tar Heel and led the San Diego Chargers to Super Bowl XXIX; quarterbacks Jason Stanicek and Mike Thomas, who together rewrote Carolina's passing and total offense records over the past five years; cornerback Thomas Smith, who came to UNC in 1989 as a walk-on from a small high school in North Carolina and departed as a first-round draft pick of the AFC champion Buffalo Bills; and Leon Johnson, who goes into the 1996 campaign as the one of the premier all-purpose offensive threats in college football.

The Tar Heels have swept their in-state ACC rivals in each of the past three seasons for the first time ever. In addition to three straight wins over N.C. State, Carolina has topped Duke and Wake Forest for six consecutive years and Maryland in five of the past six contests. UNC has the 18th-best winning percentage and 18th-most wins in college football over the past six years.

Carolina's on-field successes have not come at the expense of the program's integrity nor academic standards. Players have earned the CFA's recognition for high graduation rates in seven of the past eight years. Holliday, linebacker Mike Morton and offensive tackle Russell Babb have been named to the CFA's national scholar-athlete team in the past four years. Babb was also named the conference's top senior scholar-athlete for football. Four of Brown's players are currently enrolled in medical school.

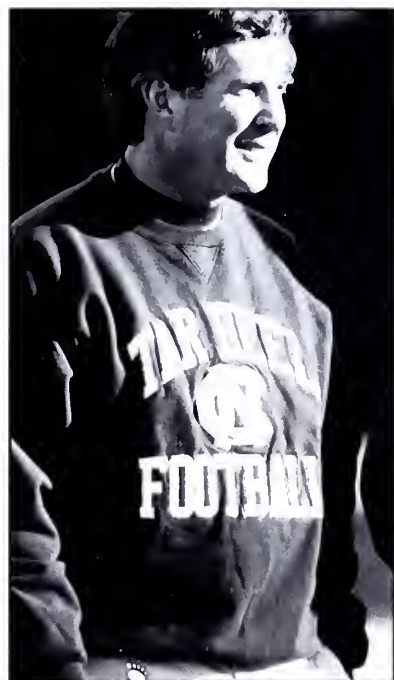

"I love coaching at the University of North Carolina because of the friendships I have developed over the years, in addition to the type of young people, coaches and staff members this school attracts," Brown says. "They are people that have class, are intelligent, understand they want ultimate success on the field, but not at the cost of ethical standards or class. That's the type program in which I always felt like I needed to be. As I get older I know that's the type program I really feel most comfortable with and enjoy every day."

Many observers credit Brown's affable qualities and outgoing personality as the key to his success. While those observations are on the mark, what often gets overlooked is Brown's careful attention to details and game strategy. These personal traits are aided by his hiring an experienced and talented staff. Seven of Brown's nine current assistant coaches have been head coaches, including four at the Division I college level.

The Tar Heels were the number one defense in the ACC and sixth nationally in yards allowed per game in 1995. Carolina's offense has averaged more than 400 yards per game over the last four years. Those numbers have been compiled while adapting to the talents of the many different players over the years. In the early '90s the Tar Heels played power football behind Means, a bruising tailback who rushed for 3,074 yards in just three seasons. In 1993 Stanicek engineered an option-style attack in which he broke Charlie Justice's alltime school total offense record and both Curtis and Leon Johnson rushed in excess of 1,000 yards. Last year Mike Thomas set UNC single-season passing records for most completions, attempts and yards. Rising junior receiver Octavus Barnes has 85 receptions for 1,579 yards and is on pace to shatter many of UNC's alltime receiving standards.

Carolina's 34 wins over the past four years mark the second-highest total in the ACC behind Florida State. The Seminoles have won 43 games in that span. Virginia is third with 32 and N.C. State fourth with 28. Carolina, FSU and Virginia are the only schools in the ACC to compile a winning record in each of the last six seasons.

Carolina was 18th in the final 1992 poll of writers and broadcasters conducted by the Associated Press and 19th in the USA Today/CNN poll of college coaches. The Tar Heels finished 19th and 21st in the 1993 rankings and 21st in the coaches' poll in 1994.

"Tradition has always been important in football, but people also have to recognize change," says Brown. "Right now some of the old names, the traditional old names in college football are not the same people they were 20 years ago. We feel like North Carolina is one of the new names, the new kids on the block. It's a school we want young guys to come to because hopefully we will be one of the programs they are talking about 20 years from now instead of one of the upcoming programs."

All this is an indication Swofford was correct in December 1987, when he recommended Brown to become the Carolina head coach.

However, the best may be yet to come. Brown has been around some of the top programs in the country and knows what it takes for Carolina to maintain the consistency those schools have had.

"We've made tremendous strides, but there is still work to be done," says Brown. "We want to be in a position to challenge for the conference championship and go to a bowl game every year. There's no reason we can't do that, given all the things we have going for us here - a tradition of excellence in athletics, one of the best academic institutions in the nation and with the stadium renovations beginning immediately, our football facility will be among the finest in the nation."

Brown certainly seems to have the Tar Heels headed on the right track.

"Mack has proven to be the perfect man for our program," says Swofford. "He's seemingly been going non-stop since the first day he walked on campus and his work is evident, especially to those of us in our department. He's not only rebuilt our program, but also united our constituencies."

"Tradition has always been important in football but people also have to recognize change. Right now some of the old names, the traditional old names in college football are not the same people they were 20 years ago. We feel like North Carolina is one of the new names, the new kids on the block. - Head Coach Mack Brown

"Even in the early years, he was popular with our fans. He has a great ability to relate to people, from our oldest alumni to small kids. He understands what Carolina means to people who went here and that makes him so effective when talking to them. But, I've also seen him with groups of young children and he's great with them, too."

Outgoing and personable, one of Brown's greatest strengths may simply be his integrity. When he says something, people know he means it.

That's one reason he's done such an outstanding job as a recruiter. He's honest and forthright in his dealings with his players. He has a good understanding of today's young people and can relate to them and their problems.

When he came to Chapel Hill, one of his first goals was to reestablish solid relationships with the state's high school coaches. He and his staff have done just that and UNC's football program is once again the dominant factor in the state. Even though Carolina has recruited top players from across the nation, more than half the roster is comprised of young men from the Tar Heel State.

Additionally, he has made a special effort to have former players feel welcome when they return to campus. A spring letterman's outing has become a huge success, attracting players from all eras back to Chapel Hill.

As Brown's work has resulted in improvement on Saturday afternoons, it has also benefited his players who have decided to try careers in professional football. Over the past five seasons 20 Tar Heels have been selected in the National Football League draft. Florida State is the only ACC school to have more players drafted in that period. Twenty-five players who have played at Carolina for Brown have been drafted, and 17 of the 25 have been selected in the first four rounds of the NFL Draft. Marcus Jones and Thomas Smith were first-round selections; Jones by Tampa Bay in 1996 and Smith by Buffalo in 1993.

Last year there were 36 former Tar Heels on NFL rosters, 27 of whom played for Brown in Chapel Hill. Those 27 players represented 18 different NFL teams. Additionally, in the past five years 27 other Carolina players have signed free agent contracts with NFL teams.

All these things put together have made Brown one of the most respected young coaches in the game. Thus, despite being signed through 1999, it's no surprise that his name seems to come up every time there is a coaching vacancy at another high profile school. But, Brown says he's perfectly happy in Chapel Hill.

"This is a special place - a great University and a wonderful college town," he says. "I'm excited about what we've done here and what the future holds."

Brown came to Carolina from Tulane where he had rejuvenated the Green Wave's sagging football fortunes in just three years, taking his team to only its fifth bowl game since 1940 in his final season.

However, Brown may be best known for helping develop some of the most explosive offenses in the college game. As an offensive coordinator and assistant, he directed record-setting attacks at Oklahoma, LSU and Iowa State.

Brown says he has three goals for the student-athletes who play for him.

"The number one thing is for each young person to get his degree," he says. "We also want them to do the best they can academically to prepare themselves for later life.

"The second thing is that we want to win. And last, but certainly not least, we want the young people to have fun."

Brown's 1987 Tulane team completed one of the fastest turn-arounds in the country. Brown went to Tulane on December 16, 1984, as head coach and was also appointed the school's athletic director the following April. The Green Wave had suffered three straight losing seasons before Brown's arrival in New Orleans.

In his third season, he led Tulane to a 6-5 regular-season mark and earned a spot opposite Washington in the Independence Bowl. In the process, the Green Wave set school records for total offense and points. Tulane ranked 11th in the nation in scoring, averaging 32.5 points a game.

Brown had begun his full-time coaching career at Southern Mississippi in 1974, working with receivers for four seasons. He then spent one year coaching that same position at Memphis State.

At Iowa State, from 1979 to 1981, Brown served as receivers coach for one year and as offensive coordinator for the last two seasons. In his time as offensive coordinator the Cyclones broke 17 school and Big Eight Conference records and produced league leaders in rushing and total offense.

He then took an assistant's job at LSU where he ran the offense in 1982. The Tigers went 8-2-1 and played in the Orange Bowl.

That led to his first head coaching job at Appalachian State. In 1983, at the age of 32, he directed the Mountaineers to a 6-5 record. However, he left after that one season when offered a job he couldn't refuse—the offensive coordinator's position at Oklahoma.

In his one year on Barry Switzer's staff, the Sooners were 9-2-1, won the Big Eight Championship and earned a berth in the Orange Bowl. Brown helped Oklahoma develop its best passing attack in years as he coached quarterbacks Danny Bradley, a first-team All-Big Eight selection, and Troy Aikman, three-time Super Bowl champion quarterback of the Dallas Cowboys.

A native of Cookeville, Tenn., Brown attended Vanderbilt and Florida State. He lettered twice as a running back for the Seminoles in 1971 and 1972. He finished work on his bachelor's degree in education at FSU in 1974. While there, he worked on a part-time basis, coaching receivers and the junior varsity. He earned his master's degree in administration from Southern Mississippi in 1976.

Brown, born Aug. 27, 1951, was a three-sport star at Putnam County High School, lettering three times in football.

In his tenure at Carolina Brown has been invited to coach in postseason all-star games on three occasions, including the Japan Bowl, the Hula Bowl and the East-West All-Star Game. Last year he was named the chairman of the Football Coaches' Committee and was named to the Board of Directors of the College Football Association. Brown was a member of the American Football Coaches Association's Ethics Committee and NCAA Rules Committee and was on the AFCA Public Relations Committee. He also was chairman of the AFCA committee which puts together the organization's summer manual.

Mack and his wife, Sally, have four children — Matt (21), Katherine (19), Barbara (16) and Chris (14).

"Each young man that enters Carolina to play football has dreams of success. I take a great deal of pride in helping make these dreams come true. I ask a great deal of these young men on and off the football field. I also ask a great deal of myself. Together we can accomplish the goals we set as a group. My philosophy is, in a word, preparation. We take pride in being prepared for Saturday's challenges. I stress to my players to react to the situations the game presents and my challenge is to have them prepared to react accordingly."

— Tim Brewster

"Tim Brewster has developed a reputation as one of the top recruiters in the country and he has coached the All-ACC tight end in each of the last two seasons. He has developed Greg DeLong, who is now a Minnesota Viking, and Freddie Jones, the All-ACC tight end last year. Tim is quickly changing his reputation to also include being a great tight ends coach, as well as recruiter."

PERSONAL: Born 3-2-46. Married to the former Susan Ratterree. They have three sons, Chuck (24), John (20) and Joe (17).

"I have a positive and enthusiastic attitude about the players I coach and what we are trying to accomplish. I respect and enjoy the players and, at the same time, have great expectations from them in having the work ethic and discipline necessary to become great players. I think we have to work together to accomplish team goals. I must be able to teach and they have to want to learn. Two things are necessary to teach: knowing your subject matter and being able to motivate the student. Throughout this process, the teacher and the student must enjoy it and have some fun in order to do our best."

— Ken Browning

"Kenny Browning is definitely a player's coach. He has been able to take a great mix of 24 years experience as a high school head coach and make the transition to college coaching as smoothly and successfully as anyone I've ever seen. All of us have learned from Kenny that you can never spend enough individual time with the young student-athlete. A lot of people forget that sometimes but a coach like Kenny Browning can sure make you aware that success is working with the kids."

— Head Coach Mack Brown

CAREER HIGHLIGHTS: One of the most successful high school football coaches in the state, Ken Browning took over the defensive line in 1994 in his first season along the collegiate sidelines...Browning spent 18 years as the head coach at Northern High School in Durham...Also played as a prep at Northern...Led Northern to a 178-35 record...Won the state 4-A title in December 1993 with a 39-6 victory over West Charlotte High...His teams won the conference crown for 10 consecutive years and claimed Eastern Regional titles in 1992 and 1993.

Over his last three years Northern built a 43-2 record...Was named the North Carolina Coach of the Year by the Associated Press in 1992 and 1993...In 1988 he was elected as first president of the North Carolina Football Coaches Association...Directed North Carolina to a 9-0 win over South Carolina in the Shrine Bowl...He became only the third coach to win both the state title and Shrine Bowl in the same year...Was athletic director at Northern for 18 years...Also was head coach at Ledford High in Thomasville from 1970-75...Posted a 36-19-6 record at Ledford and advanced to the playoffs four times...Played defensive end and tight end at Guilford College...Had the highest academic average on the team.

Last year he coached senior Marcus Jones, the ACC Defensive Player of the Year and consensus first-team All-America...Jones had 19 tackles for losses, including seven sacks, and 20 pressures...He was selected first-team All-ACC for the second consecutive year...Also coached Rick Terry, who led the team and was third in the ACC with eight quarterback sacks.

PLAYING EXPERIENCE: Ohio University, 1966-70.

EDUCATION: Glenwood High School, Canton, Ohio, 1966; Ohio University (B.S., Education) 1970.

PERSONAL: Born 3-27-47. He and his wife, Jean, have two sons, Rodney (25) and Kyle (15).

HIGHLIGHTS: Returned to Chapel Hill last year after a 13-year absence...Coached the quarterbacks in 1995, a position he coached in his first stint at Carolina in 1978-81...Developed quarterbacks Matt Kupec, Rod Elkins and Scott Stankavage...Bryant was a member of UNC teams which went to bowl games in 1979, 1980 and 1981...UNC defeated Michigan in the 1979 Gator Bowl, Texas in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl and Arkansas in the 1981 Gator Bowl...The Tar Heels had a record of 34-12-1 record in those four years...Carolina won the 1980 ACC title, posted an 11-1 overall record that year and added a 10-2 season in 1981.

Last year he directed Mike Thomas, who set UNC single-season passing records for most completions and yards and most yards of total offense...The Tar Heels set single-season school records for most yards passing, most pass completions, most pass attempts and most first downs by passing...Two different players, tailback Leon Johnson and split end Octavus Barnes, each broke the previous single-season record for receptions...Thomas was fourth in the conference in total offense last year.

"I coach because it is the only job I would do without pay. Over 20 years of coaching, through wins and losses and different jobs in different towns, I have never hated a single day going to work as a football coach. It gives you a chance to become involved with young men and maybe make a difference in their lives and help them become productive citizens. If I know I have made a difference to even one player then my time coaching has been rewarding."

— Cleve Bryant

CAROLINA PROFILES

"Cleve has been a Division I head coach, has coached in the NFL and brings vast experience at all different levels to our staff. I think he is one of the best receiver coaches in the country, but he has played quarterback, and is also a great quarterback coach. Who better to help develop a passing game than one who has seen it work at all levels. The expertise that he and Greg Davis bring from the NFL and the college game will give us a great mix in our passing game."

— Head Coach Mack Brown

Left the Tar Heels after the 1981 season to become the running backs coach with the New England Patriots under head coach Ron Meyer...The Patriots were second in the NFL in rushing in 1982 and third in the league in 1983...He coached Tony Collins, who rushed for 1,049 yards in 1983, Sam Cunningham, the Pats' alltime leading rusher, Craig James, Mosi Tatupu and Mark Van Eeghen...New England had a 22-19 record in those three seasons.

Was the head coach at Ohio University from 1985-90...Coached receivers at the University of Illinois under head coach John Mackovic and joined Mackovic in Texas as receivers coach for three years prior to his return to Chapel Hill...Worked with two of the Longhorns' finest receivers ever in Mike Adams and Lovell Pinkney...Two Texas quarterbacks threw for more than 1,000 yards in 1994...He was on the Texas staff when the Longhorns defeated the Tar Heels, 35-31, in the 1994 Sun Bowl.

Bryant played quarterback at Ohio University...He earned All-Mid-American Conference honors in 1967 and was the MAC Player of the Year in 1968...He led the Bobcats to MAC titles in 1967 and 1968...The latter year he accounted for five touchdowns, four passing and one by rush, a record which still stands, in the Tangerine Bowl (now called the Citrus Bowl) against Richmond...Was inducted into the Ohio University Hall of Fame in 1975 and the Citrus Bowl Hall of Fame in 1988.

ASSISTANT COACH RON CASE

• DEFENSIVE BACKS

AT NORTH CAROLINA: This is Case's first year as a member of the Tar Heel staff. He came to Carolina in January 1996.

RESPONSIBILITIES: Coaching the defensive backs. Recruiting areas include southern North Carolina, including Fayetteville, Hamlet, Lumberton and Wilmington, northeast Florida, Louisiana and junior colleges in Mississippi.

PREVIOUS COACHING EXPERIENCE: Carson-Newman College (defensive coordinator, linebackers, 1969-73); Maryville College (defensive coordinator, defensive backs, 1974); Fulton High School, Knoxville, Tenn. (head coach, 1975-76); West Texas State University (defensive backs, 1977); Carson-Newman College (head coach and athletics director, 1978-79); University of Richmond (assistant head coach, defensive coordinator, defensive backs, 1980-82); University of Mississippi (defensive backs, 1983-88); Vanderbilt University (defensive backs, 1989-94); Louisiana State University (defensive backs, 1995)

EDUCATION: Jeffersonville (Ind.) High School; Carson-Newman College, Jefferson City, Tenn. (B.S., physical education, health & recreation), 1973; University of Tennessee (master's, physical education, health & recreation), 1974.

PERSONAL: Born 3-15-38 in Brooksville, Ky. Married to the former Joan Johnson of Buckhorn, Ky. They have two children, David and Bonnie.

COACHING HIGHLIGHTS: Case joined the Carolina staff in January 1996 after spending the past 13 seasons coaching at three different schools in the Southeastern Conference...Rejoins Carl Torbush, the Tar Heels' defensive coordinator...Torbush played for Case at Carson-Newman College in the early 1970s...They led Carson-Newman to the 1972 NAIA championship game.

"My coaching philosophy is to put the best players on the field. Coach them to play as hard as they can within a scheme that uses their abilities and give us a chance to win."

— Ron Case

"Ron Case has worked with Carl Torbush for many years and even coached Carl at Carson-Newman. We felt last year we had a more aggressive defense and more of the personality that we want to work toward winning all of our games. Ron is a coach who believes in man coverage in the secondary, in blitzing, and in pressure. We feel this will give us an even more aggressive style that should attract the best cornerbacks in the country because they all want the challenge of bumping those wide receivers at the line of scrimmage and being competitive throughout the game."

— Head Coach Mack Brown

Has coached defensive backs each of the last 16 years...Last year he coached the LSU secondary...The Tigers led the SEC and were sixth in the nation in pass efficiency defense...LSU allowed opponents to complete just 46 percent of their passes, gave up a league-low 1,907 yards in the air and allowed a league-low eight touchdown passes...LSU played in a bowl game for the first time since 1989...The Tigers defeated Michigan State, 45-26, in the Independence Bowl.

He spent six years at Vanderbilt, including the first two years in which he served under head coach Watson Brown, brother of current UNC coach Mack Brown...In 1989 the Commodores held their opponents to less than 50 percent completions and in 1991 Vanderbilt ranked second in the SEC in pass defense...He went to two bowl games while at Ole Miss and helped the Rebels post the SEC's number-one rated defense in 1986.

From 1980-82 he was the assistant head coach and defensive coordinator at the University of Richmond...That stint followed a two-year run as the head coach and athletic director at Carson-Newman...He led his alma mater to the school's first winning record in five years in 1979...He had begun his coaching career at Carson-Newman in 1969 and was defensive coordinator and linebackers coach until 1973...He was also a student at Carson-Newman at the same time he coached defense.

• DEFENSIVE ENDS

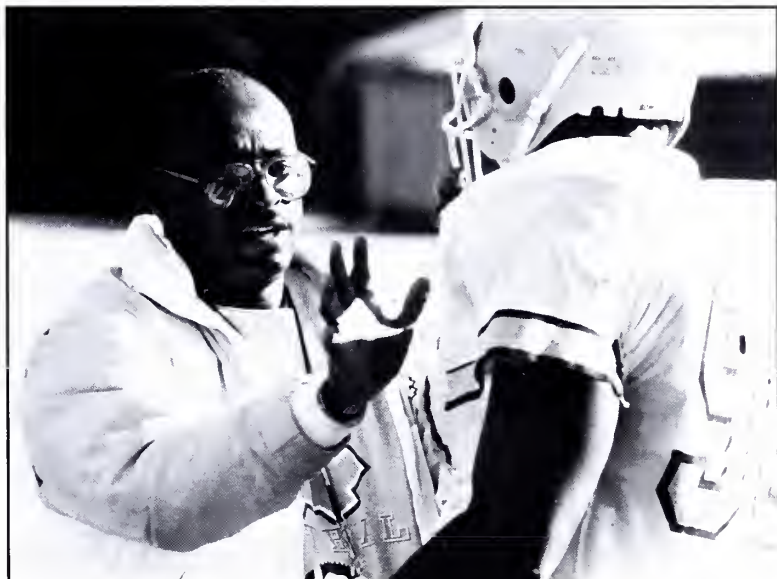

AT NORTH CAROLINA: This is Thompson's eighth season at the University of North Carolina. He joined the staff on March 15, 1989.

RESPONSIBILITIES: Coaching the defensive ends. Recruiting areas include southeast North Carolina — including Clinton, Goldsboro, Greenville, Jacksonville and Wilson — Washington, D.C., Maryland, northern Virginia and southeast Florida.

PREVIOUS COACHING EXPERIENCE: Connecticut (1975-81); Pittsburgh (defensive line, 1982-84); Western Kentucky (linebackers, 1985-86); East Carolina (defensive line/special teams, 1987-88); North Carolina (outside linebackers, 1989-1993; defensive ends, 1994-present).

PLAYING EXPERIENCE: Connecticut, 1972-74.

EDUCATION: Bogalusa (La.) High School, 1970; Connecticut (business administration), 1975; Connecticut (M.S., educational psychology), 1976.

PERSONAL: Born 10-23-53. He has two children, Don and Amie.

HIGHLIGHTS: Thompson is entering his 21st season as a collegiate coach, all on defense...Has worked at both linebacker positions and the line...Was an All-Yankee Conference and All-East linebacker at Connecticut...He captained the Huskies in 1974 and earned team Most Valuable Player honors.

"My coaching philosophy is based on five principles of success. One is fundamentals - teaching the necessary techniques and knowledge in order to develop as a great player. Two is focus - pay attention to details. Three is fairness - having a mature respect between player and coach at all times. Four is fun - teaching my players how to enjoy success on and off the playing field. Five is friends - I want my players to leave Chapel Hill as personal friends for life."

- Donnie Thompson

"Donnie Thompson has done a fabulous job of recruiting the eastern part of North Carolina. Most notably he recruited and then coached Marcus Jones, who became a number one draft choice this spring. Donnie is also coaching some of the best young players in the ACC at defensive end. He is helping guys like Russell Davis, Greg Ellis and Mike Pringley to develop into premier players on this level and beyond."

- Head Coach Mack Brown

Last year, he coached Greg Ellis, a first-team all-conference performer...Ellis was the first sophomore defensive lineman at Carolina to earn first-team All-ACC honors since current San Diego Charger Reuben Davis did so in 1985...Also tutored Russell Davis and Mike Pringley, both freshman starters...Davis was named the Tar Heels' rookie of the year.

Helped develop All-America Marcus Jones in 1994, who played defensive end his junior season before moving back to tackle as a senior...Thompson also coached Oscar Sturgis that year, a converted tight end, who is a member of the Super Bowl champion Dallas Cowboys.

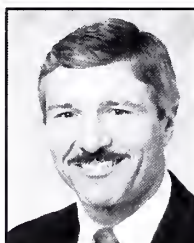

In 1993, the Tar Heels featured Bernardo Harris, one of the top outside linebackers in the conference...Harris made 90 tackles in 1992, the most by an Carolina OLB since Lawrence Taylor...Harris received second-team All-ACC recognition and now is a Green Bay Packer...Also coached former Tar Heel Jonathan Perry, who earned a share of UNC's Most Valuable Defensive Player award in 1992...Eric Gash was a second-team All-ACC selection in 1990 and 1991.

Thompson also coaches the Tar Heels' punt block team...Carolina blocked 17 punts from 1990-93...In 1993, UNC blocked four punts, two of which were recovered for touchdowns...A pair of blocked punts, one of which led to the tying score, was a spark in Carolina's 1993 Peach Bowl win over Mississippi State...Sports Illustrated named Bracey Walker, who blocked four kicks in 1993 and eight in his career, its 1993 National Special Teams Player of the Year.

During his career Thompson has developed three first round draft picks, including, while at Pitt, Bill Maas of Green Bay, Chris Doleman of Minnesota (now with San Francisco) and ECU's Robert Jones of the Cowboys (now with the Rams)...He also coached eventual NFL players Ernie Logan, John Jett and Vince Smith while in Greenville.

• LINEBACKERS

AT NORTH CAROLINA: This is Torbush's ninth year at the University of North Carolina. He joined the staff on December 28, 1987.

RESPONSIBILITIES: Defensive coordinator and coaching the linebackers. Recruiting areas include western North Carolina — including Asheville, Brevard and Hendersonville — north Georgia, Tennessee and southwest Virginia.

PREVIOUS COACHING EXPERIENCE: Carter High School, Knoxville, Tenn. (1974-75); Baylor (graduate assistant, 1975-76); Southeastern Louisiana (linebackers/defensive ends, 1976-79); Louisiana Tech (asst. head coach/linebackers, 1979-82); Mississippi (defensive coordinator/linebackers, 1983-86); Louisiana Tech (head coach, 1987); North Carolina (defensive coordinator/inside linebackers, 1988-1993; defensive coordinator/linebackers, 1994 -).

PLAYING EXPERIENCE: Carson-Newman, 1971-73.

EDUCATION: Austin-East High, Knoxville, Tenn., 1969; Tennessee, 1970; Carson-Newman (B.S., physical education, health and recreation), 1974; Baylor (M.S., physical education and health), 1976.

PERSONAL: Born 10-11-51. He and his wife, Janet, who has her Ph.D. in education, have a son, Trey (6).

HIGHLIGHTS: Has developed Carolina into one of the premier defensive teams in the nation...The Tar Heels led the ACC and were sixth in the country in total defense at 267.3 yards per game last year...The next closest-rated team in the conference allowed nearly 60 more yards per game...Only ACC team ranked in the top 25 in the nation in total defense...Second in the ACC in pass efficiency defense, second in scoring defense, first in first downs allowed and third in rushing defense...It was the first UNC team to lead the ACC in total defense since 1983...The Tar Heels also led the league in sacks.

Middle linebacker Kivuusama Mays led the team in tackles (138) while earning a first-team all-conference nod, outside linebacker Brian Simmons was second on the team in tackles (113)...Tackle Marcus Jones was ACC Defensive Player of the Year and consensus All-America...Mays' 12.5 tackles per game ranked fourth in the ACC, and he was the 10th all-conference selection at linebacker in Torbush's eight years at UNC.

In 1994, Carolina was third in the ACC and 27th in the nation in total defense, giving up 319.3 yards per game...The Tar Heels were fourth in the league and 16th nationally in rushing defense (115.2 ypg)...All three starting linebackers made NFL rosters in 1994, including Mike Morton (Raiders), Eddie Mason (Jets) and Kerry Mock

"My philosophy as a coach as well as a person is to enable every young man I touch to develop to the fullest academically, athletically, socially and spiritually. Through discipline, guidance, hard work and a special coach/player love, I expect a young man to leave Carolina feeling he has become the best student, athlete and person possible. When you think Carolina, you think Integrity, Honesty and Character, which equates to CLASS. Coaching here enables me to coach at a school in which I truly believe and respect what it represents. When you talk about balance between academics, athletics and social atmosphere, there are few schools that can compete with Carolina. Very few people can teach, coach and work at a place in which they so strongly believe...I can!"

— Carl Torbush

"Carl Torbush has been one of the top defensive coordinators in the country for many years. He has taken our defense from an inexperienced one to a very good unit to one of the best defenses in the country last year. Because of his ability to communicate with the kids and his innovation and adaptability, we are steadily developing into one of the top defensive teams in the country. Running backs have gotten a lot of attention at Carolina, but we have had as many NFL and all-conference linebackers as just about anybody in the country. Carl has coached a large number of those that are active in the NFL at this time."

— Head Coach Mack Brown

(Buccaneers).

In 1993 the Tar Heels ranked second in the conference in total defense and run defense...UNC led the ACC in quarterback sacks, ranked seventh in the nation in run defense (102.5 ypg) and 21st in the country in total defense (322.3 ypg)...The Tar Heels blanked Clemson, 24-0, marking only the second time since 1979 that the Tigers were shut out...Carolina limited the Tigers to just three yards rushing, the fewest by a Tiger team since 1947...Seven members of the defensive unit earned first-, second- or third-team All-ACC honors in 1993.

In the second half of the 1993 Peach Bowl victory over Mississippi State, the Tar Heels yielded just a field goal in 50 plays...In 1991 the Tar Heels placed three players on the All-ACC defensive teams...Tommy Thigpen was first-team All-ACC...Dwight Hollier was taken in the fourth round of the 1992 draft by the Miami Dolphins and has started the last four years...In 1990, the Tar Heels set a school record and led the ACC with 45 QB sacks and Hollier and Thigpen each earned All-ACC recognition.

Torbush gave up the head coaching job at Louisiana Tech to join the Tar Heel staff...Has coached at the collegiate level for 19 years...Began at Baylor as a graduate assistant under Grant Teaff and took his first full-time job at Southeastern Louisiana...SLU went 28-12-1 in his four years...Also coached baseball at SLU...Was the assistant head coach at Louisiana Tech from 1979-82 — the Bulldogs were ranked second in the nation in Division I-AA in 1982...Was the defensive coordinator at Ole Miss for four years and took the Rebels' defense from last in the Southeastern Conference to first in 1986...Ole Miss went to two bowl games during his tenure in Oxford.

Is a native of East Spencer, N.C...All-state baseball and football player at Austin-East High in Knoxville...Attended Tennessee for one year, transferred to Carson-Newman and graduated from the Jefferson City, Tenn., school in 1974...Was first-team All-America at Carson-Newman in both football and baseball and played a year in the Kansas City Royals' organization...Member of the Carson-Newman and Knoxville Halls of Fame...Named to the Carson-Newman football and baseball teams of the century.

HIGHLIGHTS: In his fourth year as offensive line coach at UNC...The Tar Heels averaged 396.5 yards of offense per game in 1995...Offensive line allowed just 12 quarterback sacks on the season, despite Carolina attempting more passes than any other year in school history...Coached center Jeff Saturday and right tackle Russell Babb to honorable mention all-conference honors.

In 1994, he was charged with rebuilding the line after losing four senior starters to graduation...Also lost two potential starters to injury, one in preseason and another in the fourth week of the season...After their injuries, Babb started at right guard for four games before suffering a broken fibula against Virginia...He was replaced by Mike Hobgood in the final four games of the season...That unit was led by second-team All-ACC right tackle Roge Purgason...Despite their youth, the offensive linemen led

"I ask the players whom I coach to draw on as much of their mental, physical and emotional abilities to accomplish an individual task which is incorporated into a group effort. The fun and excitement comes when a young man reaches for the limits of his talents and realizes he is an important part of helping his team succeed."

— Eddie Williamson

"Eddie Williamson has worked with Bill Dooley, Vince Dooley, Grant Teaff and has been successful coaching the passing game as well as the running game. I think one of the true keys to Eddie Williamson's success as a line coach is that he really doesn't care whether you throw the ball or run. He has the great expertise in both phases to give you a chance to be successful and use the variety we would like to use on Saturdays."

the Tar Heels to a league-leading 226.9 rushing yards per game...Carolina also allowed only 16 sacks.

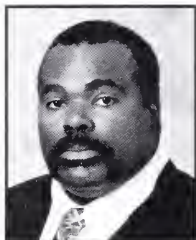

In 1993, the Tar Heels produced two 1,000-yard backs and averaged 253 yards rushing, the top figure in the ACC by more than 30 yards per game...That was also the seventh-highest total in the country...The line allowed just 20 quarterback sacks in 12 games...The Tar Heels also had the fewest number of penalties in the ACC despite playing a 12th regular-season game...Tackle Ethan Albright, now a Miami Dolphin, was a first-team All-ACC choice and tackle Curtis Parker and guard Shawn Hocker were second-team selections...The Tar Heels had four players receive ACC Line-man-of-the-Week honors.

JEFF MADDEN
Associate Athletic Director for Student-Athlete Development

Jeff Madden is in his fourth year at Carolina and his second as associate athletic director for student-athlete development at the University of North Carolina. He joined the Tar Heel staff in January 1993. Madden came to Chapel Hill from the University of Colorado where he had worked for four years. Madden was recently named the National Strength and Conditioning Specialist of the Year for 1996. He became just the second person to receive the Stan Jones Award from the International Sport Sciences Association as the country's top speed-strength coordinator.

Madden, 35, coordinated strength and conditioning programs for all 15 of Colorado's intercollegiate sports from August 1989 until his joining the Tar Heel staff. In 1990, during Madden's tenure, the Buffalo football program was selected national champions by the Associated Press.

He went to Colorado from Rice University, where he was the associate strength and conditioning coordinator from 1984-89. Previously, he was a graduate assistant football coach at the University of Cincinnati in 1983. Madden also played one year of professional football with the Memphis Showboats of the United States Football League.

A 1983 graduate of Vanderbilt University, he earned his B.S. in sociology with a minor in psychology and secondary education. He was a high school All-America as a prep at St. Joseph's High in Cleveland.

Madden is a member of the Board of Directors of Peak Performance USA, is on the Editorial Advisory Board of Sports Speed Magazine and is a certified expert by the National Association of Speed and Explosion. He has a 602-pound bench press to his credit. That makes him one of the top bench pressers in the world.

He was certified in May 1991 by the International Sports Sciences Association, recognizing him as one of the leaders in the profession of sports development in the world. He was also a unanimous selection to the ISSA Board of Directors.

A Cleveland native, Madden was born on June 12, 1961. He is married to the former Brenda Hamer. They have two children, Brandon (9), and Bryan (6).

GEORGE SMITH
Assistant Director of Strength and Conditioning

George Smith is in his fourth year as director of strength and conditioning for Olympic sports and assistant director of strength and conditioning. Smith joined the Tar Heel program from the University of Colorado where he worked for the Buffalos in 1992 and was a member of Colorado's Fiesta Bowl squad.

Smith's home is Denmark, S.C., where he attended Denmark-Olar High School and was the 1978 State AA High School "Line-man of the Year." He graduated from the University of South Carolina in 1983 with a B.S. in criminal justice and received his master's in education in 1986.

A two-year letterman at the University of South Carolina in the early 1980s, Smith was a teammate of Heisman Trophy winner George Rogers. In 1984, while coaching as an assistant strength and conditioning coach, the Gamecocks compiled a 10-2 record, the best single-season record in school history.

Smith was the director of strength and conditioning at Georgia

Southern University from 1989-91 and was a member of two national championship teams. The 1989 team posted 15 victories, an NCAA record for most wins in a season. Smith has played or coached in seven bowl games.

He is a certified strength coach by the International Sports Science Association and a member of the National Strength Coaches Association. In 1991 he won the "American Drug Free Power Lifting Deadlift Championship" when he set a national record of 745 pounds. In 1987 he won first place in the Mr. Jr. South Carolina bodybuilding championship. He also won the teenage national powerlifting championship from 1977-79.

Born July 25, 1959, Smith married to the former Michelle Hedgepeth.

DAN BEREZOWITZ
Graduate Assistant Coach

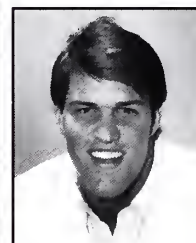

Dan Berezowitz is starting his first season as a graduate assistant coach at Carolina. He has worked with the Tar Heel staff the last two seasons as a video editing assistant, where he has compiled all the computer scouting reports and created video cutups for the defense.

A 1993 graduate of the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, Berezowitz earned a degree in athletic administration. He also played quarterback for the Warhawks, who won two conference championships and played two years in the NCAA Division III playoffs.

Berezowitz worked as a student assistant coach for two seasons for his father who is the head coach at UW-Whitewater. The first season he coached receivers and the second he coached the defensive backs. Also in Berezowitz's time at Whitewater he served as a player-coach of a summer Home Talent baseball team.

Berezowitz, 25, is married to the former Jane Schumacher and they reside in Chapel Hill.

At the University of North Carolina, athletes are still, first and foremost, students in the classroom. While most universities make that claim, Carolina can substantiate it.

In October 1986, North Carolina opened its doors to its new Student-Athlete Development Center, located at the east end of Kenan Stadium, adjacent to Kenan Fieldhouse. The Center is a 10,000 square-foot state-of-the-art academic facility that sets the standard for other universities to follow.

"The Department of Athletics has always been committed to academics," says John Blanchard, Director of Academic Support Program. "But they felt they needed to make a tangible sign of their commitment by putting in a building that could really serve the students, and they went about doing it in a first-class manner. They erected the best building of its kind in the country."

The academics center boasts an impressive array of facilities for the benefit of all Tar Heel student-athletes in the 27-sport program. Included in the building, convenient to dorms and classrooms alike, are computers, a resource room, a language lab with tape players, seven tutorial rooms, a large classroom which can be divided into two smaller ones and a 128-seat auditorium, used for seminars and lectures.

The center has 15 computers and two laser printers as well as a variety of multi-media software packages which include word processing programs, spreadsheets, CD-ROM reference materials and tutorials. The center has now has the latest and most up-to-date computer systems in place.

Also, Blanchard has assembled an enthusiastic and highly competent staff which includes Brian Davis, the associate director, academic counselors Jean Bryant and Caroline Furry. Doug Roberts serves as the office assistant.

"The academic success of student-athletes is most directly attributed to the students themselves, but we have an outstanding staff, dedicated and professional and very caring individuals.

"When students struggle in college," says Blanchard, "95 percent of the time that struggle is in their freshman year, and that's due to all the adjustments they need to make. We have a program and staff that aids in those adjustments and minimizes the struggle.

"It involves getting our students fully acquainted with the University and the resources available to them. They learn about what we have to offer, the University advisory system, the University processes and procedures — everything that's available to them academically."

To try and ensure that athletes will not run into early academic difficulty, Blanchard and his able staff teach the freshmen necessary study skills, such as note taking and time management, and all freshman football players are required to attend study hall every night Sunday through Thursday at the Center. On those nights, tutors are available to assist the student-athletes in a variety of subjects. Also, a Freshman Academic Success seminar is held weekly in the fall and is required of selected freshman athletes.

The Center is open from 8 a.m. to midnight during the week and from 6 p.m. to midnight on Sundays. During those hours, the facility is in almost constant use.

"Our students make great use of it," says Blanchard. "They use it for a variety of purposes and they use it throughout the day."

Blanchard estimates that in any given week, that at least half of the University's 650 athletes use the Center.

The statistics bear out the fact that the Center has made an impact. In eight of the last 10 years, and in seven of Mack Brown's first eight years in Chapel Hill, the Tar Heels have received honorable mention recognition from the College Football Association for graduating at least 70 percent of its football players. The CFA uses a five-year period from matriculation to graduation to base its awards.

In the last eight years, Carolina has placed 29 players on the ACC All-Academic Team. Since 1985, Carolina has more than doubled the number of student-athletes on the ACC Honor Roll.

In 1991 Randy Jordan earned an award for academic and athletic excellence from the National Association for Academic Advisors for Athletes. In 1992 Corey Holliday was named to the Hitachi/CFA Scholar-Athlete Team. Holliday was the only player from the ACC to be named to the team. Holliday also was a recipient of the ACC Postgraduate Scholarship. While finishing his master's degree in sports administration, Holliday has served as an intern in the ACC office.

Jonathan Perry and Johnathan Robertson, members of the 1992 Peach Bowl team, are second-year law students. Perry, the Tar Heel's Defensive MVP, is studying at Emory, and Robertson is earning his degree from Harvard. Four players from the 1993 football team are medical students. Mike Armstrong, Shawn Hocker and Lawrence Winslow are attending UNC, and Mike Bolognesi is studying at Duke. Mike Morton was named to the 1994 Academic All-ACC football team and was named to the CFA/Hitachi Scholar-Athlete Team.

Russell Babb, a senior offensive tackle in 1995, was also named to the Academic All-ACC Team, the CFA/Hitachi Scholar-Athlete Team, was the Weaver-James ACC Postgraduate Scholarship recipient for football, and was the ACC's top senior football-playign scholar-athlete. Babb will be attending the UNC School of Law beginning in the fall of 1996.

Blanchard emphasizes that the Student-Athlete Development Center is only "one concrete way in which things have become better. The Department of Athletics also initiated moving the academic support program into the College of Arts and Sciences. That has put us under the supervision of the University, which has been a very positive move."

Under Mack Brown, the football program has renewed its resolve to provide the best education possible for its students.

"The football program is in a position now where we are really doing things to maximize the academic opportunities here," says Blanchard.

"Coach Brown has been very supportive and creative in developing academic standards for the team and pressing the players to reach those standards. That's been very helpful to us as a program."

Carolina has a high graduation rate for players in the NFL. According to Blanchard, "78 percent of former Tar Heels that are active NFL players have earned their degrees from Carolina. Statistics indicate that our student-athletes strive for excellence on and off the field."

RUSSELL BABB (center) was named the ACC's Top Senior Student-Athlete for football and was named to the CFA/Hitachi Scholar-Athlete Team. John Blanchard (left) and Brian Davis coordinate the academic support program for athletes.

The University of North Carolina strength and conditioning program underwent a new look in 1993, in attitude and philosophy, as well as in its physical appearance. And the advancements thus far have been nothing short of spectacular.

Jeff Madden joined the Tar Heels following the 1993 Peach Bowl and brought with him an enthusiastic, spirited style. Madden, an associate athletic director, and assistant strength and conditioning director George Smith, made structural and philosophical changes in the Tar Heels' strength and conditioning regimen which bolstered the advancements made in the first five years of the Mack Brown era at Carolina.

Madden was a key element in the University of Colorado's rise to national prominence in the late 1980s. A former offensive lineman at Vanderbilt and a member of the USFL's Memphis Showboats in 1984, Madden joined the Buffaloes in 1989 and was on hand as the Colorado won three consecutive Big Eight titles and was co-national champion in 1990.

Madden is not your average strength coach. He also teaches plyometrics, flexibility, mental toughness, nutrition, stretching, Proprioceptive Neuro-Muscular Facilitation (PNF), rehabilitation techniques and motivation. He is certified by International Sports Science Associations, the National Association of Speed and Explosion, and Peak Performance USA. He is a well sought-after clinician and motivational speaker.

This past offseason Madden was named the National Strength Coach of the Year by the International Sports Sciences Association. The award is named after former Chicago Bear lineman Stan Jones.

E.J. "Doc" Kreis, strength coach at Colorado, tutored Madden when he played at Vanderbilt and was the ISAA's 1994 Stan Jones award recipient. "I believe the ISAA recognized a true pioneer in speed-strength and conditioning," Kreis said of Madden's award. "I've seen natural progress in his abilities. I had him as a player and as a coach. For what the Stan Jones Award stands for, there could be no finer recipient."

Explosion is a key component to the Tar Heels' regimen. Speed and explosion go hand in hand and Madden's football background serves him well in his training methods.

The Tar Heels deemphasized a power style of training and instead installed a program which centers around speed, explosive power and flexibility.

"There is a big difference in philosophies," says Madden. "Now we are concentrating on flexibility, we concentrate on explosion. We mimic the exercises that they perform on the football field."

"The difference is more between power and explosion than between power and strength. You can be a 400-pound bench press guy and not be able to run. Then you don't have explosion. Speed and strength equals explosion. What we try and do is cross-formulate the two."

With changes in philosophy come adaptations and adjustments in the physical elements of the weight room itself.

"We have made tremendous physical changes around here," says Mad-

"It's vital to know how each of the positions has to move. The key for us is to get our linemen running like linebackers, our linebackers running like defensive backs and our wide receivers and backs running like Carl Lewis."

-- Jeff Madden, National Strength Coach of the Year

den. "This was basically a nautilus-oriented gym and what we did was move the majority of those nautilus machines out and turn us into a free weight team. Now we are using explosive lifts like power cleans and snatches."

Madden does prefer the free weight system to the nautilus approach and says the extra benefits the free weights allow can be applied more readily to the game of football.

"A nautilus machine takes you through the same range of motion every time," Madden says. "When lifting a free weight you can go out of that range of motion. It is undetermined which way it is going to go. In a bench press or military press your left arm may not be as strong as your right therefore you have to over-compensate or work on that arm. Free weights allow that."

"It's just like playing against a defensive lineman. One play he may go left, the next he may go right or he may come right at you, you never know. Free weights help you overcome weaknesses. That's why we use explosive movements with our free weights and dumbbells."

Madden has identified the football-specific movements and applied his training techniques to them.

"Football is short, quick and powerful. If we were training long distance runners we would use more endurance exercises. But since we are training football players we have more quick and explosive exercises. We do use endurance as a foundation, though."

"Flexibility plays a big part because the more you can stretch a muscle then the more it can grow. If you have greater flexibility then you can improve your running technique and when you do that you can increase your speed and quickness and strength. Then you can have a pretty good football player."

Madden's football playing background is obviously a positive influence, as well.

"Knowing exactly what it was like to be in the trenches and understanding what the game is all about has helped me tremendously," says Madden. "It's vital to know how each of the positions have to move. The key for us is to get our linemen running like linebackers, our linebackers running like defensive backs and our wide receivers and backs running like Carl Lewis."

"I can see in a drill whether a guy is getting beat by a strong move or a quick move. I can watch and tell if a player is getting beat on a particular side and then help him work to correct that deficiency."

"The bottom line is all I ask is that they work as hard and as diligently as they can every time they're in here."

What is the Educational Foundation? The Educational Foundation is the oldest foundation on the UNC campus and holds a status comparable to the Business Foundation, the Medical Foundation and other fund-raising organizations working for the benefit of the University.

What is the purpose of the Educational Foundation? The Educational Foundation was established to offer financial aid to worthy student-athletes seeking an education at the University of North Carolina and to support the University's athletic program by providing services and funds for the construction of facilities or purchase of equipment.

How much support does the Educational Foundation actually provide? Since its founding in 1938, the Educational Foundation has provided scholarships, either partial or full, to over 6,000 student-athletes. Nearly 400 will be awarded scholarships during the 1996-97 school year at a cost of more than $4 million.

Is the Educational Foundation similar to a booster club? Absolutely not. It is a foundation in every sense of the word. The Educational Foundation operates in compliance with all rules and regulations of the National Collegiate Athletic Association and the Atlantic Coast Conference. It is a tax-exempt entity as recognized by the Internal Revenue Service.

What are the different levels of giving to the Educational Foundation?

LITTLE RAM ($50) — Contributions of any amount are welcome, however, individuals contributing $50 or more have the opportunity to purchase season football tickets, the location of which is subject to the point system; gain access to the Rams Room in Kenan Fieldhouse for home football games; participate in football and basketball ticket exchanges; purchase group travel packages; receive the RamPage Newsletter, car window decals and invitations to annual Foundation functions which feature Carolina coaches as guest speakers.

RAM ($150) — In addition to that above, a Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase mini-season basketball ticket packages when available and receive football and basketball media guides.

RAMESES ($300) — In addition to the benefits received at the Ram level, a Rameses donor has the opportunity to purchase two season football tickets in a preferred location; additional tickets may be purchased, location subject to the point system.

BIG RAM ($600) — In addition to the benefits received at the Ram level, a Big Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase four season football tickets in a preferred location and receive an assigned parking space.

SUPER RAM ($1,200) — In addition to the benefits received at the Ram level, a Super Ram donor has the opportunity to purchase up to eight season football tickets in a preferred location and receive an assigned parking space.

Can a donor contribute in ways other than through the annual giving program? Yes. Carolina was one of the first schools in the nation to set up an endowment program for athletics. This program consists of $15,000 and $30,000 life memberships as well as $50,000 and $100,000 endowed scholarships which may be set up through various giving vehicles.

In addition, the Foundation is in the midst of a $35 million campaign to renovate and expand Kenan Stadium.

Does the Foundation have chapters at the local level? There are currently 45 local Educational Foundation chapters which meet once a year. Many of the coaches attend these gatherings, giving donors an early opportunity to hear about recruiting, prospects for the upcoming season and schedules.

Who provides the leadership for the Educational Foundation? The Foundation's outside officers include a Chairman, three Vice-Chairmen, a Secretary, Treasurer, Assistant Treasurer, Counsel and Past Chairman. These officers, together with the at-large members and an Investment Committee, comprise the Executive Committee. The Executive Committee is the decision-making body of the Educational Foundation and reports its actions to the Board of Directors.

The leadership within the Foundation office is provided by Moyer G. Smith. He is in his 10th year as President. He was appointed to the position in December 1986. There are also four vice-presidents within the office: John D. Cherry, Executive Vice-President; Neal B. Harrell, V.P. for Donor Services; Sue Walsh Stankavage, V.P. for Endowment; and Dawn D. McPherson, Administrative V.P. Effective August 1992, Ernie Williamson retired as V.P. for Endowment but continues to serve as a consultant to the Foundation.

Where are the Educational Foundation offices located? The offices are located in the Maurice J. Koury Natatorium adjacent to the Dean E. Smith Center.

How can one become a contributor to the Educational Foundation? By contacting the Educational Foundation at (919) 962-2393 or by writing P.O. Box 2446, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27515.

Nestled among the tall pine trees near the center of the Carolina campus is Kenan Stadium. It is here in this natural valley that Tar Heel football teams have played for 69 years.

Kenan Stadium is generally regarded as one of the most beautiful football venues in the nation. Considering its majestic setting among the Carolina pines, many say it is the most beautiful.

One national sports magazine rated Kenan one of the five best places in America to watch a college football game. For scenery, atmosphere and charm, it cannot be surpassed.

The stadium has been expanded several times since its completion in 1927. In each instance, though, great care was taken to keep its fundamental beauty intact.

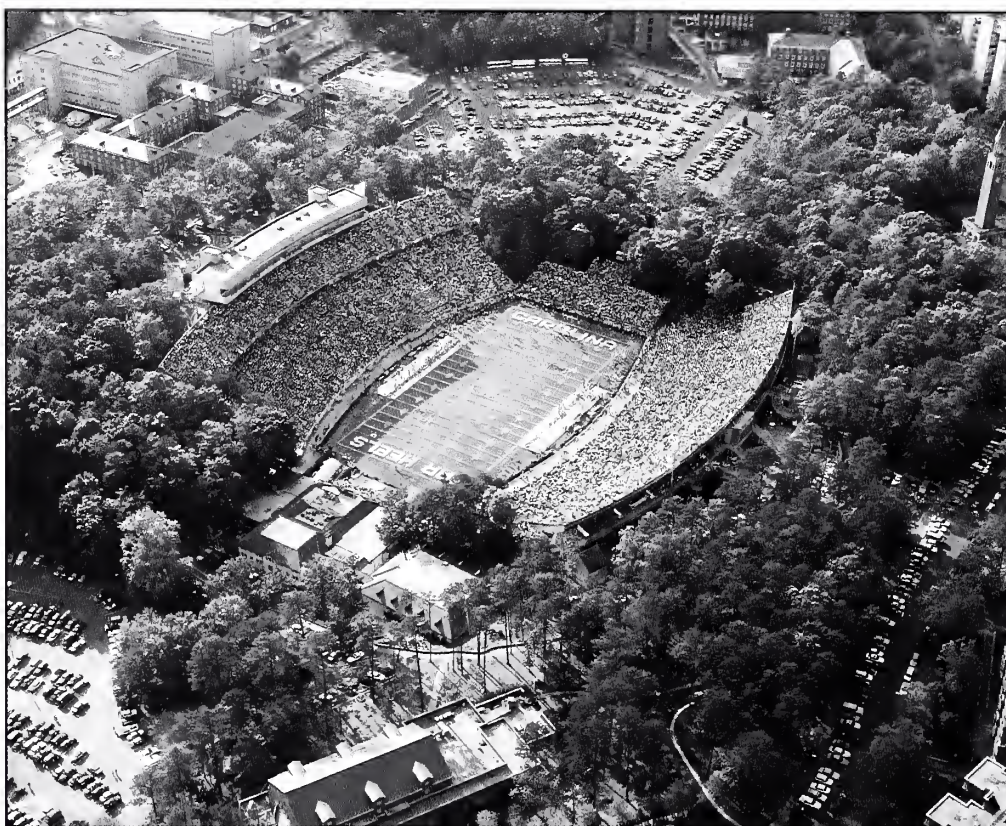

A new playing field was installed in the spring of 1995. The new turf includes an improved drainage system beneath the field that drains through the field itself rather than off the sides of the field as in the past.

This past offseason the restrooms and concession stands were expanded and renovated and the bleachers in the end zone nearest the Bell Tower were removed in order to prepare for construction of the new Frank Kenan Football Center. That facility, scheduled to open in time for the start of the 1997 season, will house the Tar Heel dressing room as well as a new strength and conditioning facility, training room, meeting rooms, players' lounge and coaches' offices. Stadium capacity will eventually increase to 60,000 as the project aims to eventually tie the north and south concourses to either end of the lower deck. The Frank Kenan Center will be built directly behind and under those seats. The expansion project also includes a North Side Stadium Preferred Seating Box with a capacity of 1,000.

"This is one of the most important and most challenging projects that Carolina Athletics and The Educational Foundation have ever undertaken," says Director of Athletics John D. Swofford. "It is similar in scope to the Dean E. Smith Center project. Our goal is to maintain the aesthetics of Kenan Stadium while expanding it and modernizing it in a way that we can keep pace with the facilities at programs such as Michigan and Penn State, as well as those of our Atlantic Coast Conference colleagues."

KENAN MEMORIAL STADIUM is one of the most beautiful athletic venues in the country. A record crowd of 54,300 watched on Oct. 29, 1994, as the Tar Heels defeated N.C. State, 31-17.

"It is vitally important to the future of Carolina football and our overall athletic program that we expand and improve in order to meet the challenges of the future and to give our program a chance to reach its full potential. Now is the time to do so, and I am extremely excited about this project and the partnership that Carolina Athletics and The Educational Founda-

COLLEGE FOOTBALL MOST BEAUTIFUL SETTING

"Those who have designed and built this structure have had a high sense of the fitness of things. Its location is more than merely suitable; it is well nigh perfect. It would be so anywhere, but it is peculiarly so in Chapel Hill, fitting as it does in the essential spirit of the University community. For the stadium rests, not in the midst of streets and buildings and people and things, but in the heart of the hills and trees. It is completely surrounded by nature herself; and man-made though it is, it fits into, and becomes a part of the surroundings. It belongs to the hills and the woodland, and curiously enough they seem to belong to it."

Greensboro Daily News, 1927 Dedication Day editorial

tion, as well as the University, have forged to meet this challenge."

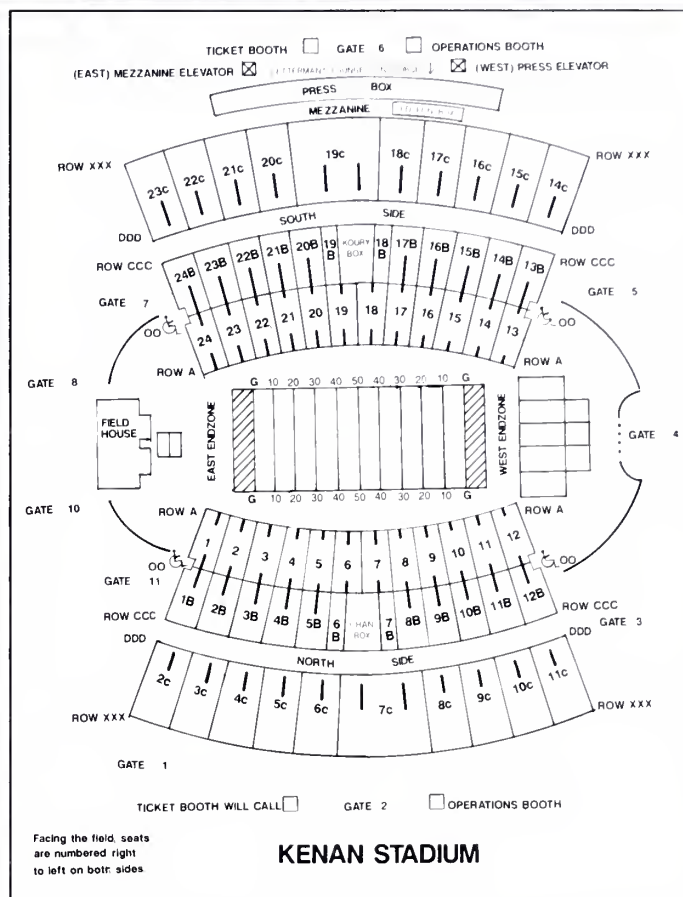

The last stadium expansion took place prior to 1988 and involved adding 2,000 choice seats between the 40-yard lines where the press box and chancellor's box formerly stood. A new press box was constructed on top of the upper deck on the stadium's south side. It is a one-level elongated structure, running from 10-yard line to 10-yard line. The press box is one of the finest facilities of its kind in the nation.

Also part of the project were a permanent lighting system, a chancellor's lounge on the north side of the field and a football lettermen's lounge on the south side. The lights are part of a General Electric low-mount system which minimizes the height of the lightpoles. A similar system is used at Soldier Field, home of the Chicago Bears.

Cost of the entire project was $7 million. It was funded by private gifts and bonds.

"Kenan Stadium is aesthetically a very special sports arena and a great deal of thought was given to these improvements," says Swofford. "Their aim is to maintain and even enhance the beauty of the stadium."

William Rand Kenan Jr. deserves the credit for originally making the stadium a part of the University. He was born in North Carolina in 1873 and graduated from Carolina in 1894. An international industrialist, Kenan discovered carbide and made monumental progress in the field of chemistry. During his business career he was president of The Florida East Coast Railroad, The Florida East Coast Hotel Company, The West Palm Beach Water Company and the Florida East Coast Car Ferry Company.

He was a director of Florida Power and Light Company and built the first power plant in Miami in the early 1900s.

The stadium was built as a memorial to his parents, William R. Kenan and Mary Hargrave Kenan. Construction began in November 1926 and was completed the following August. Complete cost of the stadium and accompanying fieldhouse was $303,000.

Originally, the stadium was to be built through funds raised by alumni donations and by June 1926, a group of nearly 40 alumni had contributed $27,926. At this time, however, a copy of the prospectus and plan of financing the stadium came into the hands of Mr. Kenan who expressed an interest in the proposal. Kenan was considering establishing a memorial to his parents and the pressing need for a stadium and the possibilities of the beauty, dignity and permanence it presented, suggested to him that the benefaction he contemplated may well take the form of a memorial stadium. The Stadium Committee immediately endorsed his proposal and on the very day in November 1926 on which Kenan visited the planned site, he announced his financial gift to build the stadium.

As originally built, the stadium seated 24,000. However, in 1963 the benefactor added portable stands and then an upper

The 1991 season opener versus Cincinnati and the Clemson game, which was televised nationally by ESPN, were the first true night games ever played at Kenan Stadium. A total of eight night games have been played since the lights were installed.

WHY TAR HEELS?

University of North Carolina athletic teams are known as the Tar Heels because North Carolina is "The Tar Heel State."

One legend has the nickname being applied to the state's residents as long ago as the Revolutionary War. According to this story, the troops of British General Cornwallis were fording what is now known as the Tar River between Rocky Mount and Battleboro when they discovered that tar had been dumped into the stream to impede their crossing. When they finally got across the river they found their feet completely black with tar. Their observation that anyone who waded North Carolina rivers would acquire tar heels led to the nickname first being used.

Others say the nickname was acquired during the War Between the States. During one of that war's fiercest battles a column supporting North Carolina troops was driven from the field. After the battle, the North Carolinians who had successfully fought it out alone, happened to meet the regiment which had fled to safety and were greeted with the question, "Any more tar down in the Old North State, boys?"

"No, not a bit," shot back one of the North Carolina soldiers. "Old Jeff's bought it all up," he went on, referring to Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy.

"Is that so? What's he going to do with it?"

"He's going to put it on you'ns heels to make you stick better in the next fight."

Upon hearing of the incident, Robert E. Lee smiled and said to a fellow officer, "God bless the Tar Heel boys."

A letter found in 1991 by State Archivist David Olson lends credence to another more direct theory. A letter from Maj. Joseph Engelhard describes a fight involving men from North Carolina in which Lee was heard to have said, "There they stand as if they have tar on their heels."

The letter, dated August 24, 1864, told the tale of a battle on the outskirts of Petersburg, Va. Engelhard was elected secretary of state for North Carolina in 1876.

ALMA MATER

Hark the sound of Tar Heel voices
Ringing clear and true
Singing Carolina's praises, Shouting "NCU"

Hail to the brightest star of all!
Clear its radiance shine
Carolina, priceless gem,
Receives all praises thine.

(refrain)

For I'm a Tar Heel born
I'm a Tar Heel bred,
And when I die
I'm a Tar Heel dead.
So it's —
Rah Rah, Carolina-lina
Rah Rah, Carolina-lina
Rah Rah, Carolina!
Rah! Rah! Rah!

fullback named Jack Merritt. Merritt was nicknamed "the battering ram" for the way he plunged into lines. It seemed natural to Huggins to link a mascot with Merritt's unusual sobriquet.

"Charlie Woollen, the athletic business manager at that time, plete with a monogram blanket on his back, Rameses helped make the pep rally one of the school's greatest.

Then the ram was taken to Emerson Field where Carolina was an underdog to a strong VMI team. But, for three quarters the Tar Heels battled the visitors to a scoreless tie.

Late in the fourth period Carolina's Bunn Hackney was called upon to attempt a field goal. Before taking the field he stopped to rub Rameses' head for good luck.

Seconds later Hackney's 30-yard dropkick sailed between the goalposts, giving the Tar Heels a 3-0 victory and a legendary mascot.

Tar Heels rams have traveled everywhere from New York City (for the Carolina-Notre Dame game in 1949) to Jacksonville for Carolina's Gator Bowl appearances.

SCHOOL COLORS

The adoption of light blue and white as the University of North Carolina's colors dates back to the 19th Century.

When the University reopened following the War Between the States, most social activities were directed by two literary societies, the Dialectic and Philanthropic.

The official color of the Di was light blue and that of the Phi white. Since society membership was compulsory for all students, the opinions and activities of these organizations were by nature of circumstances all embracing. It was the custom for all men from localities west of Chapel Hill to affiliate with the Di and generally for students from the east to become members of the Phi.

On public occasions such as commencement exercises, the student officers, marshals and ball managers were chosen equally from the membership of the two societies. It had long been the custom of each society for its members to wear its color on such occasions. However, the chief marshal and chief ball manager, one from the Di and the other from the Phi, wore combination light blue and white regalias and rosettes signifying that they represented the whole student body and not just one of the societies.

Later, when intercollegiate athletics were established and students began accompanying teams to other colleges or cities, the question of what to wear became a problem. Certainly, the students wanted to be associated with the University, but the school had no official colors. So it seemed only natural for the fans to adorn themselves with the same combination as that used by the chief marshals and ball managers, colors which represented not membership in a society, but a University student body.

In 1969, Michael Hooker became the first in his family to earn a college degree. That pursuit took him from the coalfields of southwest Virginia to the classrooms of the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill.

Hooker credits the strong work ethic of his family — his father was a coalminer — and his parents' steadfast faith in the value of education with his academic success at Carolina and beyond.

Twenty-six years after leaving Chapel Hill to pursue graduate degrees in philosophy, Hooker returned as Carolina's eighth chancellor. He started the job July 1, 1995.

Hooker's appointment continued an academic career that is extraordinary for a man of his years. He was president of a prestigious private school, Bennington College, at age 36; president of the University of Maryland-Baltimore County at age 40; and president of the five-campus University of Massachusetts system at age 47. Hooker took the helm of UNC-Chapel Hill, one of the nation's most respected public universities, at age 49.

"Of all the candidates interviewed during the search process, Michael had the keenest sense of the business of achieving excellence at the university," says Greensboro's William J. Armfield IV, chairman of the UNC-CH Board of Trustees. "It was clear that he had an uncompromising commitment to making Chapel Hill the number one public university in the nation and felt no obstacle was so great that together we could not achieve our goal."

Under Hooker's leadership, strengthening the university's ties with the state, including services to citizens and relations with members of the North Carolina General Assembly and other key leaders, has been a major objective. "There is one reason and one reason only for having a public university that is tax supported, and that is to serve the public,"

Hooker says. "That should be the touchstone of everything we do — whether it is in the public interest and whether we are fulfilling the public trust."

The chancellor champions the cause of all public education in North Carolina, including K-12, community colleges and the university system, because the state's economic future is at stake. "The competitive advantage of the state of North Carolina in the 21st century will be secured only by the extent to which we invest wisely in cultivating and nurturing the development of brain power," Hooker says. "Brain power will be everything to an economy in the 21st century."

North Carolina's citizens must be ready for a new age marked by scientific and technological revolution and a shift from an energy-based economy to a knowledge-based economy, he says.

That's among the reasons the School of Education focuses on serving Tar Heel public schools. "We are passionately determined to do everything within our power to improve the preparedness of the students we send as new teachers into the public schools," Hooker says. "We are equally determined to do everything within our power to assist public schools in addressing the myriad concerns with which they struggle."

Other focal points of Hooker's early months in office have included work by a chancellor's task force examining intellectual climate, a major topic in a recent self-study conducted for reaccreditation. A tough new campus policy on student possession and consumption of alcohol took effect in January 1996. And a chancellor's panel on substance abuse formed over the summer is studying drug and alcohol abuse, an issue facing campuses nationwide.

Hooker has stressed adequate support for faculty, staff and graduate students and the university's commitment to undergraduate teaching. He reorganized his administration in part to emphasize the role of the provost as the chief academic officer and last fall unveiled initiatives aimed at improving training opportunities and working conditions for housekeepers. Under the chancellor's leadership, the university also works to sustain the success of private fund-raising efforts during the Bicentennial Campaign for Carolina.

Hooker returned to Carolina from the presidency at UMass, where oversaw a $1.2 billion budget as well as 58,000 students, 3,400 faculty and 7,000 staff. After becoming president in 1992, he spearheaded improvements in areas such as teaching and economic development and later tackled major restructuring of two campuses.

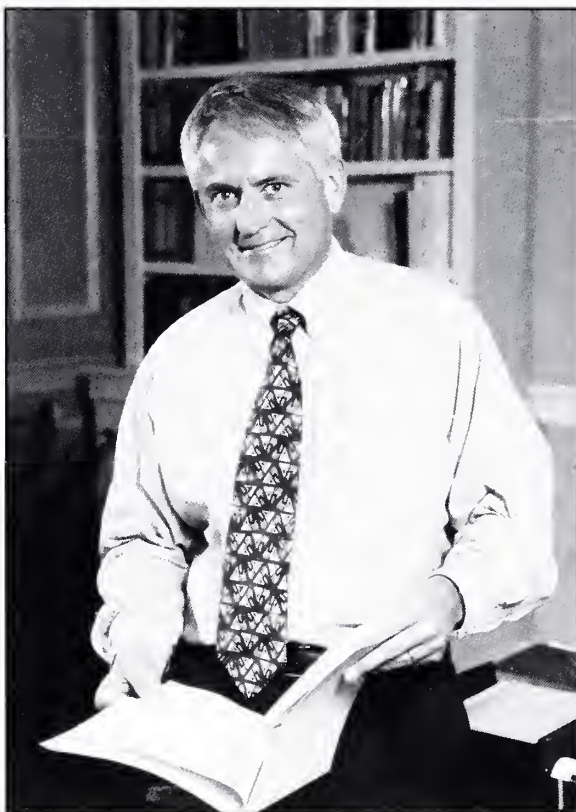

A staunch believer in accountability, he issued the system's first report card and developed a bold plan to lead the system into the 21st century. He is credited by Massachusetts legislative leaders with improving the university's relations among its members, leading to three years of strong budget growth.

Hooker went to UMass from the 10,300-student University of Maryland-Baltimore County, which he led from 1986 to 1992. There he was recognized for strong support of minority education, cultivating university-business ties and enhancing town-gown relations.

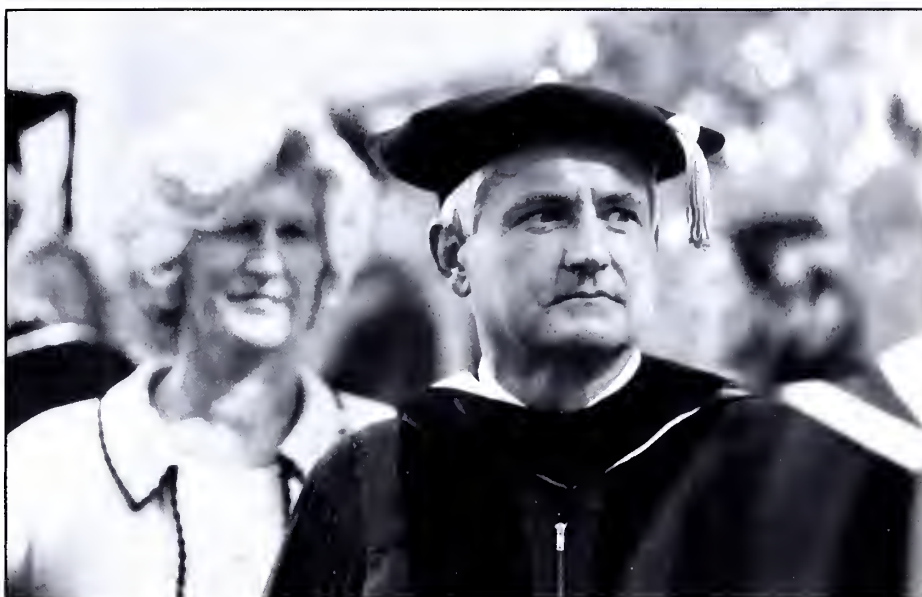

Hooker governed Vermont's Bennington College, a non-traditional, 600-student liberal arts school, from 1982 to 1986. Yale University's School of Management called his tenure an example of excellent management. He was credited with bringing financial stability to the college and helping create the school's first endowment.

In 1984, while at Bennington, Hooker was featured in Esquire magazine's story on the "Best of the New Generation" — along with future U.S. President Bill Clinton.

From 1975 to 1982, Hooker held several posts at Johns Hopkins University, including dean of undergraduate and graduate studies for two years. He received the Homewood Award "for outstanding service to students, to student life, and to the university."

He taught philosophy at Harvard University as an assistant professor from 1973 to 1975 after earning master's and doctoral degrees in philosophy from the University of Massachusetts-Amherst in 1972 and 1973, respectively.

Hooker has been a national leader in educational organizations throughout his career. He is a member of the Association of Governing Boards' Advisory Board of Presidents, served on the American Association of State Colleges and Universities' Committee on International Programs and chaired the American Council of Education's Commission on Leadership Development.

In the corporate sector he serves on the boards of 360 Communications in Chicago and Microfluidics International Inc., a Boston-based manufacturer of biotechnology equipment. Past board ties include WGBH, a nationally recognized public television station in Boston; Grace Ventures, a venture capital fund; Interfacts, which provides technical support and management for power-generation facilities; and Columbia Bancorp.

An expert on medical ethics, Hooker has written scholarly articles on applied ethics in business and the ethics of biological warfare. He chaired a biotechnology advisory panel for the U.S. Congress' Office of Technology Assessment from 1982 to 1984.

A former member of the editorial board of the Journal of Business Ethics, Hooker was editor of "Descartes: Critical and Interpretive Essays" and "Leibniz: Critical and Interpretive Essays" and author of several scholarly articles. His accolades include an honorary degree from Drexel University, a Danforth Associateship and a Woodrow Wilson Dissertation Fellowship.

Hooker is the father of a 14-year-old daughter, Alexandra. His wife, Carmen, a Philadelphia native, is group vice president for the Charlotte-Mecklenburg Hospital Authority with responsibilities for coordinating government relations activities in the Carolinas and Washington, D.C. She served six terms in the Massachusetts House of Representatives and was House Chairman of the Joint Committee on Health Care. A graduate of Springfield College, she earned a master's degree in regional planning from UMass-Amherst in 1984. She has two daughters: Jennifer, 28, a public school teacher in Charlotte, and Cyndi, 25, an art student at the Museum School in Boston.

The Hookers are ardent supporters of Carolina athletics — attending dozens of contests involving virtually every team — and student activities, including campus a cappella groups such as the Loreleis, who sung their way to the first national competition title last spring.

◆ The University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill — the nation's first state university — was chartered in 1789, laid the cornerstone of its first building, Old East, in 1793, and opened to students in 1795. Carolina was the only public university to award degrees to students in the 18th century.

◆ Carolina's 13 colleges and schools offer programs in more than 100 fields leading to 95 bachelor's, 169 master's and 109 doctoral degrees, as well as professional degrees in dentistry, medicine, pharmacy and law. Five health affairs schools, part of one of the most complete U.S. academic health centers, are well-integrated with a prestigious liberal arts program.

◆ Among the most comprehensive U.S. universities, UNC belongs to the select group of 58 research campuses forming the Association of American Universities.

◆ The 729-acre central campus, once called "The Noble Grove," is among the nation's most beautiful. It includes the two oldest state university buildings, Old East and Person Hall. Old East, a residence hall, and Playmakers Theatre, an 1852 Greek-revival building, are National Historic Landmarks.

RANKINGS, RATINGS, ACHIEVEMENTS

◆ In 1995, U.S. News and World Report magazine ranked Carolina fourth among major public universities and 27th overall. For its strong commitment to undergraduate teaching, U.S. News listed Carolina fifth among public universities and tied for 20th overall. Kenan-Flagler Business School's undergraduate program tied for third. The magazine also said UNC rates as the third best value for "sticker" price among national universities based on costs for out-of-state students.

◆ Ten graduate programs and specialty areas earned top 25 rankings from U.S. News and World Report in 1996. The School of Information and Library Science tied for second while the School of Journalism and Mass Communication's print program ranked fourth, its public relations program placed fifth and its advertising program ranked seventh. Others were chemistry (15th), and its analytical specialty (second); business (17th); computer science (18th), and its user-interaction graphics specialty (tied for second); and biological sciences, 25th.

◆ Carolina often lands on lists of the nation's top values. In Money magazine's 1995 "Your Best College Buys Now" guide, Carolina placed as the second best public university based on in-state tuition and sixth-best based on out-of-state tuition. In comparing "discounted" tuition — average amount paid after financial aid is deducted from the list price for tuition and fees — UNC was fifth. The university was the second-best value in the Southeast and the fourth most selective among schools where students come from the top 20 percent of their high school classes, earn average grades of B+ or better and post SAT scores of at least 1,200 or ACT scores of 29 or above.

◆ The Fiske Guide to Colleges ranked Carolina among 20 public universities selected as a "best buy" in 1996.

◆ UNC's Honors Program was named one of the eight best in the nation for quality and affordability in the book Ivy League Programs at State School Prices: The 55 Best Honors Programs at State Universities Nationwide. The overall program received the book's highest three-star rating.

◆ UNC ranks highly among its chief peers — 18 other major public research campuses and Duke — in the percentage of degrees awarded to women and blacks. Carolina graduates the highest percentage of female bachelor's degree recipients, the third-highest percentage of master's degree recipients and the second-highest percentage of doctoral degree recipients. Among those peers, UNC also produces the top rate of black professional degree recipients and third-highest total of black bachelor's, master's and doctoral degree recipients.

◆ In June 1996, Carolina hosted the Berkshire Conference on the History of Women, the nation's second-largest gathering of historians. The gathering attracted about 2,000 scholars and marked the first time the prestigious conference had met outside the Northeast.

STUDENTS

◆ Some 24,439 students come from all 100 N.C. counties, the other 49 states and more than 100 countries. Some 64 percent are enrolled as undergraduates, 29 percent in graduate programs, and 7 percent in professional programs.

◆ The average SAT score for entering Carolina freshmen has jumped from 1,051 in 1984 to 1,142 in 1995. The 1995 average marked a 14-point leap from the previous year.

◆ Nearly 63 percent of the 3,142-member freshmen class starting in 1991 graduated after four years, significantly better than the 35 percent average among Association of American Universities members. For the class starting in 1990, Carolina's five-year graduation rate of nearly 80 percent was nearly 20 points above the AAU average.

◆ Ten Carolina students have been selected as Rhodes Scholars since 1980 and 33 since the program began in 1902. North Carolina, the alma mater of the first black woman recipient, has been one of the nation's most successful public universities in the Rhodes competition.

◆ In December 1995, seniors Jeanne E. Fisher of Greensboro and Timothy Perkins of Cary were named Marshall Scholars.

Carolina was the South's only school to produce two Marshall Scholars. Funded by the British government, the program provides scholars $30,000 annually for at least two years of graduate study at a British university.

◆ Carolina boasts the second highest number of Luce Scholars in the country and more than any Southern college or university. In 1996, Frederick F. Wherry, a senior public policy analysis and creative writing double major from Rock Hill, S.C., became Carolina's seventh Luce recipient in as many years, bringing UNC's total since the program started in 1974 to 19. Luce Scholars intern in Asia.

◆ May 1996 biology graduate Sarah Wignall of Oak Ridge, Tenn., was Carolina's fifth student in six years to be named a Churchill Scholar. The program sends 10 outstanding U.S. science, engineering and mathematics students to study for a year at England's Cambridge University. The award is valued at about $23,000.

◆ Laura M. Smyth, a 1993 Carolina graduate, was one of 35 people winning a 1996 Andrew J. Mellon Fellowship in Humanistic Studies. She was the only N.C. recipient and UNC's fourth since 1993. The fellowships go to seniors and recent graduates of outstanding promise to encourage them to join humanities faculties at U.S. campuses.

◆ Rebecca Benefiel, a rising senior from Virginia Beach, Va., was selected as one of the 16 1996 Edwin Frederick and Walter Beinecke Memorial Scholarship winners. The award provides $32,000 for graduate studies. Benefiel is the third Beinecke Scholar from Carolina in the past six years. (UNC has had a Beinecke Scholar each year it has been eligible.)

◆ Ninety-three percent of Carolina's 1996 graduating seniors said they were satisfied with the quality of education received at Chapel Hill, with 43.5 percent saying they were very satisfied. When surveyed as they were admitted to Carolina in 1992, 88 percent of the group indicated that the university's academic reputation was a "very positive" factor in their decision to seek admission to Carolina.

◆ Sixty-two percent of Carolina's graduate students remain in North Carolina five years after graduation. Thirty-five percent of its out-of-state graduate students still live in North Carolina five years after graduation and 25 percent after 10 years. Many of those skilled employees assume key roles in the state's economy. UNC trains 60 of its physicians, 15 percent of its city managers and more than 10 percent of its college and university faculty.

◆ Using a style characterized as "gutsy," The Loreleis captured the nation's first cappella title in April. The 16-member ensemble was the only all-female group competing in the finals of the first National Championship of College A Cappella.

◆ UNC alumni include dozens of N.C. legislators, judges and governors, as well as U.S. President James K. Polk; authors Thomas Wolfe, Walker Percy and Shelby Foote; journalists Charles Kuralt, Tom Wicker, Ed Yoder, Roger Mudd, Deborah Potter, Jonathan Yardley and Eugene Roberts; and editorial cartoonist Jeff MacNelly. Others include the late U.S. Senator Sam Ervin Jr.; pollster Louis Harris; civil rights leader Julius Chambers; the late bandleader Kay Kyser; corporate banker Hugh McColl;

geneticist Dr. Francis Collins; NBA basketball superstar Michael Jordan; actors Andy Griffith and George Grizzard, a recent Tony Award winner; Broadway composer Richard Adler; and fashion designer Alexander Julian. More than 207,106 living alumni reside in all 50 states and 125 foreign countries.

FACULTY

◆ Carolina's full-time faculty of 2,369 includes many who hold or have held major positions in virtually every national scholarly or professional association. Overall, more than 90 percent have earned the highest degree in their field.

◆ Many faculty have been elected to some of the nation's most prestigious academic organizations, including 11 current members of the National Academy of Sciences, 18 of the academy's Institute of Medicine, and 25 of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences.

◆ Dr. Kenneth E. Thorpe, associate professor of health policy and administration, and Dr. Michael Stegman, former chair of the public policy analysis curriculum, have leadership roles in the Clinton administration for health-care reform and urban policy, respectively. Clinton also appointed Dr. Darryl Gless, professor of English, to serve on the National Council on the Humanities, the official advisory board of the National Endowment for the Humanities.

◆ Three faculty members were recently chosen as John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation Fellows. Drs. David Ganz, associate professor of classics; Jacquelyn Dowd Hall, Julia Cherry Spruill professor history; and Mark Wightman, William R. Kenan Jr. professor of chemistry, were among 10 fellows chosen from the Southeast.

◆ The 1995 North Carolina Professor of the Year hails from Carolina. Dr. William M. Kier, associate professor of biology, was recognized by the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching as the best undergraduate teacher among N.C. public and private campuses.

◆ Carolina boasts more endowed chairs held by black faculty members than any other U.S. university.

◆ A 1994 issue of The Journal of Blacks in Higher Education ranked the Kenan-Flagler Business School among the "Best Business Schools for Blacks" based on percentages of black faculty.

RESEARCH

◆ In 1995, UNC attracted sponsored research, including grants and contracts from government and private agencies, totalling more than $274.8 million. That figure has risen sharply — up from $78.6 million in 1985 and from slightly less than $70 million in 1980.

◆ For federal fiscal 1993, the latest year for which statistics are available, Carolina ranked among the nation's top 20 research universities in the amount of total federal support. UNC's share of the federal government's total research-and-development budget has increased by 30 percent since 1982.

◆ In fiscal 1995-96, Carolina ranked 14th nationally for support from the National Institutes of Health.

◆ Carolina chemists have developed a significantly improved method of synthesizing promising antiviral drugs for people with AIDS, hepatitis B and other deadly illnesses. The new method is faster and possibly cheaper than those now used to create the compounds.

◆ AIDS researchers at Carolina are studying a new combination of three drugs that promise to be the best treatment yet for the virus that causes AIDS in infected people. Carolina was one of four centers nationwide that participated in a clinical trial with the drugs zidovudine, lamivudine and indinavir, which dramatically cut the AIDS virus in patients after 24 weeks of therapy and boosted their number of critical infection-fighting cells that the virus slowly destroys.

◆ U.S. Secretary of Education Richard W. Riley has named the Frank Porter Graham Child Development Center the National Center to Enhance Early Learning and Development, the only university-based facility aimed at boosting U.S. children's intellectual and social development. The recognition will bring grants expected to total nearly $14 million from the National Institute on Early Childhood Development and Education to support center activities over the next five years.

PUBLIC SERVICE

◆ UNC's public service activities and programs easily reach more than 400,000 people each year, according to conservative estimates in a self-study completed for the Southern Association of Colleges and Universities.

◆ Continuing education programs on campus and off — including a variety of credit and non-credit educational programs — serve nearly 60,000 adult learners each year.

◆ The William and Ida Friday Continuing Education Center, headquarters for the Division of Continuing Education, reached more than 43,000 participants through 700 events in 1995-96.

"The trees and flowers of Chapel Hill are unforgettable. The great, protective trees are everywhere — pine, hardwood, evergreen — and make the village seem still a part of the forest which once covered this whole section. And the flowers — careless, extravagant — which deck the town are something that a boy, kicking along the quiet street, may just accept and take for granted. ...But when he's been away a long, long time and then comes back, a boy no longer, he sees and recognizes them as loved old friends."

—William Meade Prince in The Southern Part of Heaven

◆ UNC bolsters the state's economy. The university, which helped found the Research Triangle Park, helps attract industries to North Carolina. Since 1979, five new high-tech companies have been created as a direct result of UNC inventions. During the same period, graduates, faculty or former students and staff created 11 new companies that employ about 1,240 North Carolinians. Last year, UNC filed 71 patents and disclosed 91 inventions. New research initiatives that promise valuable new technologies are based in areas such as environmental science, gene therapy, biomaterials science and neuroscience.

◆ Created in 1984 by the N.C. General Assembly, the Principals' Executive Program based at UNC provides the state's public school superintendents, principals and other administrators with the latest management and leadership skills. More than 1,750 graduates from all 100 N.C. counties have returned home with specific plans to improve their schools.

CULTURAL RESOURCES

◆ WUNC-FM, a National Public Radio affiliate licensed to UNC, serves more than 150,000 listeners in 16 central N.C. counties 24 hours daily. The station attracts top national performers such as Garrison Keillor, host of "A Prairie Home Companion," to Chapel Hill for live performances.

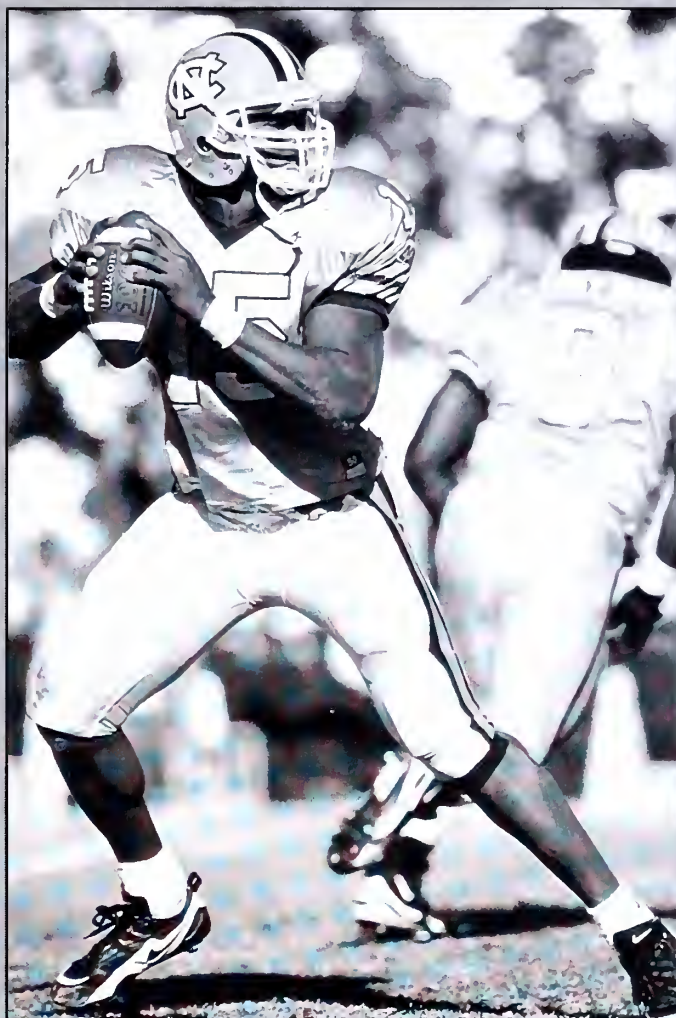

◆ The Morehead Planetarium attracts about 110,000 people, including more than 70,000 school children from 80 N.C. counties, each year.

◆ More than 33,400 visitors annually enjoy the Ackland Art Museum's 14,000 works of art. Those visitors include about 4,500 school children from around the state. The museum also serves an additional 2,800 school children through an outreach program that focuses on public and private K-12 students in the Triangle region.

◆ PlayMakers Repertory Company, the only non-profit professional, full-season theater company in the state, draws 69,000 patrons annually. More than 8,000 N.C. public school students attend its Glaxo Wellcome Educational Matinee Series every year.

◆ The campus features two garden classrooms, the Coker Arboretum on the central campus and the North Carolina Botanical Garden, which attracts more than 80,000 visitors annually.

MARCUS JONES earned consensus first-team All-America honors. Jones broke Lawrence Taylor's school record for career sacks with 24.

- The Tar Heels posted a record of 7-5. The winning season marked the sixth consecutive year in which Carolina finished .500 or better. That is just the third time in UNC history and the first time since 1940 that the Tar Heels have posted six straight winning campaigns.

- Carolina defeated Arkansas, 20-10, in the Carquest Bowl in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. The bowl was the fourth in as many seasons for Carolina. This is just the second period in UNC football history that the Tar Heels played in the postseason four consecutive years.

LEON JOHNSON was the Most Valuable Player of the Carquest Bowl as he rushed for a UNC-postseason record 195 yards. Johnson scored on a 28-yard option scamper in the third quarter to give Carolina the lead in the third quarter. Later that same quarter, MIKE THOMAS and freshman L.C. STEVENS connected on an 87-yard scoring pass. It was the longest touchdown play in UNC postseason history.

- UNC defeated Wake Forest and Duke for the sixth straight year and N.C. State for the third straight season. That marks the third straight year the Tar Heels won the state championship. Only two other times in history has a Big Four school won at least three straight state titles.

- This was just the third time in Carolina football history that the Tar Heels rebounded from an 0-2 start to post a winning record. The 1919 and 1958 Carolina teams also began 0-2 and ended up on the positive side of .500.

- Senior defensive tackle MARCUS JONES became the Tar Heels' first consensus first-team All-America since William Fuller in 1983. Jones earned first-team All-America honors from the Associated Press, the American Football Coaches Association, United Press International, the Walter Camp Foundation and College Sports.

Jones is the first Carolina football player to earn Associated Press first-team honors since Harris Barton in 1986.

- MARCUS JONES was named the Atlantic Coast Conference's Defensive Player of the Year. Jones had a career-high 94 tackles, including seven quarterback sacks and 12 additional tackles for losses. He pressured the quarterback 20 more times, caused two fumbles and broke up a pair of passes.

Jones broke Lawrence Taylor's alltime UNC record with 24 career quarterback sacks. He also sacked the quarterback on his final college snap. It came late in the fourth quarter of the win over Arkansas in the Carquest Bowl.

He is the first Tar Heel defender to repeat first-team All-ACC honors since Tim Goad in 1986-87.

- Joining Marcus Jones on the first-team all-conference squad were sophomore defensive end GREG ELLIS, sophomore linebacker KIVUUSAMA MAYS and junior tight end FREDDIE JONES. Sophomore wide receiver OCTAVUS BARNES was a second-team selection.

Ellis became the first Tar Heel defensive lineman to earn all-conference honors since Reuben Davis in 1985. Ellis also was named an honorable mention All-America by the United Press International.

Ellis tied for fourth in the ACC in quarterback sacks with seven and led the Tar Heels by knocking down seven pass attempts. He made 71 tackles, including nine for losses, and pressured the quarterback 11 times.

Mays also was named an honorable mention All-America by UPI. He led the team and was fourth in the ACC in tackles with 138. That is the highest one-year tackle total by a Heel since Dwight Hollier had 155 in 1990.

Freddie Jones is the second straight Tar Heel tight end to receive first-team All-ACC honors. Greg DeLong had that distinction in 1994.

Jones had 16 catches for 182 yards and hauled in touchdown receptions against Florida State and Duke. The latter came early in the fourth quarter and provided the winning margin in the Tar Heels' 28-24 victory over the Blue Devils.

LEON JOHNSON led the Tar Heels with 963 yards rushing and a school-record 54 receptions. (Craig Jones)

- Tailback LEON JOHNSON had his best season as a Tar Heel. Johnson led Carolina with 963 yards rushing and set a UNC single-season record with 54 receptions. Johnson rushed for 167 yards against Wake Forest, 139 yards and two touchdowns at N.C. State and set a Tar Heel bowl record by rushing for 195 yards and a touchdown against Arkansas in the Carquest Bowl.

Johnson is the first Tar Heel to lead the team in rushing yards and pass receptions since Lewis Jolley in 1971. Only four players have accomplished that feat since 1931.

Johnson's 54 receptions broke the previous school record of 52 set by Art Weiner in 1949 and Charlie Carr in 1966. He has caught 112 passes in his first three seasons, the most ever by a Tar Heel running back. Only wide receiver Corey Holliday has caught more passes in a Carolina career. Holliday had 155 catches from 1989-1993.

His 112 catches are 51 more than the next-closest running back's mark in school history. Natrone Means had 61 grabs from 1990-92.

1995 SEASON REVIEW

Johnson had three games with 10 or more catches including an 11-catch game against Duke. That is the most receptions by a running back in a game in UNC history.

- Split end OCTAVUS BARNES caught 53 passes for a UNC single-season record 970 yards. He set a Tar Heel record for most 100-yard receiving games in a season with four. Those four came in consecutive contests — 158 at Louisville, 211 versus Ohio, 107 versus Virginia and 111 vs. Georgia Tech. Barnes tied the Carolina single-game record for touchdown catches in a game with three against Ohio.

- OCTAVUS BARNES has caught more passes for more yards than any two-year player in Carolina history. Barnes has already hauled in 85 catches for 1,579 yards. He also has six career 100-yard receiving games, the most in UNC history.

Scott Sharpe

OCTAVUS BARNES caught 53 passes for a Tar Heel-record 970 yards. He also set a UNC record by catching passes for at least 100 yards in four consecutive games.

- Quarterback MIKE THOMAS set several single-season Carolina passing records. Thomas established new marks for completions (185), attempts (332), yards (2,436), plays (393), yards total offense (2,489), completions per game (16.6) and yards per game total offense (226.3).

Thomas is third alltime in UNC completions (302), second in attempts (573), second in passing yards (4,368) and sixth in passing touchdowns (22). He also had nine career games, including six this year, with at least 200 yards in the air.

- MIKE THOMAS joined Rod Elkins as the only quarterbacks in Carolina history to lead Tar Heel teams to victories in two bowl games. Thomas completed an 87-yard touchdown strike to L.C. Stevens against Arkansas. It was the longest postseason scoring pass in Carolina history.

- Defensive tackle RICK TERRY had eight quarterback sacks for 57 yards. The only Carolina players with more sacks in a season were Lawrence Taylor, William Fuller and Marcus Jones.

- Carolina led the Atlantic Coast Conference and was sixth nationally in total defense. The Tar Heels allowed only 267.3 yards per game. This was the first time Carolina topped the league in total defense since 1983. The Tar Heels also gave up the fewest first downs in the league (14.9) and were the least-penalized team (36.0 yards per game).

Quarterback MIKE THOMAS set Carolina single-season records for most yards passing (2,436), most completions (185) and most yards total offense (2,489).

- Senior offensive tackle RUSSELL BABB received honorable mention All-ACC honors, but received national accolades for his performance in the classroom. Babb was named to the CFA/Hitachi National Scholar-Athlete Team. He also was selected for the ACC All-Academic Team and was picked by the conference as the ACC's top senior student-athlete.

RUSSELL DAVIS (96) made three sacks en route to being named UNC's Rookie of the Year.

Syracuse 20, Carolina 9
September 2, 1995
at Kenan Stadium,
Chapel Hill

Syracuse scored 17 unanswered points in the fourth quarter and held Carolina to just three field goals as the Orangemen defeated the Tar Heels, 20-9, in the 1995 season opener for both teams.

The Tar Heels outgained Syracuse, 402-240, and had nine more first downs, but Carolina lost two fumbles and was picked off four times. Two of those turnovers led to 10 points for the Orange and another led to a goalline stand by the Carolina defense.

The key play of the game came with 2:00 to play in the third quarter and UNC holding a 10-3 lead. Quarterback Mike Thomas had just completed an 11-yard pass to Marcus Wall which gave Carolina first-and-10 at its own 49-yard line. On the next play, Thomas threw toward tight end Freddie Jones, but the ball was stripped by strong safety Darrell Parker and returned 30 yards to the Tar Heel 25.

Malcolm Thomas scored on a two-yard run on the third play of the fourth quarter to give the Orangemen the lead, 10-9. Syracuse held Carolina on downs on the next possession and then drove 58 yards in five plays for another score. Quarterback Donovan McNabb threw passes of nine and 34 yards to Marvin Harrison and Thomas scored from nine yards out for a 17-9 lead.

The Tar Heels were stopped on fourth-and-two at the Syracuse 42-yard line with 7:47 left. The Orange ran 12 plays in 5:40 and put the game out of reach with a 35-yard field goal by Olindo Mare with 2:39 to play.

Mike Thomas completed 25 of 42 passes for 284 yards and Leon Johnson rushed 20 times for 73 yards. Johnson also set a record for receptions by a Carolina running back with 10 for 69 yards. Flanker Marcus Wall had six receptions for 105 yards.

Scott Caparelli provided all of Carolina's scoring with field goals of 21, 23 and 32 yards. UNC led 6-3 at halftime and 9-3 with 8:59 to play in the third quarter.

The game marked the first in which Carolina did not score a touchdown since the Clemson game in the ninth week of the 1991 season.

It was also the Tar Heels' first opening-game defeat since South Carolina beat UNC in the 1988 opener.

Maryland 32, Carolina 18
September 9, 1995
at Byrd Stadium, College Park, Md.

Mancel Johnson caught two long touchdown passes and Maryland took advantage of five Carolina turnovers as the Terrapins rallied from 10 points behind to defeat the Tar Heels, 32-18.

Maryland quarterback Brian Cummings was nearly flawless as he completed 10 of 16 passes for 180 yards and a touchdown. He threw scoring passes of 50 and 32 yards to Johnson in the second half to lead the Terps to the victory, the first by Maryland over Carolina since 1989.

Carolina, led by tailback Jonathan Linton, built a 10-0 lead midway through the second quarter. Linton scored with 4:30 to play in the first quarter on a 13-yard run for a 7-0 lead and Scott Caparelli nailed a 21-yard field goal for a 10-0 advantage with 6:28 left in the half.

Maryland drove 75 yards in 11 plays to cut the lead to 10-7 with 1:54 remaining before halftime. The drive, on which Maryland gained five first downs, was capped by a two-yard scoring run by Buddy Rodgers, who carried seven times for 44 yards on the drive.

Carolina drove into scoring position, but with 12 seconds to play Mike Thomas' pass to L.C. Stevens in the left corner of the end zone was intercepted by Andre Johnson. The Tar Heels headed to halftime with 210 yards to just 79 for the Terps, but the lead was just three.

Thomas was picked off again on the first play of the second half and that led to a game-tying field goal of 45 yards by JONATHAN LINTON scored twice and rushed for a career-high 102 yards at Maryland.

Joe O'Donnell. The Terps intercepted another pass on the Tar Heels' next possession. That turnover led to Maryland's first lead of the game.

On the first play after the latest turnover, Cummings hit Mancel Johnson for 50 yards and a touchdown. A two-point run by Rodgers gave Maryland an 18-10 lead early in the third quarter.

UNC answered directly with a nine-play, 80-yard scoring drive on which Thomas made two third-down passes good for first downs. He hit Octavus Barnes for 22 yards on third-and-12 and tight end Freddie Jones made an acrobatic, 11-yard grab on third-and-four. The drive ended with Linton's second score of the day, this time from 22 yards.

Linton finished with a career-high 102 yards on 14 carries.

Cummings and Jermaine Lewis moved the Terps back in front to stay. They connected on passes of 27 and 40 yards, the latter bringing the ball inside the five-yard line. Orlando Strozier scored on a one-yard run to give Maryland the lead at 25-18 with 5:01 left in the third quarter.

Rodgers completed a 32-yard halfback pass to Johnson for a touchdown early in the final quarter for the 32-18 margin.

Carolina 17, Louisville 10
September 21, 1995
Cardinal Stadium
Louisville, Ky.

Mike Thomas hit Octavus Barnes for 35 yards and a touchdown with 14 seconds to play and the Carolina defense limited the Cardinals to 159 yards as the Tar Heels defeated Louisville, 17-10, on a Thursday night game before an ESPN national audience.

Carolina dominated statistically, but again was thwarted by turnovers and a myriad of other mistakes. UNC lost five fumbles — the main reason the game remained in doubt even though Carolina outgained Louisville, 406-159.

A 37-yard field goal by Scott Caparelli tied the game at 10-10 with 5:56 left in the final quarter. The Tar Heels got the ball with 1:01 left at their own 45-yard line. Thomas hit Barnes and Marcus Wall for 11 and 14 yards, respectively, to move the ball to the Louisville 30. Two incomplete passes and a procedure penalty gave UNC third-and-15 from the 35. Thomas then hit Barnes streaking down the left sideline. Barnes caught the ball inside the five and fell into the end zone for the winning score.

Louisville had one more chance, but strong safety Omar Brown intercepted a desperation heave.

MIKE THOMAS averaged 20.9 yards per completion in Carolina's last-minute win at Louisville. Thomas hit Octavus Barnes for a 35-yard touchdown with 14 seconds remaining in the game.

Carolina's defense held the Cardinals to 68 yards on 31 rushes and 91 yards passing. Linebackers Brian Simmons and Kivuusama Mays each had 11 tackles. Defensive end Greg Ellis made eight hits, including two sacks and two other tackles for losses, and batted down four balls.

The Cardinals ran 32 plays in the first half for 124 yards. Seventy rushing yards came on a first-quarter run off a fake punt.

In the second half the Tar Heel defense allowed Louisville to run only 25 plays for 35 yards.

Louisville's trick play off the fake punt set up a one-yard touchdown run by Calvin Arrington which gave UL a 7-0 lead.

The Tar Heels actually had the first good chance to score, but Thomas fumbled an option pitch at the 9-yard line on UNC's opening series of the game.

Leon Johnson scored on a four-yard run early in the second quarter to tie the game, but a 33-yard field goal gave the Cardinals a 10-7 lead at the half.

Thomas completed 14 of 29 passes for 293 yards. He and Barnes connected seven times for 158 yards and tight ends Marc Montoro and Freddie Jones combined to make four receptions for 104 yards.

Leon Johnson rushed for three touchdowns and Octavus Barnes caught three touchdown passes to lead the Tar Heels to a 62-0 rout of Ohio University. The win was the fourth-largest in UNC history and the most lopsided margin of victory since 1928.

Johnson rushed for 86 yards and touchdown runs of seven, three and four yards. It was the third three-touchdown rushing day of his career. Barnes had eight receptions for 211 yards and scoring grabs of 42, 56 and 23 yards.

The Tar Heels rolled up 637 yards of offense, the fourth-highest figure in school history. Carolina amassed 249 yards rushing and 388 in the air. That is the second-highest passing yardage total in Tar Heel history.

OCTAVUS BARNES tied a UNC record when he caught three touchdown passes, including this 56-yard, catch-and-run down the left sideline.

Mike Thomas completed 17 of 24 passes for 272 yards and two touchdowns, and Oscar Davenport came off the bench to complete seven of eight for 106 yards and one score.

The Tar Heel scored at least two touchdowns in every quarter and led 35-0 at intermission. Jonathan Linton scored on a one-yard run midway through the opening quarter to begin the scoring. Moments later, Davenport went up top for a 42-yard scoring strike to Barnes.

Johnson scored from seven yards out for a 21-0 lead. Thomas and Barnes connected on touchdown passes of 56 and 23 yards for the 35-0 second quarter lead.

After a couple of scoring runs in the third quarter by Johnson, the Tar Heels finished the scoring in the fourth quar-

at Kenan Stadium

Tailback Leon Johnson rushed for two scores and passed for another and Carolina's defense held ninth-ranked Virginia to 85 yards rushing as the Tar Heels edged the Cavaliers, 22-17.

Johnson rushed 23 times for 92 yards, caught five passes for 48 yards and completed two passes for 43 yards. His biggest run came on a fourth-and-one play from the Virginia 25-yard line with 7:00 to play in the game and Virginia ahead by a point. Johnson was seemingly trapped behind the line by two UVa defenders, but burst through the line and raced 19 yards to the Wahoo six. He scored on the next play to give the Tar Heels the 22-17 lead.

Carolina held Virginia on the Cavaliers' next two possessions. The first was aided by a 15-yard penalty against the Cavaliers after they had advanced to the UNC 33. The second came after UNC was forced to punt out of its own end zone with less than 2:00 to play. Virginia took the ball at the Tar Heel 39, but gained just two yards in four plays.

Strong safety Omar Brown broke up two pass attempts and Kivuusama Mays sacked Mike Groh for a nine-yard loss to maintain the lead.

The Tar Heels took the lead on the first series of the game. Johnson carried four times and threw once on the drive and capped the match with a two-yard touchdown run. Carolina held the Cavaliers to three plays and out on the first three UVa possessions.

LEON JOHNSON did a little of everything versus Virginia. He rushed for 92 yards, caught five passes and even tossed a touchdown pass.

In the second quarter Johnson carried twice for nine and five yards to the Virginia 19. On the next play he took a pitch from quarterback Mike Thomas and tossed a 24-yard touchdown pass on the halfback option to Octavus Barnes.

Groh got the Cavs on the board with 5:24 to play in the half on a 26-yard scoring pass to Germane Crowell.

The Tar Heels extended their lead to 16-7 at the half on a 26-yard field goal by Scott Caparelli. The field goal was the 13th play of a drive that covered 69 yards in 5:20.

Tiki Barber scored on a four-yard run midway through the third quarter to slice Carolina's lead to 16-14. Paul London's 20-yard interception return set up a Virginia field goal with 12:07 to play which gave the Cavaliers a 17-16 advantage.

Defensive end Greg Ellis again played an outstanding game as he made 11 tackles, including three quarterback sacks, and caused one fumble. Marcus Jones had seven tackles and hurried three passes.

The Tar Heels held Groh to 181 yards passing and Barber to 65 yards on the ground.

Barnes had a career-high nine receptions for 107 yards, his third consecutive 100-plus yard receiving game.

Atlanta, Ga.

C.J. Williams gained 108 of Georgia Tech's of 281 yards rushing and the Yellow Jackets held Carolina to just 68 yards on the ground as Tech handed the Tar Heels a 27-25 defeat. Georgia Tech led 27-10 in the third quarter and held off a Tar Heel rally.

Williams rushed 30 times for 108 yards, including a three-yard touchdown. That score gave Tech its 17-point lead with 2:21 to play in the third quarter. Marcus Wall returned the ensuing kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown to cut the lead to 27-18. Leon Johnson scored on a one-yard run with 10:11 left in the fourth quarter to make it 27-25, but that was as close as UNC would get.

A final Tar Heel drive ended when Mike Thomas' pass was intercepted by linebacker Ron Rogers just over midfield with 1:15 to play.

Thomas was 20 of 40 for 252 yards, but was picked off three times. Johnson hauled in 10 of those receptions for 45 yards, and Barnes caught five for 111 yards. It was Barnes' fourth consecutive 100-yard game and set a Tar Heel record for most 100-yard games in one season.

Johnson scored on a three-yard run to give Carolina a 7-0 lead, but that was matched by a 12-yard scoring run by Tech quarterback Donnie Davis.

Scott Caparelli's 26-yard field goal put UNC ahead before Davis hooked up with Cedric Zachery on a four-yard touchdown pass with 22 seconds to play in the first half to give Tech the lead for good.

The Yellow Jackets scored twice in the third quarter. Charles Wiley scored on a 13-yard run and Williams went in from three yards out for their 27-10 lead.

Tech's 281 yards on the ground are the most allowed by the Tar Heels since Clemson rushed for 286 yards in 1992.

MARCUS WALL returned a third-quarter kickoff 96 yards for a touchdown in the Tar Heels' 27-25 loss at Georgia Tech. Wall became the first player in Carolina football history to return two kickoffs for scores in his career.

Leon Johnson rushed for a career-high 167 yards and one touchdown, Mike Thomas threw a pair of long-distance touchdown passes and the Tar Heel defense held Wake Forest to nine yards on the ground as Carolina whipped the Demon Deacons, 31-7.

Johnson scored on a six-yard run in the second quarter. He carried the ball 25 times and went over 100 yards for the only time in 1995 and the ninth time in his career. His previous career high was 147 yards versus Ohio University in 1993.

Thomas tossed a 48-yard touchdown to L.C. Stevens late in the opening quarter and a 34-yard scoring strike to tight end Marc Montoro in the third quarter. The first touchdown pass gave Carolina a 7-0 lead and the second scoring pass capped the game's scoring.

Johnson played a role in all five of the Tar Heels' scoring possessions. He rushed for nine yards on the play prior to Stevens' 48-yard touchdown catch, the first score of Stevens' career. Johnson carried six times for 34 yards preceding a 22-yard field goal by Scott Caparelli which gave the Tar Heels a 10-7 lead.

Octavus Barnes returned a punt 53 yards to the Wake Forest 29-yard line to set up the next UNC score. Johnson carried for 13, 10 and six yards to the end zone following Barnes' career-long return.

Ahead 17-7, the Tar Heels' defense took over the game. After a fumbled punt gave Wake Forest the ball at the Carolina one-yard line, the Tar Heels stuffed the Deacons short of the goal line of four consecutive running plays. Marcus Jones, Mike Pringley, Andre Purvis and Pringley, and Kivuusama Mays and Brian Simmons all had hits during the four goal line stands.

Still leading 17-7, Carolina called Johnson's number again and he raced 33 yards to the Wake Forest one-yard line. Fullback Maurice McGregor plowed into the end zone for the score and a 24-7 Tar Heel lead with 9:18 to play in the third quarter.

The Tar Heels then went 71 yards in 11 plays and closed out the scoring with a 34-yard scoring pass to Montoro.

Mays made 18 tackles, caused one fumble, had a tackle for a loss and hurried two passes. Simmons had 12 tackles, including one for a loss, and batted down two balls. Marcus Jones made 12 tackles and had two sacks.

The Tar Heels opened the scoring with this 48-yard catch by freshman L.C. Stevens. He also hooked up with Mike Thomas on an 87-yard touchdown pass in the Carquest Bowl.

Clemson 17, Carolina 10
November 4, 1995
at Memorial Stadium
Clemson, S.C.

Clemson jumped out to a 17-0 lead after three quarters and then held off a furious fourth-quarter rally by the Tar Heels to knock off Carolina, 17-10 in Death Valley.

The game was statistically a dead heat. Carolina had 21 first downs to 18 for the Tigers, while Clemson gained just nine yards more than UNC. Clemson had the ball for 16 seconds longer than did the Tar Heels.

Raymond Priester led Clemson with 95 yards rushing on 20 attempts and quarterback Nealon Greene completed 11 of 17 passes for 131 yards and one score. Antwan Wyatt had seven of those receptions for 64 yards.

Greene got the Tigers on the scoreboard first at the 9:29 mark of the second quarter throwing a 30-yard touchdown pass to Joe Woods.

Early in the third quarter, strong safety Brian Dawkins picked off a Mike Thomas pass intended for Freddie Jones and raced 49 yards to the end zone for a 14-0 lead.

Carolina got moving after a field goal gave the Tigers a 17-point cushion late in the third quarter. Red-shirt freshman quarterback Oscar Davenport began a series at the Tar Heel 23-yard line and hit Octavus Barnes for 17 yards. Two plays later, however, Davenport suffered a knee injury which knocked him out of action for the rest of the year.

Thomas came back in and completed passes of 13 yards to Barnes and 20 to Leon Johnson. The drive stalled at the Clemson nine and Scott Caparelli out three points on the board with a 27-yard field goal.

On Carolina's next series, Thomas hit Barnes for 30 yards and later connected again with Barnes for 12 yards to the Tiger 22. Four plays later, Jonathan Linton scored from two yards out.

Carolina would get three more possessions in the fourth quarter, but punted once and had two interceptions.

Linebacker Kivuusama Mays had a career-high 24 tackles, including 15 primary stops. Linebacker Brian Simmons and free safety Sean Boyd also set career-highs with 16 and 15 hits, respectively. Defensive tackle Marcus Jones played another great game as he made 11 tackles.

KIVUUSAMA MAYS, a first-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection in 1995, had a career-high 24 tackles at Clemson. Mays is shown here in an earlier game at Maryland.

Florida State scored a pair of touchdowns in the opening 3:34 and tailback Warrick Dunn rushed for 143 yards to lead the Seminoles to a 28-12 victory over the Tar Heels on a cold and rainy day at Kenan Stadium.

Dunn scored on a 43-yard run on Florida State's first play from scrimmage. He slipped through a pair of Tar Heel defenders near the 30-yard line and then ran untouched into the end zone.

Dunn's touchdown came less than 2:00 after the Seminoles scored on a blocked punt. Mario Edwards broke through the middle of the Tar Heel blocking scheme and blocked a Mike Thomas punt, picked up the ball and raced into the end zone for the touchdown.

Thomas scored on a six-yard run with 6:22 left in the second quarter to cut the lead to 14-6, but FSU quarterback Danny Kanell led the Seminoles to a touchdown just before halftime. Kanell completed five of seven pass attempts for 72 yards, and Dunn scored from one yard out to give FSU a 21-6 lead at intermission.

Kanell hit Andre Cooper for six yards and a touchdown with 6:44 left in the third quarter to increase the margin to 28-6.

Thomas set up Carolina's next score with a 63-yard pass to Octavus Barnes. That was the fourth play in the last two years in which Thomas and Barnes connected on a pass play of 50 yards or longer.

On the next play, Thomas hit Freddie Jones in the back of the end zone for a seven-yard score.

Kanell completed 16 of 27 for 172 yards and Thomas was 10 of 24 for 146 yards. E.G. Green led Florida State with seven catches for 83 yards.

Marcus Jones tied Lawrence Taylor's career school sack record when he dragged down Kanell for a five-yard loss. Jones had three tackles for losses among his eight stops.

Chapel Hill

Carolina quarterback Mike Thomas threw a pair of fourth-quarter touchdowns to Freddie Jones and Ebenezar Ekuban and defensive tackle Marcus Jones led a Carolina defense which held Duke to 75 total yards in the second half as the Tar Heels rallied for a 28-24 win over the Blue Devils.

The win is Carolina's sixth consecutive over the Blue Devils, the longest streak in the series since UNC won six straight from 1976-81.

After the Tar Heels took a 14-7 lead early in the second quarter, Duke answered with the next 17 points and had a 24-14 advantage with 2:26 remaining in the third quarter. The Blue Devils scored 10 points in the third quarter on a short field goal and on a one-yard quarterback sneak by Spence Fischer. The touchdown came after a blocked punt was recovered inside the Tar Heel one-yard line.

Thomas, who was replaced in the second quarter, came on to lead a Carolina comeback victory. First, he completed passes to Leon Johnson and Octavus Barnes for 14 and 24 yards, respectively. Johnson, playing with a sprained ankle, rushed three times for 20 yards. Thomas hit Ekuban, a true freshman, for a four-yard score with 14:55 left in the fourth quarter.

The Tar Heel defense, which limited Duke to 235 yards for the game, then held the Devils on three plays and forced a punt. Thomas completed six of six passes for 47 yards, including a 20-yarder to Johnson and a four-yard scoring dart to Freddie Jones. That gave Carolina the 28-24 lead with 9:32 remaining.

Fischer completed just two of seven passes the rest of the game and spent most of that time trying to elude M. Jones. The All-America played perhaps his finest game at Carolina as he made 14 tackles, with two sacks, two other tackles for losses, batted down one pass and hurried seven others. His two sacks gave him 23 for his career, a Carolina record.

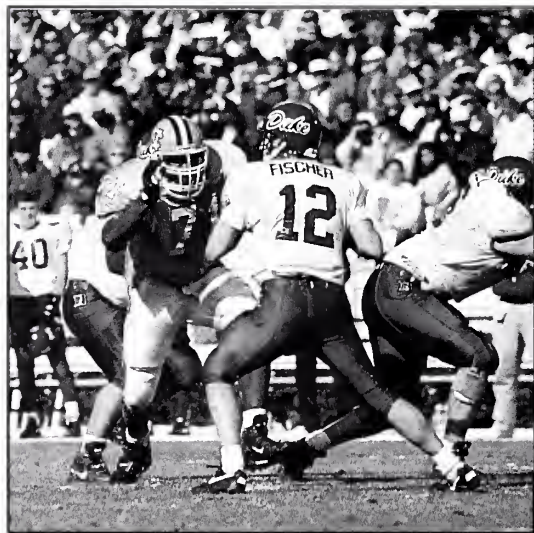

The teams traded first-quarter touchdowns. Carolina scored first on a two-yard run by Johnson and Duke responded with a seven-yard pass from Fischer to Corey Thomas.

Red-shirt freshman Chuckie Parquet, who played cornerback much of the year until injuries forced him to practice at quarterback, came into the game in the second quarter and led the Tar Heels to a touchdown in six plays. Parquet capped the quick-strike drive with a 25-yard option run around left end.

The Blue Devils tied the game at 14 just before halftime. The key play on the 84-yard drive was a 23-yard pass from tight end Jeff Hodrick to Fischer.

Carolina was led by Johnson, who had 92 yards rushing and set a school record for backs with 11 receptions for 87 yards, and Thomas, who was 23 for 30 for 192 yards and two scores. Barnes hauled in eight catches for 73 yards.

MARCUS JONES created havoc in the Duke backfield all day. Jones made 14 tackles (2 sacks) and forced 7 bad throws.

Raleigh, N.C.

Tailback Leon Johnson rushed for 139 yards and two touchdowns and quarterback Mike Thomas threw a pair of long touchdown passes to lead Carolina to a 30-28 win over N.C. State. The win was the Tar Heels' third straight over the Wolfpack.

Carolina broke a 14-14 tie with 16 straight points. The first seven came on a 40-yard, "hail mary" pass from Thomas to Darrin Ashford with no time remaining before halftime. The Tar Heels maintained a 30-14 lead for most of the fourth quarter until the Wolfpack rallied for two touchdowns and one two-point conversion in the final 2:36.

N.C. State's two-point conversion pass attempt with seven seconds left fell incomplete in the end zone.

Johnson, who was playing on a sore ankle, carried the ball a career-high 28 times en route to his second straight game against N.C. State with at least 130 yards rushing. He opened the scoring in the first quarter with a four-yard run and added a six-yard score in the third quarter which gave UNC its 30-14 lead.

The teams traded first-half touchdowns until the last-second desperation pass gave Carolina the lead for good. Terry Harvey threw a 19-yard TD pass to Greg Addis to knot the game at 7-7, but the Tar Heels bounced back on top on a 28-yard crossing route scoring play from Thomas to Octavus Barnes.

Harvey scored from 13 yards out with 26 seconds remaining in the first half on a quarterback draw. UNC's Jonathan Linton returned the short kickoff 17 yards to the Tar Heel 44-yard line and on the first play Thomas hit Barnes for 16 yards to the State 40.

Carolina lined three players to the left side and Thomas threw the pass into the end zone. The ball was batted by State defender Jason Perry into the hands of Ashford. It was the longest catch of his career.

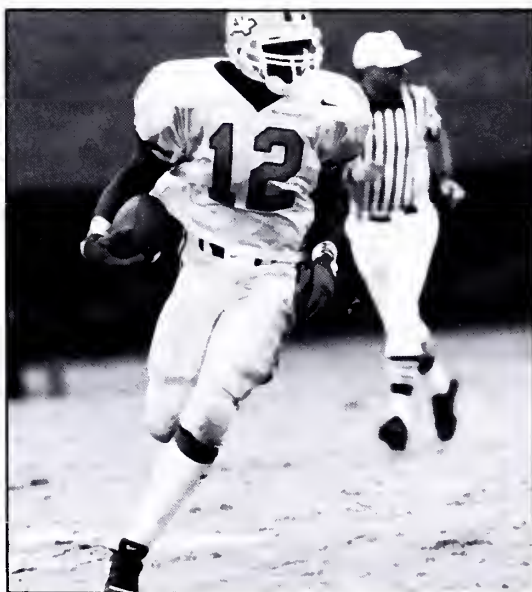

Chris Welch capped a 10-play UNC drive to begin the third quarter with a 48-yard field goal. That was the longest field goal by a Tar Heel in five years and it was the first field goal attempt of Welch's career.

Later in the third quarter Thomas set up Johnson's six-yard scoring run with a 20-yard completion to Barnes and a 35-yard strike to Ashford.

Marcus Jones led the UNC defense with nine tackles. He registered his 24th career sack, three other tackles for losses and two hurried passes.

The grass was a peculiar shade of green (off-white, actually), but there was nothing odd about LEON JOHNSON'S day. He rushed for 139 yards and two touchdowns against the Wolfpack.

Miami, Fla.

Leon Johnson rushed for a Carolina bowl record 195 yards and Mike Thomas threw for two scores as the Tar Heels knocked off Arkansas, 20-10, in the Carquest Bowl.

Johnson's 195-yard effort topped the previous high of 148 yards by Kelvin Bryant, also against Arkansas, in the 1981 Gator Bowl. Johnson had just 23 yards on eight carries in the first half, but exploded for 172 yards on 21 attempts in the second half.

All-America tackle Marcus Jones capped his career with four tackles for losses, including a quarterback sack on Arkansas' last play from scrimmage - his final collegiate play.

The Tar Heel defense relentlessly chased Razorback quarterback Barry Lunney and limited the Hogs to just a single trip into the end zone. Jones' sack, which came on a fourth-down play with 2:58 left in the game, was one of five by the Tar Heels. UNC also knocked down four passes and intercepted two more.

While the defense was swatting down Lunney and his passes, the Tar Heel offense rolled up more than 400 yards and scored three touchdowns.

The Razorbacks took a 7-0 lead on their first possession of the game as they moved 78 yards in a dozen plays. Lunney underthrew Anthony Lucas in the end zone, but Lucas reached over cornerback Fuzzy Lee for a 25-yard touchdown catch just 5:07 into the game.

Trailing by a touchdown the Tar Heels quickly moved into position to tie the game. Quarterback Mike Thomas found Octavus Barnes for 13 yards to midfield and hit Darrin Ashford for 14 yards and a first down at the Razorback 21. Three plays later, again on third-and-long, Thomas rolled right, threw back across the field to Ashford, who sprinted around the left flank into the end zone.

regain the lead in the first half, as their kicking game was unable to take advantage of great field position. Late in the opening quarter the Hogs moved the ball to the UNC 13, but a sack by Kivuusama Mays forced a 30-yard field goal attempt. The holder bobbled the snap, however, and Todd Latourette's kick did not get above the back-side of his own offensive linemen.

The Hogs began their final series of the second quarter at the 6:00 mark and marched from their own 27-yard line to the Tar Heel four. On first-and-goal, however, UNC reserve free safety Ronald Thomas charged upfield and dumped tailback Marius Johnson for a five-yard loss. Carolina held the Hogs on the next two plays and defensive end Greg Ellis, a first-team All-ACC standout, then blocked Latourette's 21-yard field goal.

The Razorbacks managed to take a 10-7 lead in the third quarter on a 26-yard field goal by Latourette. Two series later Carolina went into the lead for good. The drive began in an inauspicious manner as Thomas was sacked for a nine-yard loss. On the next play, however, Thomas found freshman Na Brown for 19 yards and a first down at the Tar Heel 45-yard line.

Three plays after Brown's 19-yard catch, Thomas zipped a 12-yard pass to fullback Chris Watson. Tailback Leon Johnson sprinted 11 yards for another first down to the 30. On third-and-eight from the 28, Thomas ran the option around the right corner, turned upfield and then pitched the ball to Johnson, who was trailing the play perfectly. Johnson ran untouched for a 28-yard, go-ahead score.

The UNC defense then forced Arkansas to punt and it took just two plays and 78 seconds for the Tar Heel attack to strike again. Thomas threaded a pass over the middle to freshman L.C. Stevens, who stiff-armed his closest tackler and outran the Arkansas secondary for an 87-yard touchdown.

The 87-yard play was the second-longest in Carolina history and the longest in Carquest Bowl history.

MARCUS JONES (#71)
Defensive Tackle
Jacksonville, N.C.

Consensus first-team All-America selection...Picked up first-team national honors from the Associated Press, the American Football Coaches Association, United Press International and the Walter Camp Foundation...Is the first Carolina player to be a consensus first-team All-America since William Fuller in 1983...Is the only ACC player to earn consensus first-team All-America honors in 1995...Is the first Tar Heel to earn first-team Associated Press honors since Harris Barton in 1986.

The 22nd overall selection in the first round of the 1996 NFL Draft by the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Was named the Atlantic Coast Conference Defensive Player of the Year in 1995...Joined Florida State's Derrick Alexander and Derrick Brooks as winners of the ACC Defensive Player of the Year...The last Carolina defender to win ACC Player-of-the-Year honors was Lawrence Taylor in 1980...Received first-team All-ACC honors for the second consecutive year...Is the first Tar Heel to repeat as a first-team All-ACC since Natrone Means in 1991-92...Is the first Carolina defender to repeat first-team all-conference honors since Tim Goad in 1986-87...Also was named to the All-ACC first team by Football News.

Jones broke Taylor's UNC career record for most quarterback sacks...Taylor had 21 and Jones finished his career with 24...The record-tying sack came against Florida State's Danny Kanell and the record-setter came against Spence Fischer of Duke.

Concluded his career with 222 tackles...That included 46 tackles behind the line of scrimmage for 225 yards in losses...His 24 quarterback sacks were for a total of 169 yards...He had 57 quarterback pressures.

Overcame a preseason knee ligament sprain to post one of the top years in Carolina defensive history...Led a young Carolina defense (three starters back from 1994) to finish sixth in the country and first in the ACC in total defense...Was named the ACC Defensive Line-man of the Week for his play against Wake Forest and Duke...Named the Tar Heels' defensive player of the week on five occasions (Maryland, Georgia Tech, Florida State, Duke and N.C. State).

Tied for the lead in the ACC in tackles for losses with 19 for 74 yards...Tucker Grace of Wake Forest had 19 for 60 yards and Peter Boulware of Florida State had 19 for 58 yards...Tied for fourth in the ACC in sacks.

Was third on the team in tackles with a career-best 94...Had 53 primary stops and assisted on 41 other tackles...Led Carolina with 20 quarterback pressures...Caused two fumbles and recovered one.

Over the last five weeks he played as well as any stretch in his career...Over those five games he averaged 10.8 tackles per game, pressured the quarterback 13 times, had 16 tackles for losses for 65 yards, including six quarterback sacks for 41 yards.

1995 highlights: Dominated the Virginia line all day and finished with seven tackles in the Tar Heels' 22-17 win over the Cavaliers...Helped Carolina limit Virginia to a season-low figure of 85 yards rushing.

Had 12 tackles, including two sacks and one goal-line stand, in the win over Wake Forest...Registered three tackles for losses against Florida State...Played the finest game of his collegiate career in the 28-24 win over Duke...Had nine solo tackles and five assists for 14 total hits...Sacked Fischer twice, added two other tackles for losses, knocked down one pass and pressured Fischer seven additional times.

Had nine tackles, including a fourth-quarter sack, in the two-point victory at N.C. State...Had five tackles against Arkansas in the 1995 Carquest Bowl...Four of the five hits were behind the line of scrimmage, including a six-yard sack with 2:58 to play on the Razorbacks' final play.

1994 highlights: First-team All-ACC and third-team All-America (Associated Press)...Carolina's defensive MVP...Second in the ACC in sacks with 7.5...Was Carolina's defensive player of the week six times...Led the Tar Heels with 12.5 tackles for losses and 21 pressures, the most since Goad had 24 in 1985...Had three and one-half sacks at SMU...Had six tackles, caused a fumble which led to a UNC touchdown, batted down three passes and pressured two bad throws in win over N.C. State.

1993 highlights: Second-team All-ACC selection...Led the team with a career-best 8.5 quarterback sacks...That was the most sacks in one season by a Tar Heel since Fuller had nine in 1981...Played his best game in the win at Georgia Tech as he four tackles, two for sacks, added two pressures and knocked down a pass...Made seven tackles, including for losses of 14 yards, in the Gator Bowl against Alabama.

1992 highlights: Played in every game as a true freshman...Had his first career sack against Navy...Was a key figure in the Tar Heels' Peach Bowl win over Mississippi State...Defensive pressure altered the course of the game as UNC held the Bulldogs to just one field goal over the last three quarters.

The August 31 game date is the second-earliest in Tar Heel history and the earliest ACC game in UNC history...In 1993 Carolina opened the season by defeating Southern California, 31-9, August 29th, in Anaheim, Calif., in the Disneyland Pigskin Classic...The last time Carolina opened conference play against Clemson was 1984, but that was the fourth game of the season...The Tar Heels have not opened the season in an ACC encounter since playing at Wake Forest in 1992...UNC last kicked off the season with a home conference game in 1968 against N.C. State...That game was not played until September 21.

This game will be the first afternoon home opener at Kenan Stadium since 1990...The last five years Carolina has opened the season at Kenan under the lights...The Tar Heels have won 21 of their last 26 season openers and are 72-29-4 in all opening games...The loss to Syracuse last year snapped a six-year streak of wins in the season openers...UNC has been victorious in 23 of its last 27 home opening games.

This is the second meeting between UNC and Syracuse...The Orangemen defeated the Tar Heels, 20-9, in the 1995 season opener in Chapel Hill...That game was played before a national TV audience on ESPN...This is Carolina's first trip to the Empire State since 1992 when the Tar Heels beat the U.S. Military Academy, 20-12, in West Point.

Carolina will be playing in a dome for the fifth time in its history when it plays Syracuse in the Carrier Dome...The Tar Heels are 4-0 playing indoor football...That mark includes a 17-15 win over Tulane in the Louisiana Superdome in New Orleans in 1975, a 16-7 win over Texas in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl in the Houston Astrodome, a 21-17 win over Mississippi State in the 1993 Peach Bowl in the Georgia Dome and a 42-10 win over Tulane in the Superdome in 1993...On October 26 the Tar Heels will play in the Astrodome for the second time when they face the University of Houston.

Carolina will be making its fourth trip to Tallahassee...The Seminoles lead the series, 6-0-1...The 1986 game, played in Doak Campbell Stadium, ended in a 10-10 tie...Two of the last three meetings have been played in a front of an ESPN national TV audience...In 1993 the 13th-ranked Tar Heels led the number-one rated Seminoles, 7-0, before a Kenan Stadium record crowd of 54,100...Charlie Ward and Derrick Brooks led FSU, however, to a 33-7 win...In 1994 the Seminoles built a 31-7 lead before the Tar Heels closed to within 13 points on a Malcolm Marshall one-yard run...FSU hung on for a 31-18 win...The Seminoles took control of last year's game very early as they scored on a blocked punt following UNC's first possession and Warrick Dunn scored on a long run on FSU's first series with the ball.

Carolina head coach Mack Brown is a 1974 graduate of Florida State...He lettered in 1972-73...He had 31 carries for 98 yards and 10 catches for 76 yards in 1973.

Carolina has won five of the last six games against Maryland, including four straight games played in Kenan Stadium... The Tar Heels lead the series, 29-15-1... Carolina already has played host this decade to Maryland in 1990, 1991, 1993 and 1994... Two years ago Carolina defeated the Terps, 41-17, as it rushed for 355 yards and scored on every full possession... The five-game win streak from 1990-1994 was the longest by the Tar Heels against Maryland since the ACC was formed in 1953.

This is the first meeting between the two schools...Carolina has played one previous time in the Astrodome...Amos Lawrence rushed for 104 yards and the defense gave up only 36 yards in the second half as Carolina beat Texas, 16-7, in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl...This will be the Tar Heels' second "dome game" of the season (Syracuse, Sept. 7).

The Tar Heels have played four games against teams from the state of Texas in the last three years...In 1994 Carolina opened the season at home against Texas Christian, traveled to SMU and played Texas in the Sun Bowl...In 1993 the Tar Heels played host to UTEP.

The Cougars are scheduled to play in Chapel Hill on October 16, 1999.

The Tar Heels have won three consecutive games against the Wolfpack, two of which have come on the road at Carter-Finley Stadium...Carolina has won 11 of the last 17 meetings against N.C. State, including seven straight from 1979-85...The Pack, however, has triumphed in four of the last five games played at Kenan Stadium, site of this year's contest...Two years ago in Kenan, Leon Johnson rushed for 133 yards and added two touchdowns on short screen passes to highlight a 31-17 win for the Tar Heels...Last year in Raleigh, Johnson rushed for 139 yards and two scores and Mike Thomas threw two long touchdown passes (28 yards to Octavus Barnes and 40 yards to Darrin Ashford) to lead Carolina to a 30-28 win. Johnson and Tyrone Anthony are the only two Tar Heels to rush for at least 130 yards on two occasions against N.C. State (Anthony had 183 in 1981 and 130 in 1983).

This is the second straight year and third time overall that the Tar Heels will face Louisville...Last year the teams met in a bizarre Thursday night game in Cardinal Stadium...Carolina outgained Louisville, 406-159, but lost five fumbles and had to rally from behind in the final quarter for the victory...Quarterback Mike Thomas hit Octavus Barnes on a 35-yard touchdown pass with just 14 seconds to play in the game for the winning margin.

Louisville won the only other matchup, 38-34, in a game played in monsoon-like conditions at Kenan Stadium in 1988...Heavy wind and torrential rains blanketed the stadium for much of the game...Despite the conditions, the teams combined for 989 yards of offense.

This is the Tar Heels' first non-ACC game played this late in the regular-season since Tulane on Nov. 13, 1993.

The schools are scheduled to play again in 2004 and 2005.

Carolina and Virginia have played 100 football games, the sixth-longest series in college football history and the longest rivalry in the South...The schools have played against each other 86 straight years...Last year the Tar Heels snapped a two-game losing streak to the Cavaliers with an exciting 22-17 win in Kenan Stadium...Leon Johnson rushed for the winning score and threw a TD pass...The win was the second straight for UNC over UVa in Kenan...The Cavaliers have won seven straight in Charlottesville...Carolina's last win in Scott Stadium came in 1981 with a 17-14 victory.

For sheer excitement this has to be one of the best rivalries in college football...Carolina has won six straight from 1990-95, including three wins at Wallace Wade Stadium...The Tar Heels lead the series, 44-34-4, including that 1-0 win in 1889 which both sides claim as their own...UNC has a 21-16-2 mark against the Blue Devils in Durham.

The last seven games in Wallace Wade have been decided by a touchdown or less...Carolina has won five of those games...Starting with 1982 the Tar Heels have won by margins of 2, 7, 2, 3 and 1 and Duke has won by six points twice.

Last year the Blue Devils held a 24-14 lead late in the third quarter, but Mike Thomas rallied the Tar Heels by completing his last 11 passes, including TD strikes to tight ends Ebenezer Ekuban and Freddie Jones.

Arguably the best game in the series may have been played in 1994 when the Tar Heels won, 41-40...Thomas hit Octavus Barnes for a game-winning, 71-yard touchdown with just over 2:00 to play.

KENAN STADIUM as it looked on January 22, 1927. The stadium, dedicated to William R. and Mary Hargrave Kenan, opened later that fall. The 1996 season will be the 70th at this majestic venue.

The University of North Carolina, one of the institutions involved in the first intercollegiate football game in the state of North Carolina's history, holds a special place in the annals of the game, both in the Tar Heel state and the nation as a whole.

Carolina, which began playing the sport in 1888, will embark on its 106th season of football competition in 1996. The Tar Heels do that with a history of gridiron greatness, including some of the top coaches in the game, a lineage of talented running backs and one of the most beautiful and historic stadiums in college football. All factors considered, Carolina's football tradition is one of the most respected in both the South and the entire United States.

Surprisingly, football is actually not the oldest varsity sport at UNC. Baseball is accorded that honor, having fielded its first varsity squad back in 1867. But while football started 21 years later, its history is replete with memories that have thrilled legions of Carolina fans as the decades have elapsed.

The first UNC team competed back in 1888 and played but two games, losing both and being outscored 22-4. That inauspicious beginning belies the success of the program since then, but those football pioneers are nevertheless credited with starting football at Carolina.

In the fall of 1888, the sophomore class at UNC had formed a team and after vanquishing all the other classes at UNC, began to look around for stiffer opposition. The UNC team challenged the Wake Forest squad to a game which was scheduled during the State Fair in Raleigh on October 18, 1888. Wake won the game 6-4 in what came to be acknowledged as the first intercollegiate football game in the history of the state of North Carolina.

Later that same fall, Carolina challenged Trinity (now Duke) to a Thanksgiving Day contest in Raleigh that drew a crowd of 600 for a 16-0 Trinity triumph. One member of that 1888 UNC team was John Motley Morehead, who went on to great fame as the founder of Union Carbide and who endowed the Morehead Scholarship program and several buildings on the Carolina campus.

That first Carolina team's results may not have been what was expected, but the leaders of the '88 team did get the ball rolling. In Carolina's first 105 seasons of football competition, the Tar Heels have compiled a record of 563-404-54, a winning percentage of .578. Carolina has played in 20 bowl games in its history and won five Southern Conference championships and five Atlantic Coast Conference titles.

Twenty-four Tar Heel players have been honored as first-team All-Americans on 29 occasions. Carolina had 32 All-Southern Conference selections when it played in that league until 1952 and since joining the ACC in 1953, has had 147 first-team All-ACC choices.

Just a few months after the loss to Trinity in 1888, UNC acquired the services of Hector Cowan, former great tackle and captain at Princeton, to help teach the UNC players the fundamentals of the game. Cowan arrived in February 1889 and drilled the Tar Heel troops on the existing athletic field, located on the current site of Bynum Hall.

The 1889 team played two games in the spring and two in the fall. On March 1, 1889, Carolina earned its first win in football as it routed Wake Forest 33-0 before a crowd of 500 in Raleigh. UNC went on to post a 2-2 record that year and earn a share of the state championship with Trinity and Wake Forest.

After a Carolina player suffered a broken collarbone that fall, the University faculty voted to discontinue the sport of football in January 1890 and Carolina did not compete at all the following fall. That is one of only three years since the start of football in 1888 in which the Tar Heels have not fielded a team; play was also suspended during World War I in 1917 and 1918.

The following year, students petitioned to have football restored at UNC and the ban was lifted with the help of Professors Horace Williams, F.P. Venable and Eban Alexander. At this time, athletic control passed from the hands of students to the faculty, a situation that still exists today.

Football returned to UNC that fall with W.P. Graves as coach and UNC compiling an 0-2 record.

The following year, 1892, is considered by most to be the first year of real football at UNC with a representative six-game schedule being played. That squad also earned the distinction of being UNC's first good team. Mike Hoke acted as team captain and the entire squad consisted of just 15 players, with UNC using only one substitute the entire season. The team opened the year with a 40-0 rout of Richmond and after a loss to Virginia in the next game, it went on to win its last four. Carolina's 5-1 mark was the best record in the South that year. That season also marked the first year in which University teams were referred to as "Carolina," with the appellations "University" and "Chapel Hill" being dropped from the popular vernacular.

A meeting in February 1893 signaled the start of the formation of what would become the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association in later years. Ten schools, including UNC, were involved in the meeting and Dr. Venable was voted temporary chairman of the group. Later that same year, on May 12, the UNC athletic association approved the awarding of varsity letters for the first time.

Although the 1893 team managed only a 3-4 record, it did have the distinction of being the first Southern team to play in New York City as Carolina lost a 34-0 decision to Lehigh on November 25, 1893. A year later, Carolina brought in Vernon K. Irvine from Princeton as coach and he led Carolina to a 6-3 mark, attesting to the fact that experienced coaching benefited the team's performance. That UNC team finished second in the South and won the state championship. It was also the first to be forced to stage closed practices because of problems with crowd control at open sessions.

In 1895, T.C. "Doggie" Trenchard came from Princeton to coach the Tar Heels and he led UNC to an outstanding 7-1-1 season marred only by a loss to Virginia. A crowd of 12,000 was on hand for the meeting between the Tar Heels and the Cavaliers in Richmond, which UVA won 6-0. Twice during the game spectators ran onto the field to block the path of Tar Heel runners who had broken into the clear on apparent touchdown runs.

Carolina began to gain some consistency in the sport of football with the arrival of Will A. Reynolds of Princeton as head coach in 1897. Reynolds produced four winning Carolina teams in his four-year tenure at Chapel Hill. His first squad finished at 7-3 and was followed in 1898 by what is still the only unbeaten, untied team in school history. That 1898 squad was a perfect 9-0 and outscored its opponents by an amazing 201-8. The team finished the season by beating Virginia for the first time in six years, 6-2, in Richmond.

Reynolds' final two teams also posted respectable records, going 7-3-1 in 1889 and 4-1-3 in 1900.

Reynolds yielded the coaching reins after the 1900 season to Charles Jenkins, who led UNC to seven straight wins prior to a pair of season-ending losses in 1901. Carolina beat all of its state opponents to win its seventh state championship since 1892. In 1901, letters began to be awarded by an advisory committee of the athletic association. Previously, anyone who played had lettered.

The next 11 seasons saw Carolina with nine different head coaches. The 1905 Carolina squad was coached by William Warner, the brother of the famed "Pop" Warner.

Trenchard returned as Carolina's coach in 1913 for a three-year run. His 1914 squad was outstanding. Sixty men reported for the team and UNC went on to win its first 10 before losing to Virginia 20-3 before a record crowd of 15,000 in Richmond. That UNC team outscored its opponents 359-42 and became the first team in the South to display players' numbers on their jerseys.

Trenchard's 1915 squad did not fare as well, finishing the campaign with a 4-3-1 mark. Seven regulars missed the VMI game and the reserves struggled, fumbling 16 times en route to a 3-3 tie. That same year, Trenchard started the first athletic training table at UNC in his home, feeding the 56 squad members on a daily basis.

The year 1916 found the Tar Heels in a new home as Carolina began to play its games at Emerson Stadium, the site of the current Davis Library. Freshmen were banned from varsity participation for the first time and the team went 5-4 and won its sixth successive state championship.

All of the members of the 1916 squad had entered the military service in World War I by the following fall and varsity football was dropped for the second time in UNC history, this time for a two-year hiatus.

Carolina made its full-fledged return to the gridiron in 1919, going 4-3-1 under Coach Thomas J. Coleman. Carolina twice broke its single game home attendance record that year as it won the state championship. The Tar Heels defeated N.C. State, 13-12, before a crowd of 7,500 and then topped that with 9,000 for a 6-0 win over Virginia. That game marked the first time the Cavaliers had ever played in Chapel Hill.

JOHNNY BRANCH's 96-yard punt return for a touchdown against Maryland in 1930 is the longest in UNC history.

The 1920 campaign was a dismal one as UNC went 2-6 and scored only 16 points in eight games. But a more positive era in North Carolina football began a year later with the hiring of Bill and Bob Fetzer as co-head coaches. Their hiring also marked a change in athletic policy at UNC as the Fetzers were assured of long-term positions instead of the usual one-year contracts. Carolina went 5-2-2 under the Fetzers in 1921 and 10,000 filled Emerson Field for Carolina's 7-3 win over Virginia.

That year also marked the first for UNC's participation in the Southern Intercollegiate Conference, the official name for what has come to be known today simply as the Southern Conference. At a February 25, 1921 meeting in Atlanta, the SIC was formed with a 16-school membership. The conference agreed to bans on post-season play, freshman eligibility and athletic training tables, required eligibility forms for players and disallowed organized practice before September 10.

Carolina would go on to have great success in the Southern Conference, tying for the league crown in 1922 and winning it outright in 1934, 1937, 1946 and 1949.

The Fetzers' greatest team was probably the 1922 edition which posted an impressive 9-1 mark, won the South Atlantic championship and tied for the Southern Conference crown. That team lost only to Yale, 18-0, and had three touchdowns called back by penalties in the game. The squad was ranked 11th in the nation by I.B. Thomas in the January 1923 issue of Intercollegiate Athletics and played before a record 68,500 fans during the course of the campaign.

The 1923 team was ravaged by injuries but limped to a 5-3-1 record nevertheless and a state championship for a second straight year. A year later, the Tar Heels were only 4-5 but they did play before their largest crowd to that date, 25,000 at New Haven's Yale Bowl in a 27-0 loss to the Bulldogs.

The 1925 season would prove to be the Fetzers' last as co-coaches. The Tar Heels responded with an excellent season, going 7-1-1 and winning the state championship. The only loss came at the hands of Wake Forest. A crowd of 16,000 jammed Emerson Field (capacity 2,400) to see the Heels and Virginia play to a 3-3 tie in the season finale.

The following year began a new era in Carolina football as Chuck Collins came on the scene as head coach. He had the longest tenure (eight years) of the early Carolina coaches. Collins, who was one of the seven mules in the offensive line for Notre Dame's famed Four Horsemen, served as Carolina's coach from 1926 through 1933.

The 1926 season also brought onto the scene the infamous Kay Kyser, later to be a renowned Big Band leader and radio and motion pictures personality, as head cheerleader and his Cheerios as the first major organized cheer block at Carolina.

New stadium plans were also in the works in 1926. Carolina alumni in Durham and Chapel Hill met on May 24, 1926 to form the Durham Stadium Committee. On November 13 of that same year, William Rand Kenan, a New York City engineer and 1893 UNC football letterman, gave the University a gift of $275,000 to help build the stadium.

The first game was played in Kenan Stadium on November 12, 1927 with UNC beating Davidson 27-0 before a crowd of 9,000 fans. The following Saturday, UNC beat two-touchdown favorite Duke 18-0 in Durham. The stadium was officially dedicated on Thanksgiving Day 1927 with 28,000 attending as Carolina edged Virginia 14-13. John Sprunt Hill officially made the presentation of the stadium to Governor A.W. McLean who accepted on behalf of the University and state.

Carolina won its first state championship since 1925 during the 1928 season. Its 5-3-2 record that year included a 65-0 win over Wake Forest in the season opener. That still stands as the largest margin of victory in UNC history. President Calvin Coolidge attended the Carolina-Virginia game in Charlottesville that year and saw the Tar Heels pull out a 24-20 win. It was the first time a U.S. President had ever attended a game in the South.

Collins' first great team was the 1929 edition which went 9-1 and outscored its opponents 346-60. The only loss of the year came to Georgia and only Southern California scored more points during the course of the season. Ray Farris was the captain of that UNC team and was a unanimous All-Southern Conference choice at guard. Carolina was called the "Team of a Million Backs" and drew a record attendance of 139,500.

The 1931 team coached by Collins went 4-3-3 and won the state championship. The Carolina-Duke game went big time for the first time that year as a crowd of 20,000 in Durham watched the two teams play to their second straight scoreless tie. Johnny Branch, a great all-purpose runner, was the star of that squad.

The quiet Dutchman, Carl Snavely, came to Chapel Hill in 1934 from Bucknell to take over the coaching reins of the Tar Heels. It would be the first of two tours of duty for Snavely as head coach. The 1934 team went 7-1-1 and was led by George Barclay, UNC's first All-America in football, at guard. Carolina lost only to Tennessee and it tied N.C. State that season. The Carolina-Duke game drew state and Kenan record crowds as the Tar Heels eked out a 7-0 victory.

The 1935 team also proved to be a great one as Snavely led his squad to an 8-1 record. Carolina won its first seven of the season and there was talk that the Tar Heels were headed to the Rose Bowl. But arch-rival Duke made sure that didn't happen on Saturday, November 16 in Durham as the Blue Devils played an errorless game, winning 25-0. That game drew a new Southern attendance record of 47,000 and in total 149,500 saw UNC play during the course of the year, another record. After losing to Duke, UNC came back to pummel Virginia 61-0 and ended up eighth in the final Associated Press rankings. Ace passer Don Jackson was named a second-team All-America.

Ray Wolf came to Carolina in 1936 to coach after Snavely had gone on to Cornell. Wolf had six successful seasons at UNC, producing winning teams the first five. The 1936 team went 8-2 and lost only to Tulane and Duke. That squad was led by end Andy Bershak, who was a second-team All-America in 1936 and a first teamer a year later. Wolf's teams continued their success, going 7-1-1, 6-2-1, 8-1-1 and 6-4 in subsequent years. Some of Wolf's outstanding players were Jim Lalanne, Paul Severin and George Stirnweis.

The World War II years were an unsettled time in Carolina athletic history. From 1942 through 1944, UNC had three different head coaches who put makeshift teams through the paces against adjusted schedules which included some military teams. Jim Tatum, an outstanding player at Carolina in the 1930s, coached the 1942 unit. He would return for another coaching tenure later.

Snavely returned to Chapel Hill in 1945 and during the next five years produced some of the best teams in Carolina football history. His 1948 team finished third in the AP poll, the highest final ranking ever for the Tar Heels.

An Omaha, Neb. native, Snavely was a 1915 alumnus of Lebanon Valley College. He had coached Carolina teams in 1934 and 1935 to a 15-2-1 record and returned in 1945 after nine years at Cornell. In fact, at Cornell in 1940, Snavely was involved in an infamous contest which would be recounted repeatedly some 50 years after the fact. Snavely was the coach who, upon learning it had taken a fifth down for his Big Red to defeat Dartmouth, wired the opposing coach Red Blaik and relinquished the victory.

His 1945 team did well, finishing 5-5 after winning only one game the previous season. Then the incomparable Charlie Justice arrived a year later, and with his compatriots, UNC went to three major bowl games and won two Southern Conference titles in the period from 1946-49.

Snavely's 1946 team was 8-2-1, won the Southern Conference championship and lost to Georgia, 20-10, in the Sugar Bowl. The 1947 team was probably the best of the four.

CARL SNAVELY is carried off the field by his Tar Heel players following Carolina's 34-7 win over Texas in the opening game of the 1948 season.

It finished 8-2, winning its last seven, but went uninvited in the post-season. The 1948 unit had only a regular-season tie with William & Mary to mar its record. It went on to lose to Oklahoma in the Sugar Bowl. Finally, the 1949 team was unbeaten in the conference and finished 7-4 overall, losing to Rice in the Cotton Bowl.

Justice was not the only star of those Snavely teams. Art Weiner and Ken Powell were tremendous ends on those teams and Hosea Rodgers was a great rugged fullback of the era.

But Justice was the main attraction unquestionably. He ran and passed for over 4,000 yards in his four-year career and he averaged over 42 yards a punt. He had only two punts blocked in his career and both of those were in the first game of his freshman year. When he was done after the 1949 season, Justice had established NCAA records in total offense and punting and was considered the greatest punter of all time.

As a triple-threat All-America halfback, Justice captured the imagination and fancy of the football fan as no one else ever had. He was idolized and the attention he received from the fans and the media was almost unheard of in that time.

A native of Asheville, he had served in the Navy in World War II and was already 26 years old by the time of his senior year in 1949. He capped his amazing career by being named the Most Valuable Player in the 1950 College All-Star Game in Chicago.

The departure of Justice from campus coincided with a 20-year drought in UNC's football fortunes. Snavely, despite all his earlier successes, could not produce a winning team after the Justice era. George Barclay, Carolina's first All-America player back in 1934, was brought in as head coach, College Football Hall of Fame inductees CHARLIE JUSTICE (22) and ART WEINER led the Tar Heels to 32 wins and three New Year's Day bowl games between 1946-49.

DON MCCAULEY and CHARLIE JUSTICE are two of the top Tar Heel offensive heroes. McCauley, two-time ACC Player of the Year, and Justice, two-time Southern Conference Player of the Year, have a combined 9,684 all-purpose yards.

but he encountered little success in his three years of running the program. That's when Carolina successfully lured Jim Tatum back to the fold. Tatum was a great UNC player in the 1930s and had coached the Tar Heels during World War II in 1942. He had since been at Maryland where he led the Terrapins to the national championship in 1953.

Tatum's first season back in Chapel Hill, in 1956, was rather undistinguished. The Tar Heels went 2-7-1 with victories over Virginia and Maryland. In 1957, in Tatum's first return trip to College Park where he had enjoyed so much success, the Carolina-Maryland game was marked by the appearance of Queen Elizabeth II. The queen and her entourage watched the Terrapins beat the Tar Heels 21-7. But that 1957 team finished 6-4 as did the 1958 team under Tatum's steady leadership.

It appeared Carolina had the corner turned when Tatum died suddenly in the summer of 1959 from Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever. He was replaced by assistant Jim Hickey whose teams did not meet with a great deal of success in his eight seasons as head coach. Hickey produced only one winning record, that in 1963 when the Tar Heels finished 9-2 and shared their first Atlantic Coast Conference title. That team went on to post the school's first win in a bowl game, a 35-0 decision over Air Force in the Gator Bowl. That 1963 squad was led by the running of Ken Willard, the passing of Junior Edge and Gary Black and the pass receiving of Bob Lacey. Linebacker Chris Hanburger was a stalwart on defense for the Tar Heels.

After Hickey resigned after a 2-8 season in 1966, UNC looked to Bill Dooley to revitalize its football fortunes. The choice proved to be a wise one. Dooley's teams won 69, lost 53 and tied two in his 11-year tenure. ACC championships were won under Dooley in 1971, 1972 and 1977. Bowl trips became a regular feature — six in all during the Dooley years.

After three rebuilding seasons, Dooley's first good team was in 1970. It finished 8-4 and went on to play Arizona State in the Peach Bowl. Tailback Don McCauley, who had gained 1,092 yards rushing in 1969, returned for a 1,720-yard season in 1970. He was the first of UNC's 23 1,000-yard rushers. The Garden City, N.Y. native's 1,720 yards in 1970 broke what was then O.J. Simpson's single-season NCAA rushing standard.

Dooley's teams won back-to-back ACC titles in 1971 and 1972. The '71 team lost to Georgia 7-3 in the Gator Bowl in a matchup of coaching brothers, Vince Dooley being the head mentor of the Bulldogs. The 1972 team had an 11-1 record marred only by a loss at Ohio State. It won a thrilling 32-28 decision from Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl.

The mid-1970s brought more success as UNC made bowl appearances in 1974 (Sun), 1976 (Peach) and 1977 (Liberty). Sammy Johnson was a 1,000-yard rusher for Carolina in 1973, as was James Betterson in 1974. But the outstanding offensive player of this era was Mike Voight who gained over 1,000 yards in 1974, 1975 and 1976, including 1,407 yards in '76. Voight was named the ACC Player of the Year in both 1975 and '76 for his efforts.

The 1977 team would prove to be Dooley's last at UNC. It won the ACC title and earned a berth opposite Nebraska in the Liberty Bowl. A rugged defense led by All-America tackle Dee Hardison helped Carolina lead the nation in scoring defense that season. UNC allowed only 81 points in 11 regular-season games. The new offensive star was a freshman tailback named Amos Lawrence, who rushed for 1,211 yards and was named ACC Rookie of the Year.

Dooley resigned in January 1978 to accept the dual role of head football coach and athletic director at Virginia Tech. At that time, Carolina turned to the "Cradle of Coaches" at Miami University in Oxford, Ohio, to find its new head coach, Dick Crum.

Crum had just completed an outstanding four-year run at Miami. His 10 years as head coach at UNC were equally brilliant. The winningest coach in Tar Heel history, he compiled a 72-41-3 ledger at the UNC helm. He took six of his 10 UNC teams to bowl games, winning on four occasions, and the 1980 squad won the ACC championship.

After a 5-6 record in 1978, Crum's teams from 1979 through 1983 went to five successive bowls and won 45 games. UNC posted four consecutive bowl wins over national football powers, beating Michigan in the 1979 Gator Bowl, Texas in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl, Arkansas in the 1981 Gator Bowl and Texas again in the 1982 Sun Bowl.

In 1980 and 1981, UNC became the first team in league history to finish in the Top 10 of both wire service polls in successive years. The 1980 team was 11-1 and ranked ninth by United Press International and 10th by Associated Press. The 1981 unit was 10-2 and rated eighth by UPI and ninth by AP. Two more Carolina teams coached by Crum would later go to Bowl games, the 1983 team to the Peach Bowl to face Florida State and the 1986 corps to the Aloha Bowl for a meeting with Arizona.

There was a plethora of outstanding players at Carolina during the Crum era and the Tar Heel football record book was being constantly updated. In 1980, linebacker Lawrence Taylor was named the ACC Player of the Year and he went on to All-Pro status with the New York Giants. That season, Taylor led what was one of the greatest defenses in ACC history. Other great defensive players at UNC included linebacker Buddy Curry, defensive tackle Donnell Thompson, linebacker Darrell Nicholson, defensive back Steve Streater, defensive tackle William Fuller and outside linebacker Mike Wilcher. All of those players were All-ACC selections and several went on to have distinguished pro careers. Fuller made four first-team All-America squads in 1983.

Although Crum's teams were known for their rugged defense, Carolina also excelled offensively, leading the ACC in total offense four times in the 1980s and ranking sixth nationally in 1986.

There were several reasons behind the offensive fireworks. First, there was a succession of outstanding running backs. Five different players gained 1,000 or more yards rushing in a season a total of 10 times under Crum's tutelage. After his brilliant freshman year, Lawrence went on to gain 1,000 yards three more times. He and Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett are the only two runners in college football history to gain 1,000 yards rushing in each of their four seasons. Kelvin Bryant overcame an injury-marred career to gain 1,000 yards on three occasions. Ethan Horton turned the trick twice in his career and both Tyrone Anthony and Derrick Fenner had one 1,000-yard rushing season each.

A second reason behind UNC's offensive success was the presence of some outstanding offensive linemen in the '80s, four of whom gained first-team All-America status — guard Ron Wooten in 1980, guard David Drechsler in 1981 and '82, tackle Brian Blados in 1983 and tackle Harris Barton in 1986.

Carolina's offense also became more diversified in the Crum era and the passing section of the Carolina record book was basically rewritten at that time by a string of accomplished starters at quarterback—Matt Kupec, Rod Elkins, Scott Stankavage, Kevin Anthony and Mark Maye.

At the conclusion of the 1987 season, Crum resigned to return home to his native Ohio. Carolina conducted a national search to find a successor to lead the Tar Heels into their second century. The unanimous choice of the search committee was Mack Brown, who came to Carolina after head coaching stops at Appalachian State and Tulane. He is considered nationally as one of the finest young minds in the game, a brilliant motivator and communicator.

Caught with slim material, Brown's first two teams struggled. However, there were some bright individual stars for Carolina in that period, including center Jeff Garnica. He was a third-team All-America and the Jacobs Blocking Trophy recipient in 1988 as the best offensive lineman in the ACC. Offensive guard Pat Crowley became only the second offensive lineman in ACC history to be named All-ACC in three successive years when he accomplished that feat in 1989.

The blocking of those two players was instrumental in tailback Kennard Martin leading the ACC in rushing in 1988 with 1,146 yards. Martin thus became the 19th runner in Tar Heel history to gain 1,000 yards in a season.

The Tar Heels turned things around in 1990, however, and put together a solid 6-4-1 record and even returned to the Top 25 at one point in the season. Inside linebacker Dwight Hollier led the ACC in tackles for the second consecutive season and rookie tailback Natrone Means capped a stellar second half of the season with a 256-yard, three-touchdown effort vs. Duke. Along the way, Carolina tied Georgia Tech 13-13; the stalemate proved to be the only blemish on the Yellow Jackets' otherwise-perfect national championship ledger.

In 1991, Means became the 11th Tar Heel to rush for more than 1,000 yards for an NCAA-record 20th time. Means ran for 1,030 yards and topped the 1,000-yard plateau on an electrifying, 68-yard scamper in the Tar Heels' 47-14 rout over Duke. Means, inside linebacker Tommy Thigpen and offensive guard Brian Bollinger each were first-team All-ACC selections.

1992 was another filled with great players, spectacular plays and electrifying memories. The Tar Heels won nine games, including a 21-17 win over Mississippi State in the Peach Bowl, and finished the season ranked in the Top 20 in both major polls.

Means rushed for 1,195 yards, the 21st 1,000-yard rushing season in Carolina history. He had a 249-yard day at Maryland and once again dramatically crashed the 1,000-yard club with a 76-yard touchdown scamper against the Terrapins.

The Tar Heels defeated Top 20 opposition on consecutive weekends in mid-season, the first time in the program's history the team accomplished that feat.

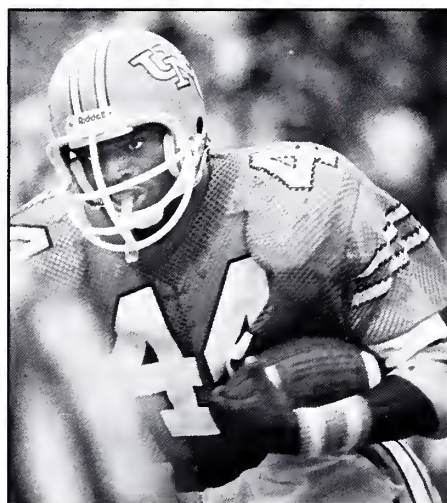

Carolina accepted a bid to play in the Peach Bowl and provided one of the year's most entertaining bowl games. Trailing by two touchdowns in the third quarter, UNC rallied for a 21-17 win. Means, a repeat first-team All-ACC selection, gained 128 yards and was named the game's Offensive MVP. Strong safety Bracey Walker tied the game when he blocked a punt, his second of the game, and returned it 41 yards for a score.

Walker, the game's Defensive MVP, set up the game-winning touchdown when he forced an interception with a jarring fourth-quarter hit. Cornerback Cliff Baskerville picked the loose ball out of the air and raced 44 yards for the winning touchdown.

The 1993 Tar Heels provided one of the most entertaining seasons in Carolina history. UNC won 10 games for the first time in a dozen years, finished second in the ACC, 19th in the Associated Press poll and played in a bowl game for a second consecutive season.

UNC set nearly 40 team and individual records, including most points, points per game and total offense. Walker was named first-team All-America by several organizations and was a first-team All-ACC selection along with tailback Curtis Johnson and offensive tackle Ethan Albright.

Johnson and red-shirt freshman tailback Leon Johnson each rushed for 1,000-plus yards. Curtis rushed for 1,034 yards and set a school record with a 90-yard score vs. Maryland; Leon was named the ACC Rookie of the Year as he rushed for 1,012 yards and led the conference with 16 touchdowns and 100 points. Carolina now has produced an NCAA-record 23 1,000-yard rushing seasons.

Quarterback Jason Stanicek set UNC records for one season in total offense (2,284 yards), total yards per game (190.3), completion percentage (64.1) and pass efficiency rating (145.79).

Corey Holliday concluded his brilliant career as Carolina's all-time leading pass receiver. Twice selected a captain by his teammates, Holliday finished his four years with 155 receptions for 2,447 yards and caught a pass in an ACC-record 45 consecutive games. He had nine receptions, a UNC postseason record, versus Alabama in Carolina's 24-10 loss in the Outback Steakhouse Gator Bowl.

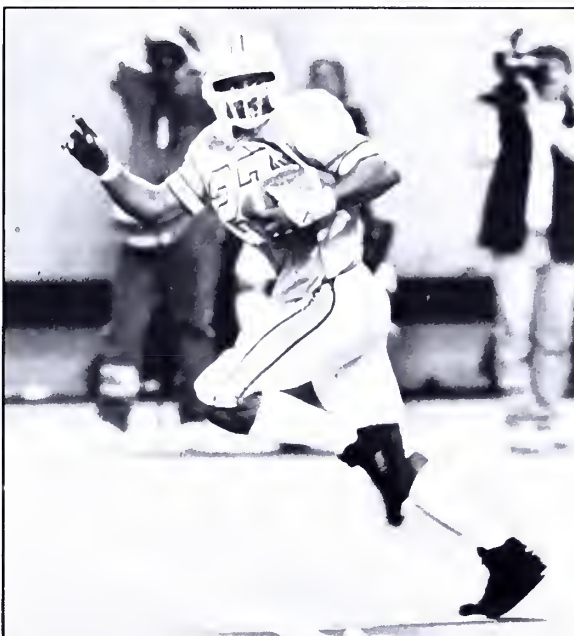

In 1994 Carolina went 8-4, losing to Texas, 35-31, in the Sun Bowl in an exhilarating contest. Stanicek concluded his career as the school's alltime total offense leader. Stanicek passed "Choo Choo" Justice's mark, which had stood since 1949, in the fifth game of the season and finished his standout career with 5,497 yards. Stanicek also set UNC career records for most pass completions (372), attempts (622), yards (4,683) and completion percentage (.598). He tied Matt Kupec's school mark for most wins by a starting quarterback with 24.

Marcus Wall set a Tar Heel record for most touchdown catches in a season with nine. He added a touchdown catch in the Sun Bowl, returned a kickoff for a score against Duke, returned a punt for a touchdown against Texas and had a rushing touchdown against N.C. State.

Carolina beat Duke 41-40 in one of the most exciting games in the storied history of that rivalry. The Blue Devils scored a pair of quick touchdowns in the fourth quarter to go ahead, 38-34, with less than 3:00 to play. Mike Thomas quickly connected with freshman Octavus Barnes on a short crossing route and Barnes raced past the entire Duke secondary for a 71-yard game-winning score.

Barnes established an ACC record for receiving yards in a season by a freshman with 609. He had 165 yards on receptions, the third-highest single-game figure in Carolina history, in the regular-season finale at Duke and again in the Sun Bowl against Texas.

season for the sixth consecutive year and received an invitation to the Carquest Bowl in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. Defensive tackle Marcus Jones was the ACC Defensive Player of the Year and became the first UNC player in nine years to be named consensus first-team All-America. Jones topped Lawrence Taylor's career UNC sack record as he concluded his four years with 24, three more than Taylor.

Mike Thomas set numerous single-season total offense and passing records, including most yards of total offense (2,489), most yards passing (2,436), most pass attempts (332) and most completions (185). He threw for more than 200 yards in each of the first six games and concluded his career with a school-record nine 200-yard outings.

Tailback Leon Johnson and split end Octavus Barnes each surpassed the previous school record for pass receptions in a season. Johnson led the team in rushing with 963 yards and added 54 receptions. Barnes had 53 catches for a UNC record 970 yards.

Johnson rushed for 195 yards and a touchdown in the 20-10 win over Arkansas in the Carquest Bowl. That is the highest rushing total in Carolina postseason history. Barnes established a UNC record with four 100-yard receiving games. He caught three touchdown passes and totaled 211 yards receiving, the second-highest figure in school history, in a 62-0 rout of Ohio.

Marcus Jones was named first-team All-America by the Associated Press, the American Football Coaches Association, the Walter Camp Foundation and United Press International.

One of the most famous anecdotes about Carolina athletics came out of the 1948 football game against Duke. It featured a dazzling 43-yard touchdown run by Charlie Justice that has been called one of the greatest of his fabulous career.

According to which game story you believe, Justice reversed his field four or five times before scoring. Not only did the Duke defenders not know what to do, his own blockers had no idea where he was going next to find an opening of daylight.

Tackle Ted Hazelwood hit one Blue Devil and simply sat on him as Justice cut behind them.

"Hey, Ted, let me up," the player yelled. "The play's over."

"Heck, no," replied Hazelwood, "not with Charlie. You never know when he might be coming this way again."

Such was life with Charlie Justice in the Tar Heel backfield in the late 1940s.

It is fairly standard practice at Carolina for graduating classes to hold reunions every five years. However, one group returns virtually every fall to campus to spend time together and reminisce—the players from the great Tar Heel football teams from 1946 to 1949.

This year will be a special one for that group. It marks the silver anniversary for the 1946 team, the first of the Justice Era in Chapel Hill.

With that in mind and because of what those teams have meant to Carolina football, it is only appropriate to take a look back at the beginning of that incredible period in Tar Heel athletic history.

It was also a special time for this entire country and the University as a whole. It was a time of sweeping changes as the United States ended a terrible war and found itself to be the most powerful nation in the world.

The players who performed on those Carolina teams brought excitement to a campus that was looking for something to help it forget the war which had just come to a close. The time was ripe for heroes and Charlie Justice fit the mold perfectly.

He set records which still stand, others which have only recently been broken. But mainly he was the right man at the right place for a university, a state and a nation that needed to turn its attention away from the trauma and grief that had just been suffered.

Sports became a centerpiece of American life after the war. Major league baseball was thriving. College sports, especially in the South where there were no big-league franchises, increased dramatically in popularity.

Justice was a veteran who had been overseas. He was married and mature, but also still boyish in looks with a chiseled chin that was perfect for photographers. He was friendly and modest to a fault. Plus, he was a homegrown star. There could not have been a better player for this football program.

Even before he enrolled at Carolina, Justice's name was well-known across the state. He had led Lee Edwards High School in Asheville to two unbeaten seasons and had college coaches watching every game. In a time before "recruiting experts" were publishing the "latest information" on every high school player in the country and before radio shows and Internet home pages were filled with recruiting rumors, Justice was a hot item.

But, there were other things to which he had to attend. War had broken out and he joined the armed forces. Unable to swim, Justice signed up for the Army. The U.S. government, of course, immediately put him in the Navy and sent him to Bainbridge Naval Training Center in Maryland. There he became one of the top performers on the center's football team which was filled with professional stars like Howard Hickey, Carl Mulleneaux and Carl Tomasello.

After three years he could have stepped right into the pros himself, but decided to get an education.

He chose Carolina and later called it one of the two best decisions he ever made. The other was marrying his wife, Sarah.

He enrolled for the winter session of school in 1946. When asked about Justice, Coach Carl Snavely deadpanned "I hope he comes out for football."

During those days schools could scrimmage outside opponents during winter drills and the Tar Heels had a session against Guilford at Kenan Stadium. Justice wasn't on the field when play began. Although a 22-year-old Navy veteran, he was still a freshman and there were other players ahead of him on the depth chart. But after watching his team get off to a slow start, Snavely sent Justice into action at tailback.

If what then happened appeared in a novel, publishers would have said it was too implausible to believe. On his first carry he exploded 65 yards for a touchdown. Even the usually calm Snavelly erupted on the sidelines.

Charlie was a model citizen. He did not smoke or drink. He was quick to always give credit to the people around him. Football, perhaps more than any other sport, is truly a team game. One man, even one as great as Justice, could not win a game by himself and he was well aware of that.

In the Blue-White Game at the conclusion of off-season practice, Justice raced 64 yards for a touchdown the first time he touched the ball. He hadn't played an official game, but a legend was already being born.

Carolina operated from the single wing and, in Justice, Snavelly had the perfect man to run his attack. He passed or ran for 64 touchdowns during a four-year career that saw the Tar Heels post a 32-7-2 record and go to three bowl games.

There have been UNC players who ran, passed or punted better, but no one has had the triple-threat capabilities of Justice. Plus, he was a sensational kick returner.

He still holds a number of school records. In fact, it was not until 1994 that his career total offense mark fell to Jason Stanicek. Not to take anything away from Stanicek's accomplishments, but he played in a time of a more polished passing game which accounted for much of his yardage. However, Charlie was one of the first people in the locker room to congratulate the Carolina quarterback the day Stanicek surpassed his total.

Justice's rushing records had stood until Bill Dooley became the Tar Heel coach in 1967 and emphasized a powerful running attack from the I-formation. Don McCauley was the centerpiece of that offense and eventually broke many of Justice's records. Many of the great 1,000-yard tailbacks since then have also chipped away at Justice's running marks.

But, Justice's incredible average of 7.2 yards per carry for an entire season still stands. He accomplished that as a freshman. It wasn't until 1976 that Mike Voight would pass him on the school's career scoring list. Now there is a good chance Leon Johnson will move past both of them this fall.

The game today, of course, is so different than when Justice reported for fall camp in August of 1946. Offenses are more wide-open and teams play more games.

However, Snavelly's single wing was highly sophisticated and filled with razzle-dazzle plays. Any of four backs might take the center snap and the offense featured a number of reverses and double reverses. All of the players were adept at handling the ball and defenses often had no idea where it was. Generally, though, it was in Justice's hands.

When fall drills began Justice made a point to get to know the other players quickly. He had a big buildup and wanted no resentment from his teammates.

Chapel Hill was an exciting college town in 1946, but the campus had an unusual mix. War veterans were returning in large numbers and most were older than the other undergraduates. There were more married students than in the past. This, with the normal influx of kids just out of high school, presented a great range in personalities on campus.

Approximately 2,000 veterans enrolled that fall, pushing the student population to 6,800. That was 2,400 over the largest previous total at Carolina.

Housing was a major problem. Victory Village was constructed on south campus mainly to handle the returning vets, many of whom were married. Apartments went up there as quickly as possible, but many people lived in pre-fabs. In addition, trailers were brought in and set up on Pittsboro Road. Quonset huts were hurriedly built on the varsity tennis courts. Some single men lived in the old Tin Can as the University continued to seek housing for them. Dorms had three men to a room.

But, these inconveniences were nothing compared to what the veterans had just experienced overseas.

A common denominator for all the students proved to be on the football field. Success there could unite the various groups. Perhaps the most overlooked part of Justice's career is that he and his teammates helped create campus camaraderie at such an unusual time in the University's history. Never before had so many students had so little in common and gotten along so well.

Carl Snavelly won 59 games as Carolina's head coach, including 32 in the Charlie Justice Era.

The opening game was against a veteran Virginia Tech team. Justice had a 68-yard touchdown run, but also had two punts blocked. Both set up touchdowns and the game ended in a 14-14 tie.

For the first time there was doubt about Justice's all-around ability. There should not have been. He would never have another kick blocked in his four years at Chapel Hill.

The following week Carolina went to Florida to face a good Miami team. Justice peeled off a 65-yard scoring run, sparking a 21-0 win. He rushed for 163 yards on 12 carries.

Carolina then rolled past Maryland, 33-

CHAPEL HILL IN THE JUSTICE ERA

Life in Chapel Hill was quite different in 1946 than it had been in any other year.

The University's enrollment of 6,800 was 2,400 more than at any time in history. That caused a number of problems. The biggest was housing. Three men had to share every dorm room.

They were the lucky ones.

Cots were set up in the old Tin Can for others until rooms in private homes could be found. Victory Village was constructed on south campus, mainly to handle returning war veterans who were married.

Classrooms were over-crowded. This problem may have actually helped in the growth of the University as the need for more and newer buildings on campus became more evident.

When it became obvious during the summer before classes began that the campus was going to be over-crowded, plans were made to handle food and laundry service in shifts.

Many students ate downtown. Danziger's, which was located in the main block of Franklin Street, was a popular spot for coffee and doughnuts in the morning. Students also had lunch and dinner there. One of the restaurant's trademark items was pizza. Mr. Danziger always claimed his eatery was the first in this state to have pizza on the menu.

Danziger later opened the Rathskeller, the Zoom Zoom, the Ranch House and Villa Teo.

Other student favorites were The Port-hole, the Campus Cafe, the Carolina Coffee Shop, Gooch's Cafe, the College Sandwich Shop and Harry's. Many of these spots were in existence a quarter century later with the Coffee Shop and the "Rat" still in operation.

For special occasions one could eat at the Carolina Inn or Brady's. Late in the 1946-47 school year the Colonial Inn was renovated and opened in Hillsborough.

Other businesses along Franklin Street provided whatever the students might need: Rexall Drugs, Carolina Pharmacy, the Varsity Men's Shop, the Intimate Book Shop, University Florists, Wentworth and Sloan Jewelers, Huggins Hardware, Foister's Camera Store, Ledbetter-Pickard's Gift Shop, Fowler's Food Store, Pender's Grocery, the Carolina Theatre and Pick's Theatre.

In April a new Trailways bus terminal was finished on West Franklin Street. Only in the last few years did it close its doors.

The spring of 1947 also saw groceries like

Fowlers and Pender's leave the main business block for sites on West Franklin Street. Owners felt traffic congestion was hurting them and by moving down the street they could have better parking facilities for their customers.

This got the attention of Town Manager T.E. Hinson who complained Chapel Hill simply had too many automobiles.

"There are two and a half times the number of cars than the town has space to take care of," he said. "It has more cars relative to population than any community in North Carolina, by a considerable margin."

Some things never change.

He suggested the University forbid students from owning or operating cars. However, several members of the Town Council argued against that and the idea died there.

General Eisenhower toured Fort Bragg that spring and also visited friends in Chapel Hill, attracting a good deal of attention.

Robert Frost, who had supposedly never missed a speaking engagement in his career, had train problems in Florida and missed a highly-anticipated lecture. It was moved back one day to accommodate him.

The year also saw Carolina's medical school begin expansion from a two to four-year program. In the spring work began on laying brick sidewalks throughout the campus. These replaced the dirt walks that had been in use since the University first came into existence.

In addition to the big football games, students looked to special dance weekends, fraternity parties and functions at Graham Memorial (the student union up to the late 1960's) for fun on campus.

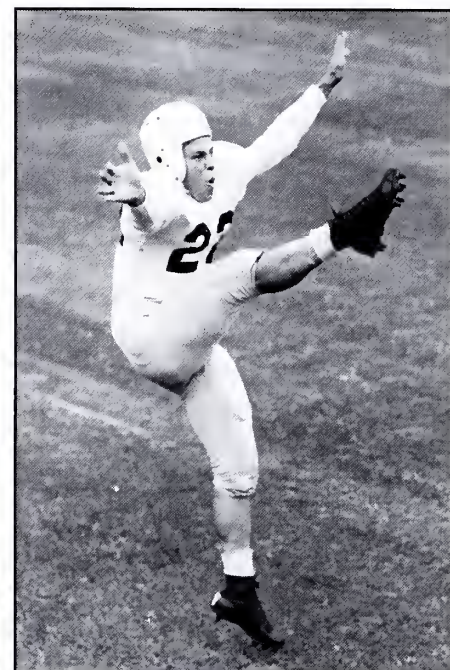

The Big Band Era was beginning to wind down, but Tommy Dorsey was still a magical name. He had appeared on campus during the war with Frank Sinatra as his vocalist. The Order of the Grail brought him back for a big dance in Woollen Gym.

However, organizers got upset when his band played too much "jive" instead of slow music for dancing. The Order sued him for $20,000 for breach of contract, saying he didn't bring his entire band with him. Sheriff W.P. Jordan handed him a summons before the dance ended. After performing, he quit as a conductor and never appeared in court. News stories at the time said he left the country for Rio de Janeiro.

The football team was the biggest story of that 1946-47 school year, but it was indeed a lively time to be in Chapel Hill.

0, and rallied from a 14-7 deficit in the fourth quarter to defeat Navy, 21-14. Full-back Walt Pupa scored the final two TDs on one and two-yard runs. Justice had opened the scoring in the first period with a two-yard run.

Florida was the next opponent back in Kenan Stadium. What many felt would be a close game turned into a 40-19 Tar Heel win. Justice ran 75 yards from scrimmage for one touchdown and returned the second-half kickoff 90 yards for another. He also had three punt returns for a combined 67 yards.

Tennessee then handed Carolina its first loss, 20-14, at Knoxville. Justice was sick, but still played. He turned in what many still feel was the most spectacular run of his career—a 74-yard scoring play on which he weaved back and forth through the entire Volunteer defense. One writer counted 13 Tennessee players who had a chance to bring him down.

However, a 78-yard punt return by Walter Slater proved to be the winning score for Tennessee in the third quarter. Justice, who had punted, was the last man Slater had to beat. He faked a lateral to a trailing teammate, Charlie went for it and Slater ended up in the end zone.

Carolina bounced back the following week to overpower William and Mary, 21-7, in a game which wasn't as close as the score might indicate. Justice, in fact, didn't even start. When he did get in the game he was mainly used as a decoy, setting up teammates with handoffs on reverses and double reverses. These plays gave upcoming opponents even more with which to be concerned.

Wake Forest brought a 5-2 record into Kenan Stadium the following week. It was a big game for the Tar Heels as one of the Deacon wins had come over Tennessee. It was a chance to regain some of the prestige that might have been lost in Knoxville.

Justice was sensational in a 26-14 triumph. He ran for 139 yards on 12 carries, raced 20 yards for one score and caught a 22-yard touchdown pass from Pupa. He set up UNC's first touchdown with a 62-yard run. That score came on his catch of a Pupa pass. He also had 65 and 58-yard punts which kept the Deacons in bad field position for most of the first half.

Pupa attempted three passes and completed all for touchdowns. In addition to the throw to Justice, he had a 37-yarder to Bob Cox and a 53-yarder to Art Weiner.

Next up was old rival Duke. The Blue Devils were only 4-4, but seemed to be peaking. They had won their previous two games. Plus, Carolina had not won in this rivalry since 1940, going 0-5-1. That included two losses in 1943 when wartime travel restrictions made it necessary for the teams to play twice.

Temporary bleachers were brought into Kenan Stadium and a crowd of 43,275 was on hand, at the time the largest ever for a game there. Elaborate plans were made to handle the traffic. Over 200 policemen and highway patrolmen were on hand, an unheard of total for those years.

A 24-yard touchdown pass from Justice to John Tandy tied the game at the half, 7-7. Two fourth-quarter TDs then gave the Tar Heels a 22-7 victory. Charlie's handoff to Jack Fitch on a double reverse accounted for a one-yard scoring run and he got the other six points himself on a 17-yard run, part of his 99 yards on the ground. It was to be the first of four straight victories over Duke during the Justice Era.

However, Justice slightly twisted his knee that day and there was speculation he would not play in the final game at Virginia. All he did was run for 169 yards on 16 carries, breaking off runs of 56, 40 and 18 yards. He scored three times in a 49-14 rout of the Cavaliers. Pupa added 128 yards on 15 carries.

The 8-1-1 record earned the Tar Heels an invitation to their first bowl game. Georgia would be the opponent in the Sugar Bowl on New Year's Day of 1947. That game featured a controversial play that proved instrumental in a 20-10 Bulldog victory. Still, the first year of the Justice Era was a huge success.

Charlie was a model citizen. He did not smoke or drink. He was quick to always give credit to the people around him. Football, perhaps more than any other sport, is truly a team game. One man, even one as great as Justice, could not win a game by himself and he was well aware of that.

He was fortunate to be surrounded by excellent players. Most of them, even those listed as freshmen had a good deal of football experience. Like Justice they had played on service teams during the war. Some upperclassmen had played at other schools before transferring to Carolina after ending their military service. In fact, the average age of the 70 players on the pre-season roster was 21.5. That might not seem so unusual except there were no seniors on the team, just 11 juniors and only 25 sophomores.

Carolina was three or four-deep at most positions. The ends were Weiner, Cox, Tandy, Ken Powell, Joe Romano, Mike Rubish, George Sparger and Dan Logue. Ernie Williamson and Len Szafaryn were the starting tackles, but behind them were Hazelwood, Stan Marczyk, Haywood Fowle and Jim Hendrick.

There were a host of standouts at guard. Among that group were Sid Varney, Emmett Cheek, Ralph Strayhorn, Bob Mitten and George Roberts. Chan Highsmith was a sensational center and Dan Stiegman was just as capable.

When he was out of the game, tailback duties fell to Bill Maceyko, Max Spellman or Bill Britt. All turned in big plays during the 1946 season. Pupa and Hosea Rodgers were the stars at fullback, but Bill Flamish and Robert Kennedy were dependable backups.

Don Hartig, Joe Wright and Bobby Weant saw most of the action at blocking back. Fitch, Jim Camp, Johnny Clements, Billy Myers and B.K. Grow shared time at wingback.

This incredible depth was what made Carolina so successful during this era. There was tremendous competition for playing time in practice and that made everyone better. That included Justice, who was one of the team's best practice players. He loved the game and relished every part of it.

JUSTICE ERA PROFILE

People tend to think of Charlie Justice as only a running back, but Justice completed 159 career passes and threw for 25 touchdowns, still the fourth-highest total in Tar Heel history.

Justice didn't possess the blazing speed of Kelvin Bryant. At 165 pounds he certainly didn't have the power of McCauley or Natrone Means.

So how was he able to break off so many long runs?

He had an amazing ability to change direction while going full speed and a great vision of the field. He could stop and begin running again without missing a beat, leaving would-be defenders grasping at air.

However, that's not to say Justice couldn't stand punishment. He ran between the tackles as often as he would go outside. Many Carolina fans worried that Snaveley worked him too much. But, Justice would have had it no other way. He was a team player and wanted to be treated like every other member of the squad.

How great was the impact Charlie Justice had on his alma mater?

Orville Campbell and Hank Beebe wrote a song about him, "All The Way Choo Choo." It was a hit, not only in Chapel Hill, but across the South. This was still the Big Band Era and the song was played by Benny Goodman, among others.

The school yearbook, the Yackety-Yack, was dedicated to the football team that year.

A teacher at an orphanage in North Carolina asked his pupils to name the most important man in the United States. The principal of the school got one vote; Harry Truman, president of the United States, had two; the remainder went to Justice.

Even today he gets standing ovations almost everywhere he's introduced. At the annual North Carolina Sports Hall of Fame banquet, his name always gets the loudest applause. This is in a room filled with the greatest athletes this state has produced.

Until a guy named Michael Jordan came along a few years ago he was still probably the best known athlete in school history. And he played before television turned sports stars into household names.

It has been 50 years since he played his first game here, but the name "Charlie Justice" is still a magical one. Anytime Carolina plays a game outside this area, someone in the press box will inevitably ask, "What's Charlie Justice doing these days?"

The standard response is "The same thing he was doing as a player—causing people to talk about Carolina football."

It's fitting that the Academy Award for top motion picture in 1946 went to The Best Years of Our Lives.

For although today that is not even the best-known movie seen in those 12 months, to a great many people 1946 was indeed the greatest year of their lives.

Men were coming home from the horrors of a war everyone wanted to forget, a war the likes of which no one had ever seen before and hopefully would never see again. In 1946, there were 35,000 discharges a day.

It became a year to rebuild relationships, start families, keep promises that had been made in letters from war-torn Europe or the South Pacific. For many of the returning veterans, a college education was a prime goal. Much of this was made possible by the 1944 G.I. Bill. It promised a free college education to those returning from military service. It was perhaps the greatest piece of legislation ever passed in Congress. Over 2,000,000 veterans used it to acquire full college degrees.

According to research published last winter in USA TODAY, an amazing 2,300,000 couples got married in 1946, a rate unmatched before or since. One in five of those marriages still has both partners alive and together.

That same kind of long-term relationship is what has made the Carolina football teams of 1946-49 so unique. While graduating classes usually have reunions every five years, the players on these teams get together almost annually. Squad members have always been there for each other when someone needed help. It is a special group of men who celebrate the 50th anniversary of the first of those teams this fall.

The minimum wage of 40 cents an hour in early 1946 jumped to 65 cents later in the year. The average salary was $2,359.

This was also a time when a loaf of bread cost 10 cents, a postage stamp was three cents and a quart of milk 15 cents.

Life magazine was 20 cents a copy and the price of a movie ticket was $1.20. Christmas cards were five cents each and a Timex watch could be purchased for $6.95.

The price of an average house was $12,638 and cars were $1,650. A Cadillac could be bought for $2,000. Gasoline was plentiful and cost 13 cents a gallon.

Movies and radio were the chief entertainment vehicles for most Americans. However, major companies were investing in the refinement of television. RCA was selling a 110-inch set for $374. But in 1946, there were only eight sets per 1,000 households.

In downtown Raleigh, a woman could buy a sports jacket for $5.98 at a leading clothing store or a silk dress for $49.95.

The 1946 National League pennant race was a thriller, ending in a tie between Brooklyn and St. Louis. The Cardinals won a playoff in two straight games. They then beat the Red Sox, 4-3, in the World Series, sweeping the last two games.

Carolina was in the Final Four at Madison Square Garden, but lost to Oklahoma A&M, 43-40, in the title game. Kentucky won the more prestigious NIT. On the professional front, the 11-team NBA was formed.

Notre Dame was winning the national gridiron championship with an 8-0-1 record. Defending champion Army battled the Irish to a scoreless tie and was ranked second. However, the Cadets' Glenn Davis won the Heisman Trophy.

Heavyweight champion Joe Louis successfully defended his title twice. Assault won the Triple Crown of horse racing and Yvon Petra captured Wimbledon's singles title. In golf, Sam Snead won the British Open, Lloyd Mangum the U.S. Open champion and Ben Hogan the PGA.

Hollywood's leading stars included Gary Cooper, Humphrey Bogart, Betty Grable, Ingrid Bergman, Myrna Loy, Judy Garland, Greer Garson, Hope and Crosby.

The motion picture for which 1946 will best be remembered starred Jimmy Stewart and Donna Reed. It was a Christmas fantasy and also described the feeling of most Americans that year. With the war behind them and families around them, a majority would have probably said "It's A Wonderful Life."

All selections are first-team choices, unless otherwise indicated.

George Barclay, Guard, 1934

Here is Carolina's first football All-America. The 5-11, 185-pound guard and linebacker was a three-year standout for Chuck Collins and Carl Snavelly. A fine blocker and an extraordinary tackler, Barclay lined up in the offensive interior next to tackle Jim Tatum. He was captain of the 1934 team which went 7-1-1. Barclay later served as head coach at Carolina for three seasons, from 1953 to 1955.

GEORGE BARCLAY

Andy Bershak, End, 1937

A 185-pound end, Bershak was a two-way performer for the Tar Heels. He was a fine receiver, but was even better on defense. He played two years for Carl Snavelly and one for Ray Wolf. Bershak, an honor student, was also a basketball starter. He was selected to the Order of the Golden Fleece and served as president of the Carolina Athletic Association.

Steve Maronic, Tackle, 1938

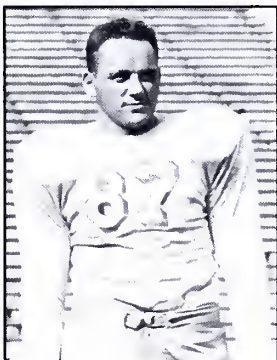

Maronic was a two-way tackle for the Tar Heels and team co-captain in 1938. He was an "iron man" playing almost 60 minutes in every game that season. He turned in two of his best performances in front of the New York media against NYU at Yankee Stadium and Fordham at the Polo Grounds. Those games solidified his All-America chances. Maronic also was a place-kicker and hit 13 straight PATs in his final season.

STEVE

Paul Severin, End, 1939-40

Severin was a two-time All-America selection by the Associated Press (1939 and 1940) and made most of the all-star teams in his senior season. His career was filled with big plays—a touchdown catch to tie Tulane in 1939, two scoring catches against Penn that same season and a touchdown-saving tackle from behind of Duke's great Steve Lach in a 6-3 win over the Blue Devils in 1940.

Charlie Justice, Halfback, 1948-49

Twice runnerup for the Heisman Trophy, Charlie Justice is rated by many as the best all-around player in the history of Southern football. He was a true triple-threat performer, leading Carolina in rushing, passing and punting from 1946 to 1949. He sparked Tar Heel teams which appeared in the Sugar Bowl twice and the Cotton Bowl once. He is the school's all-time total offense leader with 4,883 yards and also ranks as the Tar Heels' second-leading career scorer, seventh-leading rusher and 10th-leading passer. He had a career punting average of 42.6 and averaged 14.2 yards on punt returns and 26.6 yards on kickoff returns.

Justice is a member of the College Football Hall of Fame. In 1948 he received the national player of the year award from the Washington Touchdown Club and was recipient of the Walter Camp Memorial Trophy.

Art Weiner, End, 1948-49

A great all-around end, Weiner led the nation in receiving in 1949 with 52 catches. He had been seventh nationally in receiving the previous year with 31 catches. His 106 career catches are the second-most in school history and he still holds the UNC career record with 18 touchdown receptions. However, many remember him best for a game-saving defensive play on the last snap of the 1949 Duke game. After his senior season Weiner was named the most outstanding lineman in the Senior Bowl. Weiner was inducted into the College Football Hall of Fame in 1992.

Irv Holdash, Center, 1950

While Carolina's football fortunes slipped in the years immediately following the Charlie Justice Era, Holdash still received national attention for his outstanding play. A center on offense and linebacker on defense, Holdash was a three-year regular who never missed a game during his varsity career. He probably made All-America in 1950 with a sensational performance in a 14-7 loss at Notre Dame. Irish quarterback Bobby Williams called him "the best I've played against."

IRV

Al Goldstein, End, 1958

Goldstein was another outstanding two-way end at Carolina. He earned All-America honors in 1958 by making 24 catches for 490 yards, averaging an amazing 20.4 yards per reception. Adept at making the seemingly impossible catch, he had a 68-yard TD reception at Virginia. He also starred defensively and had a 46-yard interception return for a touchdown against Maryland.

Bob Lacey, End, 1963

Lacey led the Atlantic Coast Conference in receiving in 1963 with 48 catches for 533 yards. His pass-catching was a key factor as Carolina rolled to a 9-2 record, defeating the Air Force, 35-0, in the Gator Bowl. Lacey was also the team's top receiver in 1962 with 44 catches. He is the only Tar Heel player to have at least 40 catches in two seasons. His career total of 102 receptions is the third-best in school history.

Don McCauley, Halfback, 1970

Don McCauley shattered the Carolina and the Atlantic Coast Conference record books with a dazzling senior season in 1970. He rushed for 1,720 yards and scored 21 touchdowns, setting marks which still stand. His 1,720 yards was an all-time collegiate high at the time, breaking O.J. Simpson's NCAA record. McCauley led the nation in all-purpose running that season. He was twice the ACC Player of the Year and still ranks fourth in career rushing at Carolina. He had a lengthy professional career with the Baltimore Colts.

RON

Ron Rusnak, Offensive Guard, 1972

Rusnak was a unanimous All-America selection in 1972 as Carolina posted an 11-1 record. At 6-2 and 220 pounds, he did not have the size to play professional football, but Rusnak was a great college player. He was a two-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference choice, starting on teams which combined for a 20-4 record. In 1972 he won the Jacobs Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the ACC.

KEN HUFF

Ken Huff, Offensive Guard, 1974

Huff was a key man on one of the most explosive units in Carolina history. He was the leader of an offensive line which helped the Tar Heels accumulate 4,691 yards in 1974, at the time a school record. The 6-4, 255-pound Huff won the Jacobs Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the Atlantic Coast Conference. Sparked in great part by his play up front, the Tar Heels had two backs rush for over 1,000 yards in the same season. Huff was the third player selected in the NFL draft by the Baltimore Colts.

Charles Waddell, Tight End, 1974

Waddell rates as one of the best all-around athletes in Carolina history. He won three football letters, two in basketball and one in track. Not only was he a fine receiver at tight end, but he was also a dynamic blocker. He set a school single-game record in 1974 with three touchdown catches against Clemson. He had 41 career catches for 518 yards and seven TDs. His professional career was cut short by a knee injury.

DEE

Dee Hardison, Defensive Tackle, 1977

A two-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection, Hardison played on one of the top defensive teams in Carolina history. UNC led the nation in scoring defense in 1977, giving up just 7.4 points a game. The Tar Heels led the ACC in total, rushing, passing and scoring defense. A big reason was the play of Hardison, a 6-3, 252-pound tackle who dominated the line of scrimmage all season. After leaving Carolina he began a lengthy NFL career with the Buffalo Bills.

Ricky Barden, Defensive Back, 1979

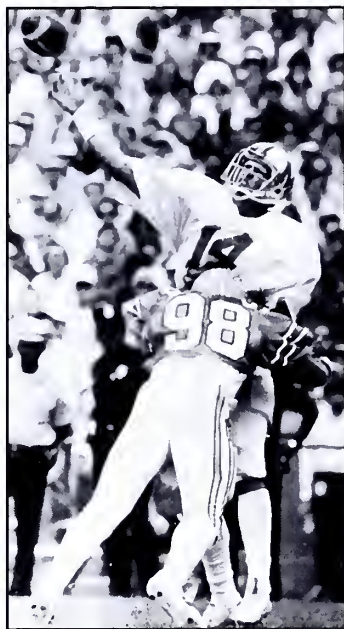

One of the top defensive backs in Carolina history, Barden was a repeat All-Atlantic Coast Conference selection in 1978 and 1979. Barden made nine career interceptions. He started at cornerback for two years and then was shifted to strong safety for his final year where he broke up nine passes and was the third-leading tackler on the team. His 156 yards on interception returns are the most in school history.

Lawrence Taylor, Outside Linebacker, 1980

From midway in his junior season until the end of his senior year in 1980, Taylor dominated the football field as few defensive players ever had. Now regarded as the finest outside linebacker in the history of the game, Taylor had a remarkable senior season which featured 16 quarterback sacks and six other tackles for losses. In Carolina's only close games in an 11-1 season, Taylor made the game-saving defensive plays against Texas Tech and Clemson. He was a runaway selection as Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year.

Ron Wooten, Offensive Guard, 1980

Wooten won the Jacobs Blocking Trophy in 1980 as the best blocker in the Atlantic Coast Conference. He was the leading vote-getter in the offensive line on the All-ACC team. He was one of the leaders of an offensive line which helped the Tar Heels lead the ACC in total offense and which also helped produce two 1,000-yard backs. He went on to become a starting guard with New England in the NFL.

David Drechsler, Offensive Guard, 1981-82

Drechsler became Carolina's first two-time All-America since Charlie Justice and Art Weiner when he earned first-team honors in 1981 and 1982. He played every position in the offensive interior during his Carolina career, but settled in at guard. The 6-4, 253-pound Drechsler played on Tar Heel teams which were 37-10-1 and were unbeaten in four bowl games. He also was the winner of a post-graduate scholarship from the NCAA.

Drechsler went on to become a starter with the Green Bay Packers until a back injury forced him to give up the game.

DAVID DRECHSLER
William Fuller, Defensive Tackle, 1982-83

Fuller is one of just five Carolina players to win first-team All-America honors twice. Although powerfully built at 6-3 and 250 pounds, Fuller's greatest asset was his quickness. He used that quickness to make 13 tackles for losses and six sacks in 1982 and 17 tackles for losses with five sacks the following year. He was the only unanimous choice on the 1983 All-ACC team and is one of just two defensive linemen ever to make All-ACC for three straight years.

WILLIAM FULLER, All-America in 1982 and 1983, was AFC Defensive Player of the Year in 1991 when he played with the Houston Oilers. Fuller is currently with the Philadelphia Eagles.

Brian Blados, Offensive Tackle, 1983

When two Carolina tailbacks ran for over 1,000 yards in 1983, much of that yardage came behind Blados. The 6-6, 305-pound left tackle dominated the line of scrimmage as Carolina set a school total offense record and finished seventh nationally in yardage. Blados was named on 90 of 100 ballots in voting for the All-Atlantic Coast Conference team. He was a first round choice by the Cincinnati Bengals in the NFL draft.

Harris Barton, Offensive Tackle, 1986

Barton was a four-year starter for the Tar Heels, first at center and then at tackle. With so many teams playing even-man front defenses, Barton was moved to tackle in 1984 to take better advantage of his skills. He excelled at left tackle, the key blocking spot in the Carolina passing game. As a senior, he led an offensive line which helped the Tar Heels rank first in the Atlantic Coast Conference and sixth nationally in total offense. An excellent student, he was chosen for a post-graduate scholarship by the National Football Foundation and was a first-round selection in the NFL draft.

HARRIS BARTON earned All-America honors in 1986. In addition to being an outstanding football player, Barton was an exemplary student. Drafted in the first round by the San Francisco 49ers, he has gone on to earn three Super Bowl championship rings and was named NFL All-Pro in 1992 and 1993.

Pat Crowley, Offensive Guard, 1989

Crowley was a standout offensive guard and a leader of the first of Mack Brown's teams. He won first-team All-Atlantic Coast Conference honors in 1987, 1988 and 1989 and became only the second offensive lineman in conference history to win three all-league honors (Virginia's Jim Dombrowski was the other). He started every game in his college career and helped open the way for a pair of 1,000-yard backs (Derrick Fenner in 1986 and Kennard Martin in 1988).

PAT CROWLEY

Bracey Walker, Free Safety, 1993

The first Carolina defensive back to ever receive first-team All-America honors by a major organization, Walker burst onto the scene in 1992 when he was one of the stars of the Peach Bowl win over Mississippi State. Walker blocked two punts in that game, returned one of them for a tying touchdown and set up the game-winning interception with a jarring collision. He was the Defensive MVP of the Peach Bowl.

In 1993 he led the Tar Heels with 100 tackles and was the co-

Marcus Jones, Defensive Tackle, 1995

The alltime leading sack man in Carolina football history, Jones became the first Tar Heel to earn consensus first-team All-America honors since Harris Barton in 1986 and the first defensive lineman since William Fuller in 1982-83. Jones had 25 career sacks, four more than Taylor, and finished with 222 tackles. That included 46 behind the line of scrimmage.

He was named the Atlantic Coast Conference Defensive Player of the Year in 1995 and earned first-team All-ACC honors for the second straight season. He became the first Tar Heel defender to repeat all-conference selections since Tim Goad in 1986-87.

As a senior he had a career-high 94 tackles, despite facing constant double- and triple-team efforts. He registered an ACC-leading 19 tackles for losses for 74 yards, seven of which were quarterback sacks. He was hampered in the first half of the season by a knee sprain. Over the last five weeks of the regular season, however, he averaged 10.8 tackles per game and had 16 tackles for losses for 65 yards, including six sacks for 41 yards, and pressured the quarterback 13 times.

Quite fittingly, Jones capped his career by sacking Arkansas quarterback Barry Lunney on the Razorbacks' final offensive play in Carolina's 20-10 win in the 1995 Carquest Bowl.

That's the magic figure for any runner in football.

Call him a halfback, a running back, a tailback, an I-Back or whatever you want. But, when he rushes for 1,000 yards, you simply call him something special.

Nowhere in college football have there been more special runners than at the University of North Carolina.

In the last 27 years Tar Heel tailbacks have rushed for over 1,000 yards on 23 occasions. That gives Carolina more 1,000-yard backs than anyone else in collegiate history. The University of Southern California is second with 20.

In a 12-year period from 1973 to 1984, Carolina had at least one player break the 1,000-yard mark each season. And in the eight years of Mack Brown's reign in Chapel Hill, four Tar Heels have topped the 1,000-yard plateau on five occasions. In 1993 both Curtis Johnson and Leon Johnson rushed for 1,000-plus yards, the fourth time in UNC history that not one, but two, players topped the 1,000-yard mark.

In 1992 Natrone Means rushed for 1,195 yards, his second consecutive 1,000-yard season. In 1991, Means rushed for 1,030 yards and vaulted over the magical 1,000-yard barrier on his final carry of the season, a 68-yard touchdown run versus arch-rival Duke. He topped 1,000 in similar fashion in '92 as he reached the magical figure on a wild, 76-yard scoring scamper at Maryland.

Three times in a 12-year stretch from 1973-84, the Tar Heels had two tailbacks get 1,000 yards in the same season.

It has been rare in college football for a school to produce two 1,000-yard backs in one year. When it has happened it has generally been with option attacks— the veer or the wishbone. But, on all four occasions when Carolina has had a pair of 1,000-yard rushers, the players actually shared the same position— tailback in an I-formation.

To be a tailback at Carolina, one has to be a superb athlete, one of the nation's best players, someone special.

How has Carolina been able to produce so many 1,000-yard backs?

Certainly, having outstanding runners has been a major factor. But, other schools also have had great backs and haven't been able to compile the figures of Carolina.

Reasons for this success include fine offensive linemen, belief in the I-formation and tradition. Those reasons also hold true for Southern California.

ETHAN HORTON rushed for 1,107 yards in 1983 and 1,247 yards a year later when he was named ACC Player of the Year.

Carolina and USC have each had two players rush for 1,000 yards three times— Mike Voight and Kelvin Bryant of the Tar Heels and the Trojans' Charles White and Anthony Davis.

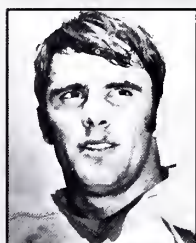

In addition, Carolina's Amos Lawrence had an amazing four 1,000-yard seasons. He and Pittsburgh's Tony Dorsett are the only major college players ever to hit the 1,000-yard mark four times.

Don McCauley rushed for 1,720 yards in 1970. At that time that broke O.J. Simpson's alltime NCAA single-season yardage record.

McCauley is Carolina's only 1,000-yard back from outside the ACC's geographic area. He is a native of Garden City, N.Y.

Bryant, Tyrone Anthony, James Betterton, Ethan Horton, Sammy Johnson, Kennard Martin, Means, Curtis Johnson and Leon Johnson are all North Carolinians. Lawrence and Voight grew up in Virginia, and Derrick Fenner is from Maryland.

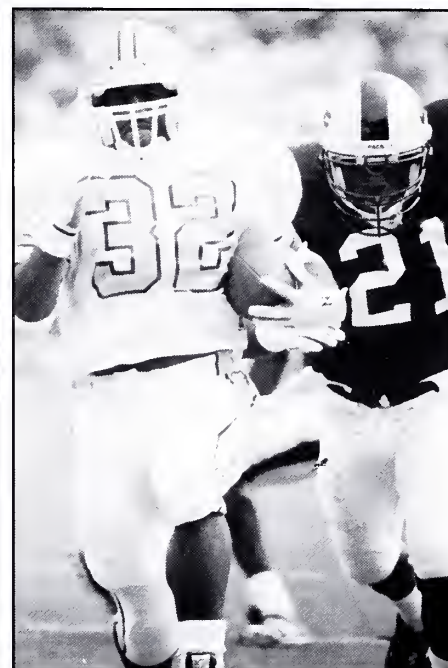

All who have been eligible have gone on to compete in the professional ranks.

McCauley played with the Baltimore

Colts for 11 seasons and broke many of the club's rushing and scoring records set by Alan Ameche and Lenny Moore. Bryant was the USFL's Player of the Year in that league's first season. He joined the Washington Redskins in 1986.

Means led the Chargers to the Super Bowl in 1994 and was named to the Pro Bowl. He set the single-season rushing record for the Chargers in just his second season when he compiled 1,350 yards in 1994. Means was second in the AFC and fourth in the NFL in rushing yards and he set a Charger record with five consecutive 100-yard games.

Horton, Sammy Johnson and Leon Johnson were recruited as quarterbacks. All of the others were high school halfbacks, although McCauley was more highly regarded as a defensive back.

Fenner set the ACC rushing record in 1986 by gaining 328 yards against Virginia, although that mark was surpassed by Wake Forest's John Leach in 1993 against Maryland. Martin had 291 in 1988 against Duke. Lawrence had 286 against Virginia in 1970 and McCauley gained 279 against Duke in 1970. Then comes Voight's 261 against the Blue Devils in 1976. And in 1990, Means rushed for 256 yards in the season finale vs. Duke.

The top two single-season efforts ever in the ACC are McCauley's 1,720 yards in 1970 and Voight's 1,407 in 1976.

It has been performances like those which have made Carolina's tailback position what it is—a spot filled with tradition, a spot for special players, a spot for 1,000-yard rushers.

UNC BOWL HISTORY

Carolina's bowl history started with three New Year's Day appearances during the late Forties when Charlie Justice was the big star of some of the school's greatest teams. Perhaps the most famous of those games was the 1947 Sugar Bowl which matched UNC against Georgia. This game produced one of the most controversial plays in bowl history.

Carolina was leading 7-0 in the third period when Bulldog defensive end Joe Tereshinski intercepted a Tar Heel pass. He then flipped a lateral to Dick McPhee who raced to the UNC 14. Carolina argued the lateral was a forward one and the play should have been called back. However, the officials ruled differently. Georgia went on to score and a 20-10 victory.

Justice was sensational running and punting when the Tar Heels returned to the Sugar Bowl two years later, but Oklahoma won the game, 14-6. Justice also played well in the 1950 Cotton Bowl, but Carolina lost to Rice, 27-13.

The Tar Heels' next bowl appearance did not come until 1963, but Ken Willard made the wait worthwhile in sparking a 35-0 win over the Air Force in the Gator Bowl. He ran for 94 yards and scored the opening touchdown to key the runaway victory.

Beginning in 1970 Carolina made 12 bowl trips in 17 years. After dropping a 26-14 decision to Arizona State in the 1970 Peach Bowl, the Tar Heels and Georgia made bowl history in the 1971 Gator Bowl. This is the only time in history brothers have opposed each other as head coaches in a bowl game with Bill Dooley's Tar Heels taking on his brother Vince's Bulldogs. The game was a great defensive struggle with Georgia coming from behind to win, 7-3.

Carolina capped an 11-1 season in 1972 with a dramatic 32-28 win over Texas Tech in the Sun Bowl. Quarterback Nick Vidnovic was the big star, completing 14 of 26 passes for 215 yards. It was his 62-yard touchdown pass to Ted Leverenz which gave the Tar Heels a 24-21 halftime lead.

Tech came back to go ahead, 28-24, but Vidnovic hit Leverenz with a 13-yard TD strike with just a minute to play to bring Carolina back. The Tar Heels then sealed the win when tackle Ronnie Robinson dropped Red Raider quarterback Joe Barnes for a safety.

Mike Voight and James Betterson each had big days rushing in the 1974 Sun Bowl, but Carolina couldn't stop the veer attack of Mississippi State. The two teams combined for 901 yards of offense, but the Bulldogs won, 26-24, when the Tar Heels were stopped on a fourth-and-one at their own 43 during a last-minute drive.

Kentucky blanked Carolina, 21-0, in the 1976 Peach Bowl and the following season the Tar Heels dropped a heartbreaking 21-17 decision to Nebraska in the Liberty Bowl. Sparked by quarterback Matt Kupec, Carolina had a 17-7 lead in the fourth quarter. But, the Cornhuskers rallied behind the play of reserve quarterback Randy Garcia.

Kupec and Amos Lawrence were the biggest stars in Carolina's 17-15 win over Michigan in the 1979 Gator Bowl. Lawrence rushed for 118 yards and Kupec hit on 18 of 28 passes.

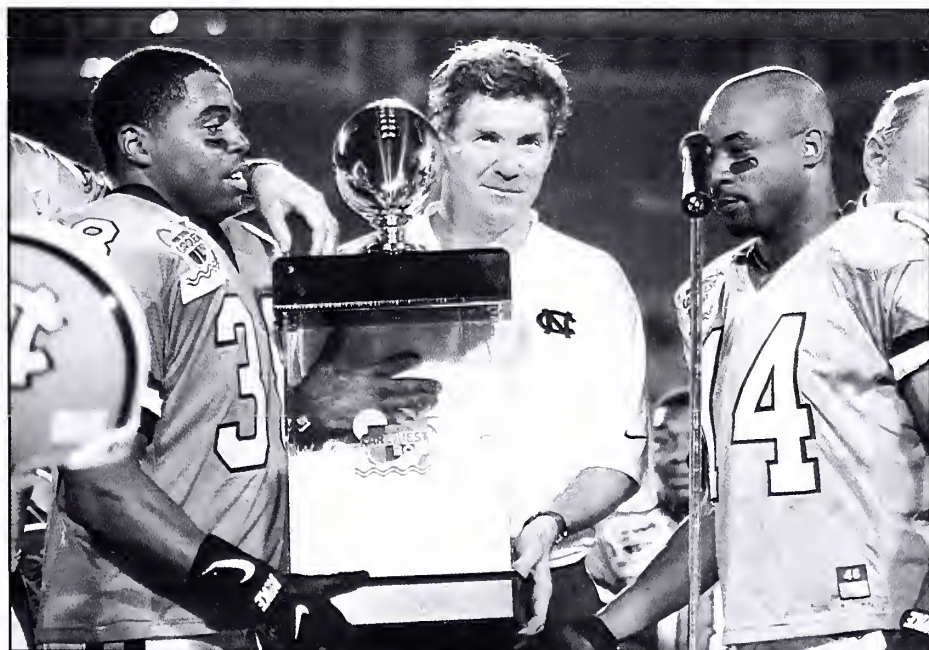

Lawrence again was the big star in a 16-7 win over Texas in the 1980 Bluebonnet Bowl. He rushed for 104 yards and had a 59-yard touchdown run. Carolina's other scoring came on a two-yard plunge by Kelvin Bryant and a field goal by Jeff Hayes.

But, the key to this game was a Tar Heel defense which limited the Longhorns to just two first downs and only 36 total yards in the second half. Lawrence Taylor was all over the field making sensational plays, although safety Steve Streater was chosen the game's defensive MVP with an interception, fumble recovery and a 63-yard punt.

In an eerie setting the following year, Carolina defeated Arkansas, 31-27, in the Gator Bowl. The field was shrouded in fog much of the night, making it almost impossible to see the action from the press box. Bryant ran for 148 yards and his backup, Ethan Horton, added 144.

Horton again was the big star in the 1982 Sun Bowl as Carolina came from behind to defeat seventh-ranked Texas, 26-10. Coming off the bench for an injured Bryant, Horton rushed for 119 yards and one touchdown.

The Tar Heel defense was brilliant, making two great goal line stands and shutting down the Texas attack in the second half. Rob Rogers and Brooks Barwick added a pair of field goals despite weather conditions which featured a wind chill factor of 12 degrees and snow throughout the game.

UNC'S BOWL HISTORY

That Sun Bowl game made Carolina the first Atlantic Coast Conference school ever to win four straight bowl games. But, that streak came to an end with a 28-3 loss to Florida State in the 1983 Peach Bowl.

The Tar Heels spotted Arizona a 30-0 lead in the 1986 Aloha Bowl, before putting on a big second-half rally. Torin Dorn finally got Carolina going against a rugged Wildcat defense with an Aloha-record 58-yard touchdown run.

Norris Davis made two big defensive plays, intercepting a pass and blocking a punt. Mark Maye threw to Randy Marriott for a score, but Arizona held on, 30-21.

Following the 1992 season the Tar Heels rallied from a 14-0 halftime deficit behind MVPs Natrone Means (128 yards rushing, one TD) and Bracey Walker (two blocked punts, one forced interception) to beat Mississippi State, 21-17, in the Peach Bowl.

Walker picked up his second blocked punt and returned it 41 yards for a touchdown to tie the game at 14. Moments later, early in the fourth quarter, Walker broke up a Bulldog pass and Cliff Baskerville intercepted the ball and ran it back 44 yards for the winning score.

The 1993 Tar Heels battled defending national champion Alabama to a 10-10 tie for the first half, but the Tide scored on a pair of 12-play drives of 65 and 66 yards in the second half to record a 24-10 win over Caro-

UNC quarterback Jason Stanicek set school bowl game records for pass completions (19) and yardage (235) and Corey Holliday established a Tar Heel postseason record for receptions (nine) and receiving yardage (125). Fullback William Henderson scored for UNC on a one-yard run.

Carolina lost a heartbreaking, 35-31 decision to Texas in the 1994 Sun Bowl despite record-setting performances from several players. The Tar Heels led the Longhorns, 31-21, early in the final quarter but Texas tailback Priest Holmes scored his third and fourth rushing touchdowns of the game in the final six minutes.

UNC quarterback Mike Thomas completed 23 of 39 passes for 298 yards and two scores, freshman wide receiver Octavus Barnes made nine receptions for 165 yards and wide receiver Marcus Wall added seven catches and returned a fourth quarter punt 82 yards for a touchdown.

Wall's punt return, the first time he ever returned a punt in his collegiate career, gave Carolina a 24-21 lead. On the Tar Heels' next possession, Thomas completed a 50-yard scoring pass to Barnes.

Thomas established UNC bowl game records for most pass completions and yards and tied bowl game marks for pass attempts and touchdown throws. Barnes set Sun Bowl and Tar Heel records for catches and yards receiving.

Wall set an ACC bowl game record with 227 all-purpose yards. The 82-yard punt return was the third-longest ever in a bowl game.

Last year in the Carquest Bowl, Leon Johnson established a Tar Heel bowl game record as he rushed for 195 yards in Carolina's 20-10 win over Arkansas. The Razorbacks had won the SEC Western Division title. Johnson rushed for 172 yards in the second half, including a 28-yard touchdown run which gave the Tar Heels the lead for good in the third quarter.

Mike Thomas, starting his third career bowl game, iced the win with an 87-yard scoring pass to freshman L.C. Stevens. The reception was the longest in UNC bowl history and the second-longest in Carolina history. It also tied the mark for the fifth-longest passing play in college football bowl history.

UNC'S BOWL HISTORY

1947 SUGAR BOWL JANUARY 1, 1947 GEORGIA 20, CAROLINA 10

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — The 1947 Sugar Bowl, which matched Carolina against Georgia, is one of the most famous Tar Heel games of the Charlie "Choo Choo" Justice years and produced one of the most controversial plays in bowl history.

Carolina was leading 7-0 in the third period when Bulldog defensive right end Joe Terreshinski intercepted a Tar Heel pass at the Georgia 24-yard line. He then flipped a lateral to Dick McPhee who raced 52 yards to the Carolina 14.

The Tar Heels argued the lateral was a forward one and the play should have been called back. However, the officials ruled differently. Georgia went on to score the tying touchdown on a quarterback sneak by Johnny Rauch.

Carolina's lone touchdown came on a Walt Pupa two-yard run following an interception by Tar Heel guard Bob Mitten.

The Tar Heels' last lead at 10-7 came on a Bob Cox field goal.

The Georgia game-winner came on a 67-yard touchdown pass from Trippi to Dan Edwards less than three minutes after the UNC field goal.

1949 SUGAR BOWL JANUARY 1, 1949 OKLAHOMA 14, CAROLINA 6

NEW ORLEANS, LA. — The Tar Heels returned to the Sugar Bowl in 1949 and were defeated 14-6 by the University of Oklahoma, representing the Big Seven Conference. A record crowd of 85,000 turned out to see the Charlie Justice-led Tar Heels battle Bud Wilkinson's Sooners.

Carolina threatened early, advancing via a Justice to Art Weiner 23-yard pass play to the OU 15. Justice's next pass, however, was intercepted by linebacker Myrle Greathouse who rumbled 59 yards to the Carolina 13. Sooners' quarterback Jack Mitchell scored the first points of the day on a two-yard run.

The Heels capitalized on an OU fumble later in the first quarter and Justice marched the team down to the two, from where Hosea Rodgers scored. The conversion was wide right.

Carolina advanced to the OU eight late in the first half, but could not score.

The Sooners regained the lead for good in the third quarter. Quarterback Darrell Royal connected for 37 yards with Frankie Anderson and two plays later, Lindell Pearson ran it in from eight yards out.

Justice was brilliant, rushing for 84 yards and passing for another 57.

1996 BOWL ALLIANCE

The Bowl Alliance was formed in 1995 to create a mechanism for providing college football fans with the best possible bowl games, including a game between the two top-ranked college football teams, when possible, and to maximize the number of opportunities for a variety of high quality bowl game matchups. The FedEx Orange, Nokia Sugar and Tostitos Fiesta Bowls have joined with the Atlantic Coast, Big East Football, Big 12, Big Ten, Pacific 10, and Southeastern Conferences and the University of Notre Dame to form the Alliance.

The champions of the Atlantic Coast, Big East Football, Big 12 and Southeastern Conferences will appear in one of the aforementioned bowl games following the 1996 regular season.

The remaining two at-large positions may be filled by any Division I-A college football team eligible for postseason competition, excluding the Big Ten and Pacific 10 champions, that meet any one of the following requirements:

1) has won at least eight college football games during the most recently completed regular season; not to include wins in either the Pigskin and/or Kickoff Classic;

2) is ranked among the top 12 bowl eligible teams in either the AP or the CNN/USA Today final regular-season polls;

3) is ranked no lower in either the AP or CNN/USA Today poll than the lowest-ranked team selected by a bowl from the conference champions.

In the event that two or more teams tie for the championship of the Atlantic Coast or Big East Football Conferences and remain tied for the championship after all tie-breaking procedures employed by such conference have been exhausted, the tied team with the highest ranking in both the AP and CNN/USA Today polls shall be included in the conference champions pool. If the tied teams have the same ranking or the polls disagree as to the highest-ranked team, then all such tied teams will be eligible and the selecting bowl shall have the right to select which team it desires.

Team selection shall occur no later than Sunday, December 8, 1996. The selection order shall be as follows:

Selections 1 and 2	Nokia Sugar Bowl (game date: January 2, 1997)
Selections 3 and 5	Tostitos Fiesta Bowl (game date: January 1, 1997)
Selections 4 and 6	FedEx Orange Bowl (game date: December 31, 1996)

Mandatory 1 vs. 2 Pairing: The Nokia Sugar Bowl shall select any team ranked number one in the AP poll and any team ranked number one in the CNN/USA Today poll if the teams so ranked are different and two such teams are available. In any other case, the Nokia Sugar Bowl shall select any team ranked number one in either the AP or the CNN/USA Today poll and any team ranked number two in either poll if two teams so ranked are available.

All other team selections shall come from the pool of teams specified above and will be at the discretion of the participating bowls.

DALLAS, TEXAS — Charlie Justice had another great day in the 1950 Cotton Bowl, but it just wasn't enough as the Tar Heels fell to fifth-ranked Rice, 27-13. The Owls had a 9-1-0 record, while Carolina came in at 7-3 and was ranked 16th.

Rice and Carolina played to a scoreless draw in the opening quarter, but Rice opened the scoring in the second quarter when quarterback Tobin Rote hooked up with Billy Burkhalter for a 44-yard touchdown. Bobby Lantrip's three-yard run built a 14-0 halftime lead, and the Owls kept right on rolling in the third quarter.

On its second possession of the second half, Rice traveled 77 yards in six plays, capped by Rote's 17-yard scoring pass to "Froggie" Williams. Burkhalter made it 27-0 with a 12-yard fourth quarter score.

The Tar Heels got two touchdowns in the final eight minutes. Justice hit Paul Rizzo for a two-yard touchdown pass and then Rizzo ran it in from two yards.

Justice managed 59 yards rushing and another 63 in the air, while Art Weiner led the Tar Heels with five receptions for 41 yards. Billy Hayes topped the UNC rushing attack with 107 yards on 19 carries.

The 1950 Cotton Bowl marked the end of the "Choo-Choo" Justice era that began in 1946. The Tar Heels went 32-9-2 in that time and played in three major bowl games.

1963 GATOR BOWL DECEMBER 28, 1963 CAROLINA 35, AIR FORCE 0

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — It had been 13 years since Charlie Justice had led Carolina to the 1950 Cotton Bowl, so when the Tar Heels got a chance to play in the 1963 Gator Bowl, they made the most of it. The Tar Heels walloped the Air Force, 35-0.

Ken Willard was the hero of the day. He ran for 94 yards on 18 carries and scored the first touchdown which keyed the run-away victory. When Willard wasn't running in this rout, he did his share of the offensive blocking.

UNC'S BOWL HISTORY

Joe Robinson scored on a five-yard pass and also caught a two-yard conversion to give the Tar Heels a 20-0 lead at intermission.

Coach Jim Hickey's Tar Heels had 23 first downs to the Academy's 14, and piled up 370 yards in total offense compared to 260 for the Falcons.

Gary Black completed all six of his passes for 71 yards and one touchdown and he rushed for another score. Junior Edge was good on five of his nine throws for 42 yards.

Carolina finished the season 9-2, its best record in Hickey's eight years at the helm.

ATLANTA — The Tar Heels exploded for 26 second quarter points but couldn't hold off Arizona State in the final two quarters as the Sun Devils rallied for an exciting 48-26 victory before 52,126 fans at Grant Field.

DON McCAULEY rushed for 143 yards and three touchdowns but the Tar Heels lost to Arizona State in the 1970 Sun Bowl. The appearance was the last for McCauley as a Tar Heel.

Carolina spotted unbeaten ASU 14 points on a pair of touchdowns runs, from eight and 33 yards, by Bob Thomas.

Don McCauley got the Tar Heels on the scoreboard with a one-yard plunge set up by a long pass from Paul Miller to Ricky Lanier. ASU scored on its next series, though, on a 67-yard TD catch by J.D. Hill.

Carolina then scored the final three touchdowns of the first half to go into the intermission with a 26-21 lead. First, Miller passed 37 yards for a score to Tony Blanchard. Then McCauley rushed in from 17 yards out. And finally, the All-America McCauley scored again from four yards.

Arizona State dominated a second half which was played in a heavy Atlanta snowstorm and without Miller, who left with an injury.

Monroe Ely scored twice and Thomas reached the end zone for the third time in the Sun Devils' 27-point second half.

1971 GATOR BOWL

DECEMBER 31, 1971

GEORGIA 7, CAROLINA 3

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — For the first time since 1950, the Tar Heels were playing in a bowl game for the second consecutive season. This time, the Tar Heels would fall, 7-3, to the Georgia Bulldogs.

The game produced a bowl first — brothers coaching against each other. Bill Dooley led the Tar Heels and older brother Vince coached the Dawgs.

The game was a defensive struggle with all the points coming in the third quarter.

In the opening half, Carolina had the best chance as linebacker Jimmy Webster, voted the Tar Heels' MVP this day, blocked a punt out of bounds at the Georgia 24. A fumble, though, denied Carolina any points.

A pair of long runs by Lewis Jolley brought the Tar Heels down to the Georgia 16 on UNC's first possession of the second half. But a procedure penalty forced the Heels to settle for a 35-yard field goal by Ken Craven.

A 31-yard pass play from Andy Johnson to Roy Hunnicutt set up the Georgia touchdown. Jimmy Poulos, on the very next play following Hunnicutt's catch, took it in for a score from 25 yards. Poulos rushed for 161 yards on the afternoon and was named the Georgia MVP.

1972 SUN BOWL

CAROLINA 32, TEXAS TECH 28

EL PASO, TEXAS — Carolina capped an 11-1 season in the 1972 Sun Bowl by defeating Texas Tech, 32-28. Quarterback Nick Vidnovic brought the Tar Heels from behind with a late scoring drive which he capped by tossing a 13-yard touchdown pass to wingback Ted Leverenz.

That play, with a minute to go in the game, gave UNC a 30-28 lead. Carolina added two points moments later as Ronnie Robinson sacked quarterback Joe Barnes in the end zone.

The Tar Heels led 9-0 in the second quarter on a field goal by Ellis Alexander and touchdown run by Dick Oliver. The Red Raiders rallied, however, for the next 21 points and a 21-9 lead. Vidnovic hit Leverenz for a 62-yard touchdown and Billy Hite carried it in from three yards to reestablish a 24-21 Carolina lead. Tech gained the advantage, 28-24, with 7:41 to play in the game.

Vidnovic completed 14 of 26 passes for 215 yards and two touchdowns. Ike Oglesby rushed for 71 yards and Sammy Johnson added 52.

The Red Raiders had a touchdown called back in the second quarter. All-America guard Donald Rives ran a blocked punt back for an apparent score, but Tech was flagged for unsportsmanlike conduct and the points were nullified.

1974 SUN BOWL

MISSISSIPPI ST. 26, CAROLINA 24

EL PASO, TEXAS — Despite mounting 402 yards in total offense, the Tar Heels dropped a 26-24 decision to Mississippi State in a record-setting Sun Bowl.

Terry Vitrano's two-yard touchdown with 3:41 remaining was the game-winner. That capped a 16-play, 80-yard drive which lasted nearly seven minutes.

Carolina had taken a 24-20 lead with 10:26 to play on an Ellis Alexander field goal.

The Bulldogs totaled a Sun Bowl record 499 yards in total offense — 455 of those yards came on the ground via the veer offense. Walter Packer rushed for 189 yards, Vitrano added 164 and quarterback Rocky Felker gained another 69.

The Tar Heels also got big ground gains from Mike Voight and James Betterson. Voight picked up 90 yards on 19 carries and Betterson chipped in with 84 on 17 rushes. But Voight was stopped a yard shy of a first down on Carolina's last offensive play of the game.

Betterson had two rushing scores and Chris Kupec, who led the nation in pass completion percentage, connected with Jimmy Jerome for 29 yards and a touchdown.

1976 PEACH BOWL DECEMBER 31, 1976 KENTUCKY 21, CAROLINA 0

ATLANTA—Playing without an injured Mike Voight, the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year, the Tar Heels managed just five first downs and 108 yards total offense in a 21-0 loss to Kentucky.

Voight, who had rushed for 1,407 yards, injured his ankle in practice two days before the game when he stepped in a hole going out on a pass play. Ironically, Voight had caught just four passes the entire season.

The teams battled to a tie at the half, but Carolina thought it had put up points in the first quarter. On the Tar Heels' opening drive, Matt Kupec hit split end Walker Lee with a 50-yard touchdown pass, but officials ruled the Tar Heels offside and the play came back.

Early in the third quarter, Kentucky defensive end Bud Diehl knocked the ball from Kupec's grasp and the 'Cats recovered at the UNC 21. That set up the first of three rushing touchdowns by fullback Rod Stewart.

Stewart, who finished with 104 yards and the game's MVP trophy, added fourth quarter scores from 13 and three yards.

Subbing for Voight, freshman Doug Paschal led the Tar Heels with 41 yards rushing.

1977 LIBERTY BOWL DECEMBER 19, 1977 NEBRASKA 21, CAROLINA 17

MEMPHIS, TENN. — Thirteenth-ranked Nebraska scored two fourth quarter touchdowns and rallied for a 21-17 victory over 13th-rated North Carolina.

Reserve quarterback Randy Garcia came off the Cornhuskers' bench in the final period to toss a pair of touchdown passes, including a 33-yard game-winner to Tim Smith with 3:16 left in the game. That came six plays after Nebraska recovered a fumble at the UNC 43.

Tar Heel quarterback Matt Kupec, voted the game's Most Valuable Player despite the loss, had led the Tar Heels to a 17-7 lead in the third quarter. Kupec, who connected on seven of his 11 passes, threw touchdown passes to Brooks Williams and Bob Loomis. Tom Biddle added Carolina's final points with 4:17 left in the third on a Liberty Bowl record 47-yard field goal.

Carolina led the nation in scoring defense in 1977, allowing just 7.4 points per game through the regular season. Nebraska was the only team to score more than 14 points against the Tar Heels all season.

Bill Dooley resigned in January 1978 to accept the dual position of head football coach and athletic director at Virginia Tech.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — Matt Kupec completed 18 of 28 passes for 161 yards and one touchdown and Amos Lawrence rushed for 118 yards to lead North Carolina to a 17-15 win over Michigan.

Trailing 9-0, the Tar Heels rallied for the next 17 points and then held off a Michigan threat late in the game to post the first of Dick Crum's four consecutive bowl wins.

Carolina had two chances early on to score first, but high winds knocked down a pair of Jeff Hayes field goal attempts. Michigan did score first following a turnover and added a 53-yard touchdown reception by Anthony Carter to move ahead 9-0.

Doug Paschal put the Heels on the board with a two-yard touchdown. Early in the third, Kupec engineered a 16-play, 97-yard touchdown drive which culminated in a 12-yard pass to Phil Farris. Hayes added a 32-yard field goal in the fourth for a 17-9 UNC lead.

HOUSTON, TEXAS — Amos Lawrence rushed for 104 yards and one touchdown and the Tar Heel defense allowed just two first downs and 36 total yards in the second half as Carolina played error-free football to defeat Texas, 16-7, in the Bluebonnet Bowl.

Lawrence, the game's Most Valuable Offensive Player, scampered 59 yards for a touchdown on the Tar Heels' fourth play from scrimmage for a 7-0 lead. Following a Texas touchdown in the second quarter by Mike Luck, Carolina regained the advantage for good on a one-yard run by Kelvin Bryant.

AMOS LAWRENCE rushed for 118 yards as Carolina rallied for 17 straight points to knock off Michigan, 17-15, in the 1979 Gator Bowl. (Dorow)

Jeff Hayes converted a fumbled punt snap by the Longhorns into a 31-yard field goal with 2:03 to play in the third quarter.

The defense, which allowed 224 yards and 11 Texas first downs in the opening half, dominated the second 30 minutes. UNC safety Steve Streater was named the defensive MVP as he had an interception, recovered a fumble and also boomed a 63-yard punt, longest in Bluebonnet Bowl history.

Carolina's 11-1 record matched the best season in UNC history. The Tar Heels finished ranked eighth by the Associated Press and ninth by UPI.

1981 GATOR BOWL DECEMBER 28, 1981 CAROLINA 31, ARKANSAS 27

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — Kelvin Bryant rushed for 148 yards and Ethan Horton added 144 to lead the Tar Heels to a 31-27 victory over Arkansas in the Gator Bowl.

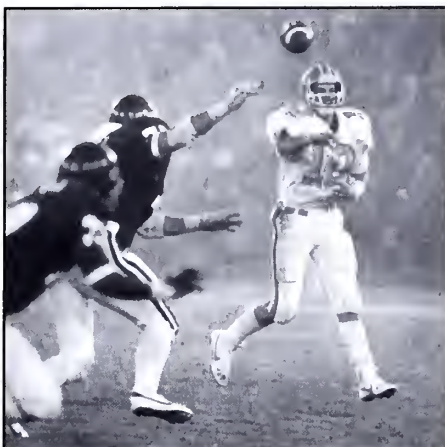

Bryant and Horton shared Most Valuable Player honors, but it was a key defensive stop by seldom-used freshman Ronnie Snipes which saved the night for Carolina.

After building a 31-10 lead midway through the fourth quarter, Carolina watched as Arkansas rallied for two touchdowns and had the ball again inside Tar Heel territory with less than a minute to play. But on third down, Snipes, who had played just two previous downs in the contest, sacked quarterback Brad Taylor for a 17-yard loss.

The game was deadlocked at 10-10 at the half, but Carolina came right out to open the third quarter and put together a 13-play, 85-yard drive which was capped by Horton's one-yard scoring run.

UNC quarterback Rod Elkins scored on a one-yard sneak on the Tar Heels' next drive. He was set up by a 21-yard run by Horton then churned out 42 yards on six plays and went in from four yards out to give the Heels a 31-10 lead with 7:29 to play in the game.

The Razorbacks scored with 5:05 to play, recovered an onside kick and scored again with 2:44 left. UNC punter Jeff Hayes took an intentional safety with 1:44 to play. That gave the ball back to Arkansas and set up Snipes' defensive gem.

Carolina closed the season with a 10-2 record and became the first team in Atlantic Coast Conference history to finish in the Top 10 of both wire services in successive years. Carolina finished the year rated eighth by United Press International and ninth by Associated Press.

1982 SUN BOWL

CAROLINA 26, TEXAS 10

EL PASO, TEXAS — North Carolina scored the final 23 points of the game in the final quarter and held seventh-ranked Texas to 48 total yards in the second half as the Tar Heels won their fourth consecutive bowl game, 26-10.

Ethan Horton was the offensive star of the game, rushing for 119 yards in the second half. He replaced injured starter Kelvin Bryant, who totaled 45 yards before leaving the game with an injured ankle.

Trailing 10-3 after three quarters, the Tar Heels vaulted into the lead via three consecutive field goals. Sophomore walk-on Rob Rogers, who had connected from 53 yards in the second quarter, hit a 47-yard field goal with 14:51 to play to narrow the Texas lead to 10-6. Brooks Barwick was then successful from 24 and 42 yards, the latter putting the Heels into the lead at 12-10 with 4:56 left.

Horton tacked on a three-yard touchdown with 2:17 remaining and Mike Wilcher fell on a loose ball in the end zone for another touchdown with 1:35 to play.

The defensive series of the game came five minutes into the third quarter with Texas leading 10-3 and with the ball, third-and-goal at the Carolina one. Two times, Texas fullback Ervin Davis tried to find the end zone, but twice he was hurled back. First, it was Wilcher who made the hit and then on fourth-and-goal, Greg Poole made the stop which changed the game.

The Christmas Day affair was played with intermittent snow flurries and a wind-chill reading that hovered around 12 degrees.

FLORIDA STATE 28, CAROLINA 3

ATLANTA — Florida State scored the first two times it had the ball and penalties and turnovers cost the Tar Heels dearly, as the Seminoles whipped Carolina 28-3 in a miserably cold and half-empty Peach Bowl.

Played before only 25,648 fans in low-20 degree temperatures, the Peach Bowl loss snapped the Tar Heels' consecutive bowl-game winning streak at four.

The Seminoles held the Tar Heels' running game to just 32 yards and three first downs. One thousand-yard rushers Ethan Horton and Tyrone Anthony were held to 30 and 27 yards, respectively.

Florida State quarterback Eric Thomas, making his first start, connected with Weegie Thompson on touchdown passes on the 'Noles first two series.

Midway through the second quarter, the Tar Heels fumbled away a punt at their own 16 and FSU converted via a 1993

Early in the fourth quarter, UNC quarterback Scott Stankavage hit tight end Arnold Franklin with a fourth down, 10-yard TD pass, but the play was called back due to a holding penalty. Carolina elected to kick for three and put up its only points of the day on Brooks Barwick's 36-yard field goal.

The loss was the fourth in the final five games of the season and ended a season in which Carolina had been ranked third in the nation.

1986 ALOHA BOWL

ARIZONA 30, CAROLINA 21

HONOLULU, HAWAII — The University of Arizona converted four North Carolina fumbles into 20 points and then held off a furious Tar Heel rally in the fourth quarter to win the 1986 Aloha Bowl, 30-21.

Carolina dug itself a 30-0 hole and did not put points on the board until freshman tailback Torin Dorn broke a 58-yard touchdown run with 2:19 left in the third quarter.

The Tar Heels fumbled five times in the first three periods and the Wildcats turned them into two touchdowns and two field goals.

Following Dorn's electrifying run, the Tar Heels quickly moved back within striking distance with two more touchdowns in the next seven minutes.

Mark Maye hit Randy Marriott with a six-yard touchdown pass after a Norris Davis interception and then followed a Davis punt block with a two-yard scoring run of his own to narrow the margin to 30-21 with 9:10 to play.

That, however, was as close as Carolina could challenge. A couple of dropped passes thwarted two more Carolina drives.

Dorn was the game's leading ground-gainer, rushing for 101 yards on only seven carries. Maye completed 17 of 34 passes for 171 yards; he hooked up with Eric Starr a game-high seven times for 53 yards. Carolina had 375 yards in total offense, compared to 342 for the Wildcats.

UNC'S BOWL HISTORY

PEACH BOWL

UNC 21, MISSISSIPPI STATE 17

ATLANTA — Bracey Walker blocked consecutive third-quarter punts, returning one of them for the tying touchdown, and forced a fourth quarter interception which Cliff Baskerville returned 44 yards for a touchdown to lead Carolina to a 21-17 win over Mississippi State in the 1993 Peach Bowl.

Walker's heroics capped a fierce second-half comeback in which the Tar Heels came from 14 points behind to score three times, although just once on an offensive possession.

Mississippi State took a two-touchdown lead in the first quarter and had two more scores in the second quarter called back due to holding penalties.

Mack Brown's squad regrouped at half-time, however, and cut the lead to 14-7 just six plays into the third quarter. Mike Thomas connected with Bucky Brooks for a 53-yard completion on the fourth play of the half and Natrone Means scored from a yard out two snaps later.

Means led the Tar Heel offense with 128 yards rushing and was named the game's Offensive MVP. Walker was the Defensive MVP.

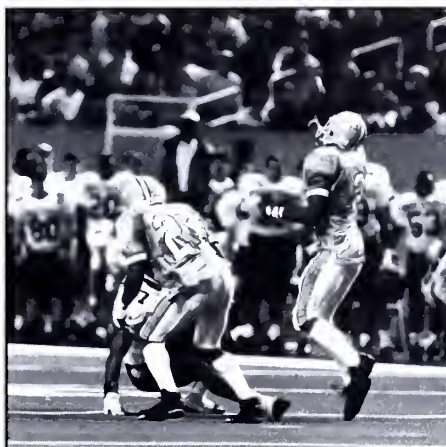

Later in the third quarter, Walker blocked a punt but Carolina's field goal try was unsuccessful. On the next series UNC again forced the Bulldogs to punt and this time Walker blocked the kick, picked up the loose ball and raced 24 yards untouched for the tying score.

Early in the final quarter Walker forced a midair loose ball with a jarring hit and Baskerville plucked the ball out of the air and sprinted 44 yards down the left sideline for what proved to be the winning touchdown.

Carolina held off two late MSU rallies to hang on to the lead. Linebacker Kerry Mock's interception stopped one threat at the UNC 17 with 2:32 to play and a fourth-down incompleteness with just six seconds left halted the Bulldogs at the Carolina 21-yard line.

1993 GATOR BOWL

ALABAMA 24, CAROLINA 10

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. — Quarterback Brian Burgdorf threw for two touchdowns and ran for another to lead 18th-ranked and defending national champion Alabama to a 24-10 victory over 11th-ranked Carolina in Outback Steakhouse Gator Bowl.

Burgdorf, selected as the Crimson Tide's Most Valuable Player in the game, directed a second-half surge in which he threw both of his scoring passes to break open a 10-10 halftime deadlock.

Wideout Corey Holliday, in his final game as a Tar Heel, was named MVP for Carolina after catching nine passes for 125 yards.

After a scoreless first period, Alabama took the lead on a 22-yard field goal by Michael Proctor. Carolina quarterback Jason Stanicek then led a seven-play, 80-yard touchdown drive in just 1:36 to take the lead, 7-3, on the ensuing possession. Stanicek hit Holliday with completions of 29 and 22 yards and executed one of his trademark option pitches to freshman tailback Leon Johnson for an 18-yard gain. William Henderson plunged in from a yard out for the lead.

The Crimson Tide went up 10-7 after three key plays by Burgdorf. He scrambled for 19 yards, hit Chad Key for 13 and scored from 33 yards out on a quarterback draw.

With 1:44 left before intermission, Stanicek led what would be the final Tar Heel scoring drive. He hit Holliday with passes of 12 and nine yards and Curtis Johnson ran twice for 20 yards before the drive stalled and Tripp Pignetti hit a 23-yard field goal to tie the game at 10.

The Alabama defense was the key to the game, holding UNC to a season-low 42 net yards rushing on 25 carries. Carolina could only muster 40 total yards and four first downs in the second half.

Meanwhile, Alabama regained the lead with a 12-play, 65 yard touchdown drive on the opening possession of the second half. The Tide also scored on another 12-play drive in the fourth quarter, this one for 66 yards.

1994 SUN BOWL DECEMBER 30, 1994 TEXAS 35, CAROLINA 31

EL PASO, TEXAS — Priest Holmes rushed for 161 yards and four touchdowns, including the game-winner with 1:17 to play, to lead Texas to a 35-31 win over the Tar Heels before a Sun Bowl record crowd of 50,612.

Holmes' four-touchdown performance wrestled away MVP honors from UNC quarterback Mike Thomas, who had the finest passing day of his career. Thomas completed 23 of 39 passes for 298 yards and two touchdowns. He set UNC bowl game records for completions and yards and tied the mark with two scoring tosses. He was 15 for 19 in the first half and completed 20 of 29 before a final desperation drive.

Wide receivers Marcus Wall and Octavus Barnes were two more standouts for the Tar Heels. Wall was selected the game's Most Valuable Special Teams Player. Wall gave the Tar Heels a 24-21 lead in the fourth quarter when he returned a punt 82 yards for a touchdown. Wall also had seven pass receptions for 82 yards, including an eighty-yard scoring catch late in the first half.

Barnes set UNC bowl game records for most catches and yards with nine receptions for 165 yards and one score. The nine receptions tied the mark for the eighth-most in school history in any game and the 165 yards equal the third-most in any Tar Heel contest. The 165 yards were also the most in Sun Bowl history.

Carolina took the opening kickoff and marched 78 yards in 10 plays. Thomas completed all four of his passes for 54 yards and Curtis Johnson capped the drive with an 11-yard run up the middle.

Texas went 72 yards in nine plays to tie the game at 7-7. Quarterback James Brown hit Curtis Jackson for 34 yards to highlight the drive and Holmes scored from the one to even the game.

Jason Stanicek replaced Thomas for the next two series and was the victim of a fierce Texas pass rush on his final collegiate play. On third-and-five from UNC's own 17, Stanicek dropped back to pass, but was blind-sided and fumbled the ball. Linebacker Norman Watkins picked the ball out of the air at the eight, ran to the one, was stripped by offensive guard Jerness Gethers and finally fell on the ball in the end zone for a touchdown.

Pignetti converted a 25-yard field goal to cut Texas' lead to 14-10 in the second quarter, but Holmes scored on a one-yard run with 6:05 to play in the half for a 21-10 Longhorn lead. Thomas then marched the Tar Heels 74 yards in nine plays in just 1:48. He floated a pass to the left corner of the end zone and Wall hauled it in for a score to slice the Texas lead to 21-17.

Five plays into the final quarter Wall caught a low, line drive punt at the UNC 18-yard line and raced 82 yards down the left sideline for the go-ahead score. One series later Thomas hit Barnes over the middle and the freshman receiver outran the Texas secondary to the end zone. That score gave the Tar Heels a 31-21 advantage with 9:13 to play.

Texas quickly countered with a 68-yard touchdown drive in only 2:38. Carolina was unable to pick up a first down on its next possession and punted to the Longhorns with 5:41 to play. The Tar Heels thought they converted a third down play as Barnes was being held as he attempted to run his pass route, but the officials waived off the penalty flag.

Texas took over at its own 32 and drove 68 yards in 10 plays for the winning score. A pass interference call at midfield cashed in one third down play and Holmes converted another with a six-yard run to the UNC 28. Holmes carried the last three plays on the drive for nine, two and five yards. The latter was around the right end and he dove into the endzone for the winning points.

Fourteen former University of North Carolina football players have been honored in special fashion as their names and jersey numbers have been placed on the facade of Kenan Stadium's upper deck. A 15th player, 1995 All-America defensive tackle Marcus Jones, will soon be added.

Athletic Director John Swofford announced in August 1994 that the University's Athletic Council had approved a request to pay tribute to some of the school's greatest players.

The men being honored are the five who have already had their jersey numbers retired, Carolina's consensus first-team All-Americans and any athlete who was named Atlantic Coast Conference Football Player of the Year. Consensus All-Americans are those players who made the majority of the first-team selections in any given year.

"We have been looking for a way to pay special tribute to those players who have been so instrumental in our football success over the years," said Swofford. "We felt this was a way to make people more aware of the great football tradition that we have here.

"Of course, it would be impossible to honor all of our outstanding players. So we had to have some sort of criteria to go by in coming up with a list of names. The retired jerseys gave us a start. After much discussion with a lot of people, we decided the highest honors any of our players have had were being named consensus All-Americans and chosen the best player in our league."

are honored in the stadium are:

GEORGE BARCLAY (99), a guard and linebacker from 1932 to 1934, whose number has been retired. He was the school's first football All-America and is a member of the state of North Carolina's Sports Hall of Fame. A guard and linebacker at 5-11, 185 pounds, Barclay was a standout for three seasons under coaches Chuck Collins and Carl Snively. A tremendous blocker and ferocious tackler, he was captain of the 1934 team that went 7-1-1. Barclay later served as UNC's head coach from 1953 until 1955.

ANDY BERSHAK (59), a great two-way end from 1935 to 1937, who was a consensus All-America in 1937. His number has also been retired. Bershak was a brilliant defender and his team's top receiver. He also was a starter on the basketball team and an honor student. Bershak was selected to the Order of the Golden Fleece and served as president of the Carolina Athletic Association.

BILL SUTHERLAND (46), a blocking back on the 1946 Sugar Bowl team, whose number has been retired. He died in an auto accident after his freshman year, stunning his teammates and Coach Carl Snively. Sutherland was named one of the Tar Heels' three captains for what would have been his sophomore season and Snively worked to ensure that his number would be retired.

CHARLIE JUSTICE (22), arguably the most famous and popular athlete in the history of the state. Justice was a consensus All-America and twice runnerup for the Heisman Trophy. During his four seasons, 1946-49, Carolina went to the Sugar Bowl twice and the Cotton Bowl once. A single-wing tailback, he still holds many of the school's total offense records. In addition, he was a sensational punter and a brilliant kick returner.

ART WEINER (50), an outstanding two-way end from 1946 to 1949, whose number has been retired. Weiner won All-America honors in 1948 and 1949 and was the nation's leading receiver as a senior. He teamed with the legendary Charlie Justice to form perhaps the most potent offensive duo in school history. Voted the top lineman in the Senior Bowl, Weiner is a member of the National Football Hall of Fame.

DANNY TALBOTT (10), a star quarterback from 1964 to 1966 and the 1965 ACC

ART WEINER is the third-leading receiver in Carolina history. Weiner is a recent inductee into the College Football Hall of Fame. Teammate Charlie Justice and UNC athletic director John Swofford were on hand when Weiner was introduced to the Kenan Stadium crowd in September 1992.

1965 ACC Player of the Year Danny Talbott and Carolina head coach Jim Hickey.

Player of the Year under Head Coach Jim Hickey.

Talbott led the league in total offense and scoring that season. He had 318 yards of total offense in one game against Georgia, at the time a school record.

DON MCCAULEY (23), the ACC Player of the Year as a junior and senior and a consensus All-America in 1970, his final season. McCauley was the first of Carolina's NCAA-record 23 backs to rush for 1,000 yards. He twice led the ACC in rushing with 1,092 yards in 1969 and 1,720 in 1970. That latter total at the time broke O.J. Simpson's single-season NCAA record. He also led the nation in all-purpose running as a senior and his 126 points that year still is the league record.

RON RUSNAK (62), an offensive guard on three bowl teams from 1970 to 1972, who won unanimous All-America honors in his senior season. At 6-2, 220 pounds, Rusnak wasn't as big as some linemen, but had great technique. He was the cornerstone of the offensive front on the 1972 team which went 11-1. Rusnak was a two-time All-Atlantic Coast Conference choice on teams which combined for a 20-4 record. He won the Jacobs Blocking Trophy in 1972 as the best blocker in the ACC.

KEN HUFF (68), a three-year starter at offensive guard from 1972 to 1974 and a consensus All-America as a senior. Huff was a dynamic blocker at 6-4 and 250 pounds. He was the key figure on the 1974 line which helped Carolina boast a pair of 1,000-yard backs and lead the ACC in total offense, rushing and scoring. Led by Huff, UNC accumulated 4,691 yards, at the time a school record. The Tar Heels were fifth nationally in total offense and ninth in scoring that season. Huff won the Jacobs Blocking Trophy as the best blocker in the Atlantic Coast Conference and was the third player selected overall in the 1974 NFL draft by the Baltimore Colts.

MIKE VOIGHT (44), a hard-running tailback from 1973 to 1976, who was the ACC Player of the Year as both a junior and senior. Voight is Carolina's all-time scoring leader with 254 points and ranks second in career rushing with 3,971 yards. He had three 1,000-yard seasons and twice was the top ground-gainer in the ACC. In 1976 he scored 110 points and ran for 1,407 yards, including 261 in his final game—a dramatic 39-38 shootout with Duke.

DEE HARDISON (71), a defensive tackle from 1974 to 1977 and a consensus All-America as a senior. Hardison was the star of one of Carolina's greatest defenses in his final year. He dominated the line of scrimmage all season long as the Tar Heels led the nation in scoring defense in 1977, giving up just 7.4 points a game. Carolina also topped the ACC in total, rushing and pass defense that year. No team would lead the league in all four again until Florida State in its 1993 national championship season.

LAWRENCETAYLOR (98), an outside linebacker from 1977 to 1980, who is regarded as the greatest player of all time at that position. Taylor was a consensus All-America and the ACC Player of the Year in 1980. He had a Carolina-record 16 quarterback sacks that season for losses totaling 127 yards. Sparked by his play, the Tar Heels went 11-1 in 1980 and won the ACC championship.

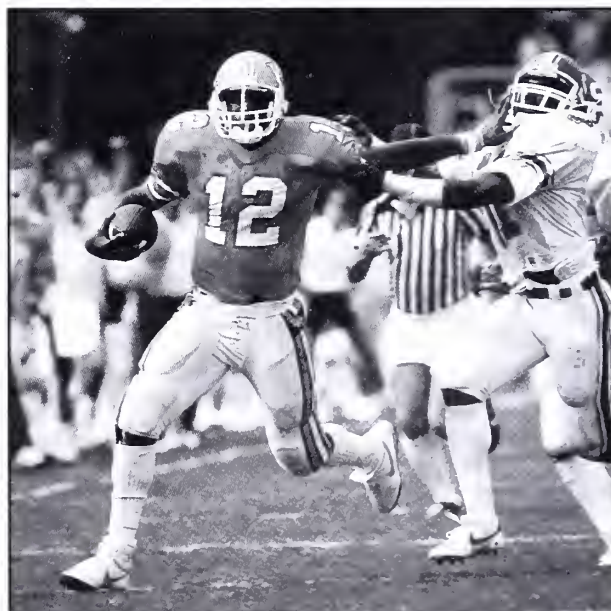

WILLIAM FULLER (95), a defensive lineman from 1980 to 1983, who was a consensus All-America as a senior. Also honored as a first-team All-America as a junior, he is one of only five Tar Heel players to be named first-team All-America twice. Fuller, who utilized his tremendous quickness to slice through offensive lines, had 22 tackles for losses in both 1981 and 1983. He is one of only three defensive linemen ever to make the All-ACC team three times.

MARCUS JONES sets the alltime Carolina sacks record with this stop against Duke in 1995. Jones was the Defensive Player of the Year in the ACC and a first-team All-America.

ETHAN HORTON (12), who was the Associated Press ACC Player of the Year as a senior. Horton rushed for 1,247 yards in 1984 after a 1,107-yard performance in 1983. He was named the game's co-MVP in Carolina's 1981 Gator Bowl win over Arkansas and was the MVP of a 1982 Sun Bowl victory over Texas.

MARCUS JONES (71), a defensive end/tackle from 1992-95, who was a consensus All-America and the ACC Defensive Player of the Year as a senior. Jones had 25 career quarterback sacks to break Lawrence Taylor's school record. A two-time first-team All-ACC selection, Jones led a Tar Heel defense which had the ACC's number-one rated total defense in 1995. He finished his career with 222 tackles, including 46 for losses. Jones helped Carolina to four straight bowl invitations and wins in the 1993 Peach and 1995 Carquest Bowls.

ETHAN HORTON was the MVP of the 1982 Sun Bowl and the co-MVP of the 1981 Gator Bowl.

LAWRENCE TAYLOR PROFILE

When Lawrence Taylor played outside linebacker at Carolina as a freshman, the Tar Heels did not even chart defensive statistics. Similarly, when he arrived with the New York Giants as the second pick overall in the 1981 draft, the quarterback sack was not yet an official National Football League statistic.

After a career as perhaps the finest defensive player in football history, Taylor forever has changed the game. His unique size, speed, strength, intelligence and tenacity as a pass-rusher revolutionized his position. The defensive end/outside linebacker is now one of the most crucial building blocks at the base of any defense.

In the fall of 1977, Taylor arrived at Carolina weighing only 200 pounds. He was considered too small and too slow to play linebacker and did not see much playing time as a freshman or sophomore. He burst into the Tar Heel defensive attack as a junior and by his senior campaign he had his weight up to a sleek but solid 245 pounds.

LAWRENCE TAYLOR established an NFL record by being named to 10 straight Pro Bowls. Taylor was a unanimous choice to the NFL's Team of the 1980s.

Taylor was a consensus All-America and the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1980. He finished with 55 solo tackles, six tackles for loss and an amazing 16 sacks. He forced three fumbles and recovered three more. But Taylor's domination of college football that season transcended statistics. He terrorized opponents and seemed to make huge plays every Saturday afternoon.

Taylor made perhaps the biggest play of Carolina's 1980 season in a win at Clemson late in the year. With the Tigers trailing UNC, 24-19, and facing a third consecutive third-and-goal play from the Tar Heel one-yard line, Taylor sacked Clemson quarterback Homer Jordan for a nine-yard loss with under 30 seconds remaining in the game. Carolina seized the victory and went on to an 11-1 record, matching the most wins in a season in school history.

TAR HEELS IN THE PROS

TAYLOR earned All-America honors and was the Atlantic Coast Conference Player of the Year in 1980. Taylor set a school record that fall with 16 quarterback sacks.

Tar Heel fans may also remember a few other plays from the 1980 season. In a win over N. C. State in Chapel Hill, Taylor jumped over one blocker, then grabbed another and threw him into Wolfpack quarterback Tol Avery. He also caused a fumble and then recovered it inside the Carolina 10-yard line in the fourth period of a 9-3 win at Texas Tech.

Taylor only got better in the professional ranks. As a rookie in 1981, he earned every defensive and rookie post-season honor possible. He established an NFL record by appearing in 10 consecutive Pro Bowls and was one of only three unanimous choices to the NFL's All-1980s team chosen by the NFL Hall of Fame selection committee.

In 1994 Taylor was named by the Football Writers Association of America as one of the best players of all the All-America selections over the last 25 years.

Taylor had the best year of his career in 1986, earning unanimous selection as the NFL's Most Valuable Player, the first defensive player to be so honored in a decade. He had a career-high 20.5 sacks, 105 total tackles, five passes defended and two forced fumbles in that regular season. Taylor finished as the all-time NFL sack leader with 142.

He had nine career regular-season interceptions, including one in 1982 which he returned 97 yards for a touchdown. He also had a 34-yard interception return for a touchdown against Joe Montana and the 49ers in the 1986 NFC Playoffs.

Taylor led the Giants to the Super Bowl on two occasions and both times the Giants came away winners. In 1986 the Giants defeated Denver to win New York's first title since 1963. Four years later, Taylor won his second ring as the Giants edged Buffalo.

"There may be some stronger linebackers," said Jim Williams, former strength coach of the New York Giants, in 1982. "There may be some quicker. There may even be some more intelligent, but there are none who combine his strength, speed and smarts. And no one knows how to stop the guy."

Simply put, few would argue that Lawrence Taylor is the greatest linebacker and perhaps the greatest defensive player in NFL history.

DAN BEARS PHOTOS

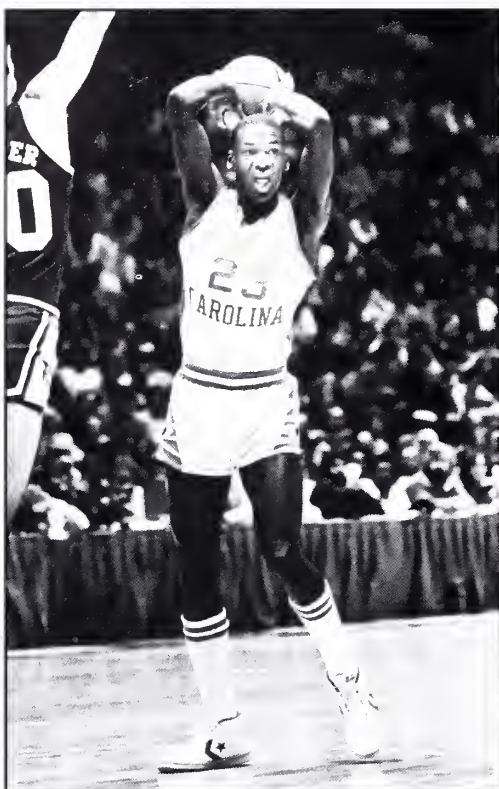

"We can sell the whole package here – a great year-round climate, an excellent academic environment, athletic tradition, but also a great social life. Let's face it, UNC has everything for an undergraduate. We've got the archetype for the great college town. If someone had to create a college town they'd call it Chapel Hill and construct it right after the town we have here. The campus is beautiful, the academic reputation is great and athletics top to bottom are tremendous."

T.J. JAWORSKY is the only three-time national champion in ACC wrestling history. He led the Tar Heels to a sixth place NCAA finish in 1994 and was named the 1995 National Wrestler of the Year and Most Outstanding Wrestler at the NCAA Tournament.

WALT WEISS helped lead Carolina to ACC baseball titles in 1983 and 1984 and was the 10th player selected in the 1985 professional draft.

ALLEN JOHNSON won the 1992 NCAA indoor 55-meter hurdles crown. In 1996, he set the American record in the 110-meter hurdles in winning the U.S. Olympic Trials. He won two world championships in 1995.

Carolina has won 12 of the last 18 women's swimming championships. UNC won six successive titles from 1981-86 and 1991-96.

The 1995-96 school year at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill was one filled with great accomplishment and outstanding achievement in the Department of Intercollegiate Athletics. Our goal of fielding nationally competitive teams populated by outstanding student-athletes was met once again.

NINE MORE ACC CHAMPIONSHIPS

Carolina's league crowns in 1995-96 came in women's soccer, field hockey, men's swimming and diving, women's swimming and diving, men's indoor track and field, women's indoor track and field, women's outdoor track and field, men's golf and men's lacrosse.

Over the past three years, Carolina has won 32 of the 69 ACC championships which have been awarded. Carolina has now won a minimum of seven ACC championships in each of the past nine school years and has led the ACC in conference championship production each of those nine years, tying with Clemson during the 1988-89 school year.

CAROLINA FINISHES SIXTH IN 1995-96 SEARS DIRECTORS' CUP

For the third straight year, North Carolina finished among the top 10 in the Sears Director's Cup Standings. Carolina placed sixth with 673.5 points. The Sears Directors' Cup, awarded by NACDA and Sears, is the only all-sport trophy earned by four-year NCAA Division I institutions.

North Carolina won the inaugural Sears Directors Cup in 1993-94 and finished second in the 1994-95 cup competition.

BASEBALL (33-25, 11-13 ACC)

- The Tar Heels recorded their 14th consecutive 30-win season and 23rd straight winning season in 1996. The Tar Heels have won at least 30 games in 18 of head coach Mike Roberts' 19 seasons at UNC.

- Roberts earned his 700th career victory on April 21 in the final victory of a three-game sweep at Georgia Tech.

*Atlantic Coast Conference Championship Team

THE DEAN E. SMITH CENTER

Named after current head coach Dean Smith, The Smith Center is the home of one of the nation's best men's basketball programs. The Tar Heels have won over 88 percent of their games in the 21,572-seat arena which was opened in 1986. Built entirely with private donations, The Smith Center measures 300,000 square feet and stands on seven and one-half acres on the University's South Campus. The facility has three levels including areas for administrative offices, a memorabilia room and a state-of-the-art communications studio. The Smith Center is also one of the premier concert facilities in the Southeast.

CARMICHAEL AUDITORIUM

Full of Tar Heel sports lore, Carmichael Auditorium, located among the tall pine trees at the heart of the campus, is home to the women's basketball, volleyball, wrestling, gymnastics and fencing teams. The 10,000-seat arena also houses the women's basketball office complex, as well as the offices of several other coaches and athletic administrators.

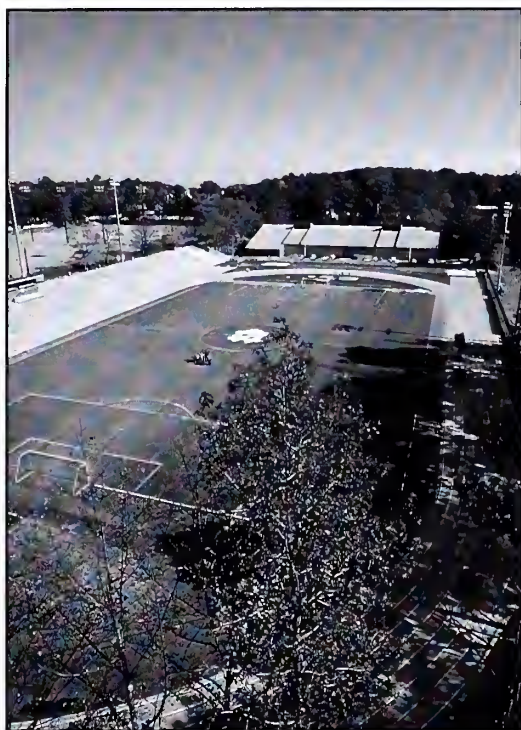

FINLEY GOLF COURSE COMPLEX

One of the Southeast's most attractive courses, A.E. Finley Golf Course is lined with pine, hickory, oak and maple trees. Built 48 years ago, the course covers 6,685 yards and has a par of 72. Finley has been the site of several collegiate tournaments over the past few years and is the main practice site for both the men's and women's golf teams. Located next to the golf course on Finley Road is the women's softball complex, which features covered dugouts, bleachers and seating capacity for approximately 2,000.

KENAN STADIUM

Considered one of the nation's most beautiful football venues, Kenan Stadium has been the Tar Heels' home for 69 years. Located near the center of campus, Kenan Stadium is nestled in a valley of tall pine trees. The stadium has been renovated and expanded on several occasions, but none of the construction has taken away from the beauty of Carolina's campus. The stadium is currently undergoing expansion that will increase capacity to 60,000. In the last five seasons, Carolina has a sparkling 26-6 record at Kenan.

BELK TRACK/FETZER FIELD

Recently renovated in 1990, Irwin Belk Track and Robert Fetzer Field play host to some of the country's most talented teams. Several Carolina teams use the facility, including men's and women's track, men's and women's soccer and men's and women's lacrosse. The fully lighted facility includes an electronic scoreboard, a 32-seat press box and room for 5,700 spectators.

CONE-KENFIELD TENNIS CENTER

Officially dedicated in 1992, the $2 million Cone-Kenfield Tennis Center features six indoor and 12 outdoor lighted, hard surface tennis courts, coaches offices and a fully-equipped weight room. The center is adjacent to Finley Golf Course on Highway 54 in Chapel Hill.

NAVY FIELD

Home of the 1996 defending national champion Carolina field hockey team, Navy Field is surfaced with a state-of-the-art E-layer turf that was installed in 1992. Located near the center of campus and adjacent to Boshamer Stadium and Fetzer Field, Navy Field has played host to four ACC championships, numerous NCAA games and the 1987 NCAA national finals.

BOSHAMER STADIUM

Located on Ridge Road in the heart of the Carolina campus, Cary C. Boshamer Stadium is the home of Carolina's baseball program. A gift from 1917 UNC graduate and textile industrialist Cary C. Boshamer, the Tar Heels have been playing at the current location since the late 1960s. Carolina has won nearly 75 percent of its games at Boshamer.

KOURY NATATORIUM

Adjacent to The Smith Center, Maurice J. Koury Natatorium is home to Carolina's nationally-ranked men's and women's swimming and diving teams. The facility, which opened in 1986, has played host to numerous top-flight swimming competitions. The pool features underwater speakers, observation booths and a 1,000-seat gallery.

TAR HEEL OFFENSE

- Over the last four years Carolina has averaged more than 400 yards of total offense per game

- The Tar Heels have scored 28.2 points per game the last five years and scored 40 points or more 11 times in just the last three seasons

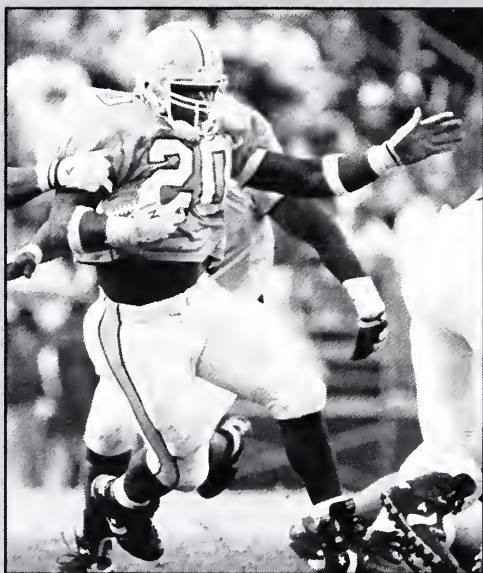

JASON STANICEK (1991-94) established alltime Carolina records for most yards total offense, most yards passing and most completions and equalled the school record for wins by a starting quarterback.

COREY HOLLIDAY (1989-93) set the Tar Heel record for career receptions and holds the ACC record for most consecutive games with at least one reception. He caught two passes in Super Bowl XXX for the Steelers.

LEON JOHNSON (active) is tied for second alltime at UNC in scoring, is second in receptions, tied for third in touchdowns and seventh in rushing yards.

NATRONE MEANS (1990-92) rushed for 1,000 yards and was first-team All-ACC twice. He was named to the Pro Bowl in just his second year in the NFL.

MIKE THOMAS (1991-95) became the first Tar Heel in history to throw for more than 2,000 yards in a season. Thomas threw for 2,436 yards and set school records for completions and total yards in 1995.

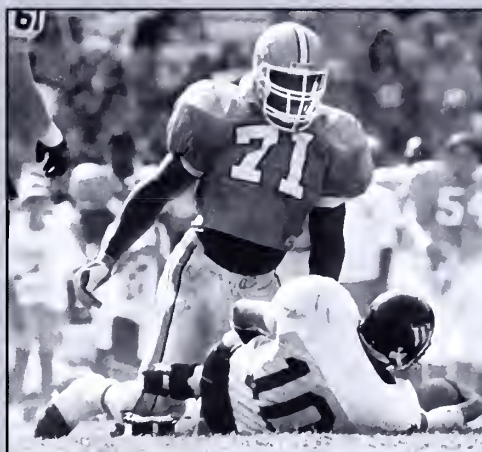

THOMAS SMITH (1989-92) came to Carolina as a walk-on, but earned a scholarship and was later drafted in the first round by the Buffalo Bills. Smith set a UNC record for pass breakups. He starts at cornerback for the Bills.

TAR HEEL DEFENSE

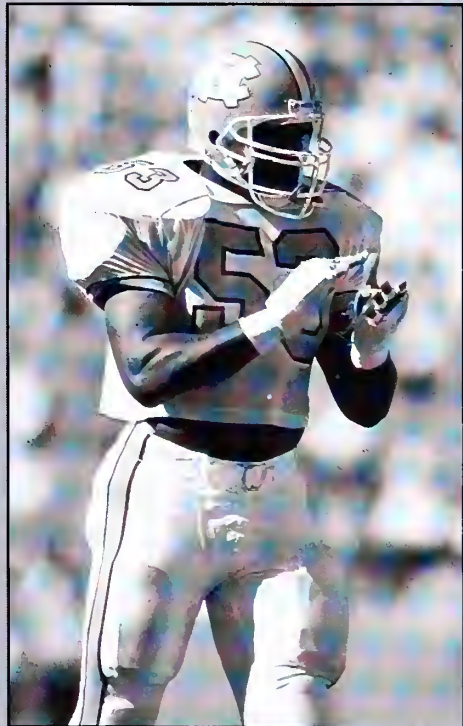

- Carolina was first in the ACC and sixth in the country last year in total defense
- Eight former Tar Heel linebackers played in the NFL last year, more than any other school

MARCUS JONES (1992-95) was the 1995 ACC Defensive Player of the Year and consensus All-America. He set UNC's alltime sack record, received the Patterson Medal and was a first-round draft pick by Tampa Bay.

BRIAN SIMMONS (active) is one-third of Carolina's No. 1 nationally-rated linebacking corp. Simmons was named the 1996 ACC Preseason Defensive Player of the Year by College Sports Magazine.

DWIGHT HOLLIER (1988-91) made more tackles than any Tar Heel in recorded history. A Patterson Medal winner as Carolina's top senior athlete, Hollier is a two-year starter for the Miami Dolphins.

BRACEY WALKER (1990-93) was named the National Special Teams Player of the Year in 1992 and earned first-team All-America honors at free safety in 1993. Walker starts at safety for the Cincinnati Bengals.

Football Center - North Elevation

FRANK H. KENAN FOOTBALL CENTER – NORTH SIDE

The new football fieldhouse being planned at the University of North Carolina will be named in honor of the late Frank Kenan, one of the school's greatest benefactors.

The University's Board of Trustees has approved naming the building the Frank Kenan Football Center. Kenan was a Durham resident and chief executive officer of Kenan Transport Company in Chapel Hill. He passed away at the age of 83 in June 1996.

"It's fitting that the new facility be named for Mr. Kenan," said Carolina Athletic Director John Swofford. "He's a former football letterman and his family has been so closely tied to everything we've done in Kenan Stadium. All of us associated with Carolina athletics are saddened by Mr. Kenan's death. He has been a long time and ardent supporter of athletics at the University and we are extremely grateful for his generosity of spirit as well as his financial generosity. I am glad we were able to honor him before his passing by naming the new Carolina Football Center for him. I consider Mr. Kenan to be one of the great men this state has produced."

A proposal to construct a new fieldhouse and enlarge Kenan Stadium was announced last November. Approximately 8,000 seats will be added to the facility, bringing its capacity to 60,000. The project represents the most extensive Kenan face-lift since construction of the current press box and the adding of 4,000 seats in 1987.

The primary seating addition would be in the west end zone, the student section. The project aims to enclose that bleacher section, tying the north and south concourses to either end of the lower deck. The new fieldhouse would be built directly behind and under those seats.

Current construction schedules as of June 15, 1996, project the end zone, the North Side Preferred Seating box and the lower level of the Frank H. Kenan Football Center (locker room and weight room) should be completed in time for the start of the 1997 football season.

"One thing we will be careful about is protecting the aesthetics and beauty of the stadium," said Swofford. "But, we've reached the point that we need a better football facility and more seats."

A 1994 game with North Carolina State was viewed by 54,300, breaking the Kenan attendance record of 54,100 set just one year earlier against Florida State. In each of those games, for the first time in school history, there was not enough seating for UNC students.

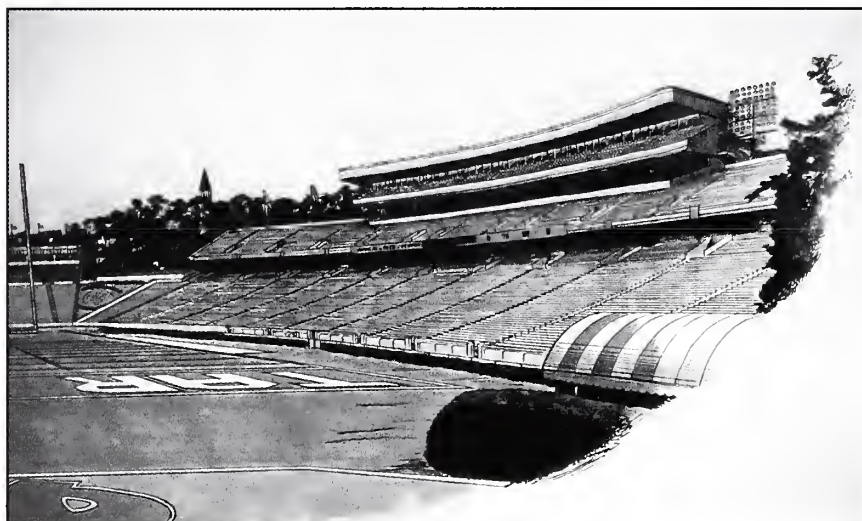

Kenan, a 1935 Carolina graduate, was the great-great-grandson of General James Kenan, a member of the University's founding board of trustees.

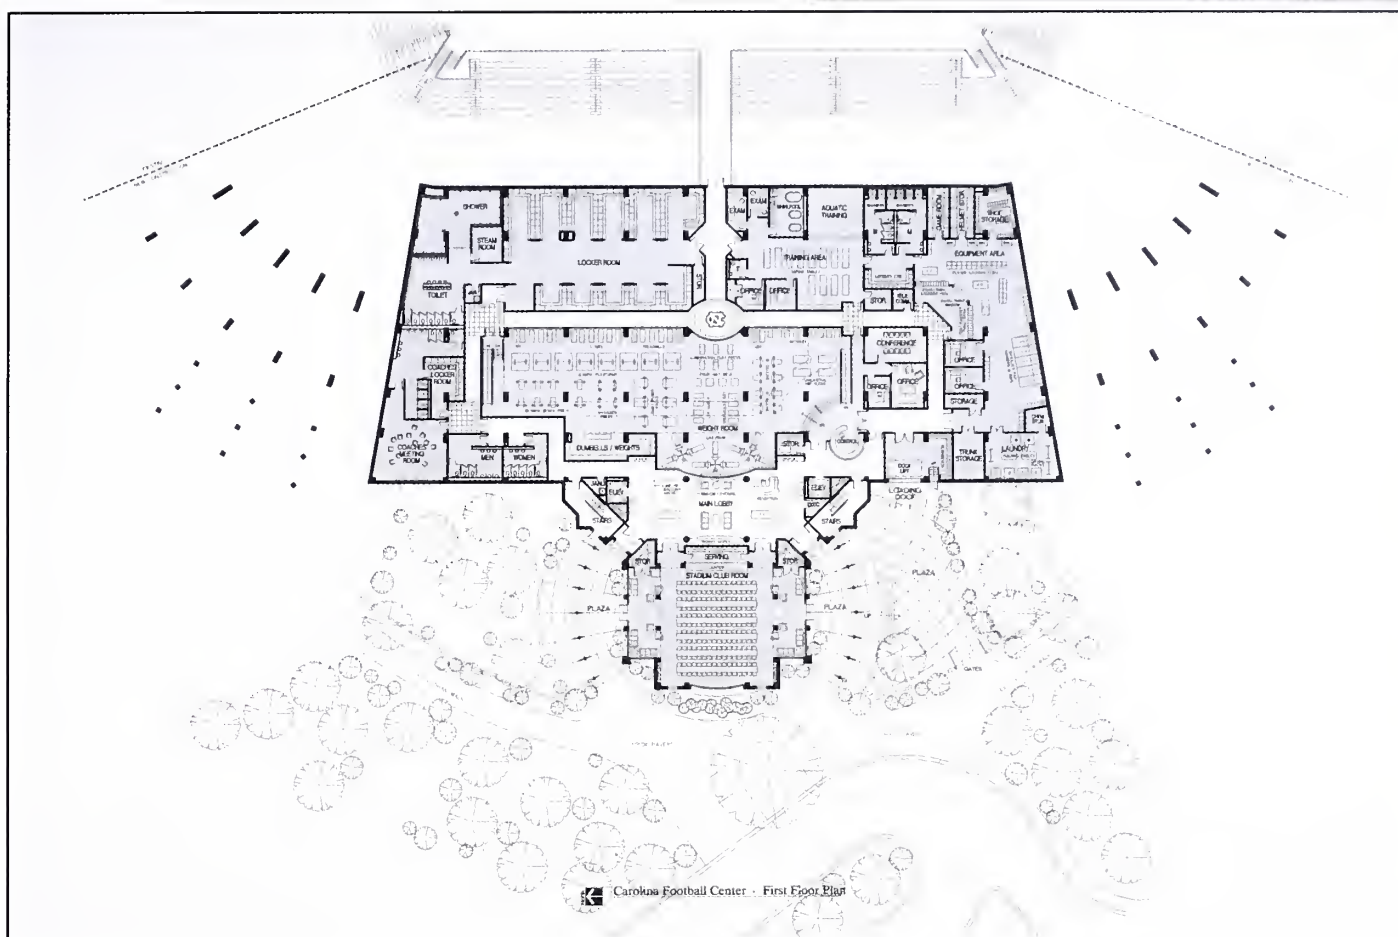

An Atlanta native, Kenan had a tremendous impact on the growth of the University. He served on many campus boards, including the Board of Visitors and the Educational Foundation Board of Directors.

In recent years the William R. Kenan Jr. Charitable Trust, of which he was a trustee, has donated more than $100 million to schools in the state's consolidated university system, including Carolina, N.C. State and the N.C. School of the Arts. Among other things, the trust funds 92 William R. Kenan Jr. Professorships at 56 colleges and universities nationwide.

He served on the steering committee of Carolina's Bicentennial Campaign, the University's largest fund-raising effort. Gifts by him, his family and the trust during the campaign exceeded $31 million. The largest portion of that was targeted for the business school. In 1991 the school was renamed the Kenan-Flagler Business School after a $10 million gift.

It was a member of his family, William Rand Kenan Jr., who made the contribution that led to the construction of Kenan Stadium itself. It was built as a memorial to his parents, William R. Kenan and Mary Hargrave Kenan. Original cost of the stadium and the accompanying fieldhouse was $303,000. Construction began in November 1926 and was completed the following August.

William Rand Kenan Jr. remained interested in the stadium throughout his lifetime. In the 1950s he gave a $1,000,000 contribution to construct a second deck on the stadium. After his death in 1965 the William R. Kenan Jr. Charitable Trust, which was established by his will, donated $1,000,000 to enlarge and modernize Kenan Fieldhouse. That work was done in 1976, but the rapid growth of the overall athletic program has now made another facility a necessity.

The new fieldhouse will house the football offices, football weight room, equipment room, training room and Carolina locker room. In addition, the current fieldhouse will be renovated with badly needed locker room space going to various Olympic sport teams.

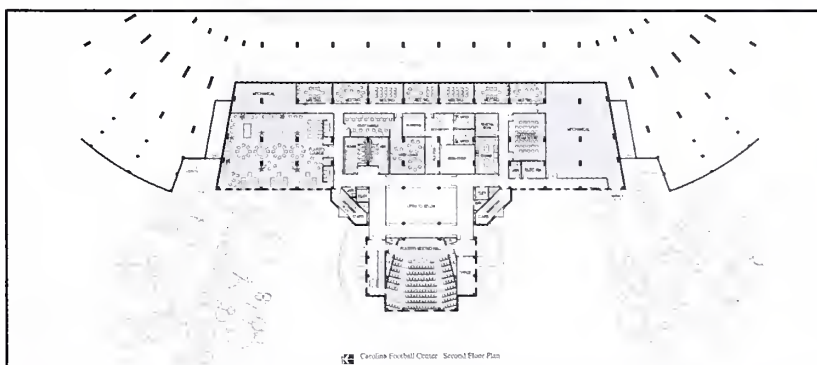

"Our space needs at the fieldhouse are very important to our total program," said Swofford. "There are gender-equity concerns that must be addressed. All of our athletes use these facilities. It is the best thing for us economically to tie it all together in this one project."

A new playing field was installed in the spring of 1995. It includes a new drainage system underneath the grass which drains through the turf, instead off the sides of the field as it had previously. This part of the project has already paid big dividends as the field was in excellent condition despite heavy rain last season.

The expansions and renovations will be financed through a combination of funds from revenue generated by ticket sales and concessions, contributions from the Educational Foundation and bonded indebtedness from the athletic department through the sale of revenue-generating bonds.

The Academic Support Program assists student-athletes in successfully reaching their academic goals. The program supports students in exploring their interests and abilities and in developing a broad academic experience. Students meet with staff on issues related to credit hours, course selection, major and career exploration, academic progress and academic eligibility.

Academic Counseling

A primary objective of this program is to provide advising for student-athletes. The counselor works closely with all key University academic personnel, facilitating communication and understanding of the academic and athletic needs of student-athletes. At Chapel Hill, student-athletes explore their interests and skills through a wide variety of courses, majors and activities.

Freshman Academic Success Program

The objective of FASP is to assist freshmen student-athletes in developing strong academic skills. The program is offered during the fall semester to selected freshmen student-athletes. The seminar series focuses on a variety of study strategies.

The Pro-Active Monitoring Program

The program targets student-athletes experiencing or expected to experience academic challenges. The program entails weekly meetings with a staff member, close monitoring and the development of study skills, such as time management and study strategies.

Tutoring Program

employs graduate students who tutor all major subjects offered by the University. Students meet regularly with tutors. Assisting students with comprehension of study matter, test-taking strategies and study techniques, the tutors form a strong component of the Academic Support Program.

Career Program

The program is designed to assist student-athletes with the career exploration and planning process. Students from each team meet with the career coordinator to discuss student's interests and skills, meeting potential employees, resume writing techniques, interviewing skills and other available campus resources. The program works closely with University Career Services in all its activities.

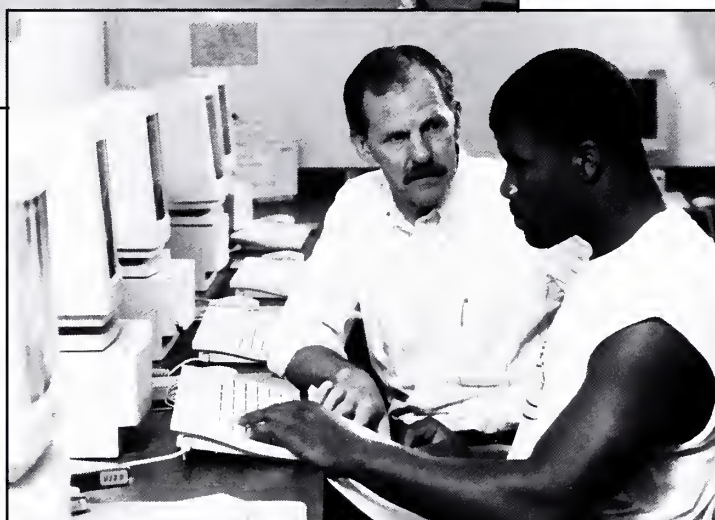

Carolina Athletes Coming Together (ACT)

ACT is a peer education and mentoring program. The mission of the program is to guide peers by orienting, supporting and increasing awareness of relevant issues pertaining to the college student-athlete. The program meets once a month for the entire academic year and is directed by an Academic Support Program counselor, a Health Education staff member and selected student-athletes.

Computer Lab

The Academic Support Program houses its own computer lab for student-athletes. The lab contains Macintosh and IBM PC-compatible computers and laser printers. The computers are equipped with standard applications, as well as CD-ROM programs assisting students with course material and research. The lab is staffed with monitors to help students with computer questions.

Tar Heel Sports Marketing, a division of The Village Companies of Chapel Hill, oversees the production and sales of all University of North Carolina football and basketball media entities, including television, radio and game program products.

Included under those entities is all advertising for the Tar Heel Sports Network, "Mack Brown Live!", "Carolina Blueline with Dean Smith", "The Inside Carolina Football Show with Mack Brown", "The Dean Smith Carolina Basketball Show", the UNC football and men's basketball programs and Carolina Court Magazine. Tar Heel Sports Marketing, a full-service marketing agency, also handles promotions for football and men's basketball.

Village has produced the Tar Heel Sports Network play-by-play for the past 20 years, began producing the Carolina game programs three years ago and began producing other properties in 1993.

Woody Durham and Mick Mixon again will team up to bring Carolina fans the live radio coverage of every UNC game on the Tar Heel Sports Network. Durham and head coach Mack Brown also will give fans an opportunity to phone in and talk to the head coach every Thursday evening during the football season on the "Mack Brown Live" call in show.

Durham also will visit with Coach Brown on "Inside Carolina Football", a daily five-minute program featuring conversations with the Tar Heels' head coach. Both of these shows are heard on stations throughout North Carolina and beyond.

"Inside Carolina Football Show with Mack Brown", hosted by Durham, is a half-hour television program seen each week on a network of six stations in North Carolina and on cable networks throughout much of the United States. The show features highlights of the previous game, interviews with current and former Tar Heel players and a preview of upcoming action.

Durham is beginning his 26th year as the play-by-play voice of the Tar Heels. A native of Mebane, N.C., Durham grew up in Albemarle, N.C., and began his broadcasting career at age 16 at WZKY Radio. He graduated from UNC in 1963 with a degree in Radio, Television and Motion Pictures.

In 1981, Durham was named vice president and executive sports director at Village. He has become a permanent fixture behind the microphone of Tar Heel football and basketball since taking over the play-by-play duties in September 1971. Durham has been named North Carolina Sports-caster of the Year nine times.

During graduation ceremonies in May, 1995, Durham was awarded a Distinguished Service Medal by the General Alumni Association.

Woody and his wife of 33 years, Jean, are parents to two sons, Wes and Taylor. Wes took over play-by-play duties for Georgia Tech in June, 1995 after handling the same duties for three years at Vanderbilt University. Taylor, an Elon College graduate, works for University Directories, another division of the Village Companies.

Mixon is in his eighth year as color analyst and production manager and his third as the local producer of the Mack Brown TV Show. A Chapel Hill native, Mixon graduated from UNC in 1980 with a degree in broadcast journalism.

Mixon came to the Tar Heel Sports Network in 1989 from Columbia, S.C., where he was sports director at WIS Radio. He also has served as play-by-play voice of the Maine Guides of the Class AAA International League and as sports director of WGSC Radio in Belmont, N.C. Mick also does play-by-play for UNC baseball.

MEDIA INFORMATION

CREDENTIALS: Requests for working press credentials at Carolina home games should be made in writing on company letterhead to Rick Brewer, Associate Athletic Director for Communications, in the Carolina Athletic Media Relations Office. The mailing address is P.O. Box 2126, Chapel Hill, N.C. 27515. Requests may be sent via fax, but all requests, mailed or faxed, should be sent so that they reach the Media Relations Office at least one week prior to the game.

Because of the demand for credentials, media agencies which cover Carolina and the visiting school on a regular basis will receive top priority. Other credentials will be issued on the basis of circulation and the availability of space. Credentials will be mailed if at all possible. Otherwise, they may be picked up before 5 p.m. on Friday at the Media Relations Office from administrative assistant Lee Snyder. Those credentials not picked up by 5 p.m. on Friday will be left for Saturday pickup at Kenan Stadium Will Call which is at Gate Six (6), directly behind the press box. Will Call opens two hours prior to kickoff.

Requests are screened with care to insure a working press box. Children, spouses, dates and pets are not allowed in compliance with the working code of the Football Writers Association of America. There is no cheering in the press box.

PRESS BOX SERVICES: Programs, flip cards, statistics and notes will be provided before each game. A play-by-play will be distributed at the conclusion of each quarter. Halftime statistics will also be available. Complete team and individual statistics, a scoring summary and coaches' quotes will be provided after the game. Press box announcer Dave Lohse will announce abbreviated statistical information after the first and third quarters.

A meal will be served before each game. Soft drinks, coffee and snacks will be available throughout the game.

SIDELINE POLICY: Photographers will not be allowed on the sidelines without an armband. Armbands can be picked up in the press box 90 minutes prior to each game. Each photographer must pick up his or her own armband. Under NCAA and Atlantic Coast Conference guidelines, photographers are not allowed between the 25-yard lines and must remain outside the restraining lines surrounding the field. Credential holders not working will be asked to leave the sidelines. Assistant Director of Media Relations Kevin Best will be on the field to handle any questions and serve as field liaison to the press box officials.

We ask for the safety of the players and officials that you please do not leave equipment unattended on the sidelines. If you are shooting with a tripod, please keep a safe distance from the playing field.

GAMEDAY PARKING: Press parking at Kenan Stadium is available on an extremely limited basis. Requests for parking passes should be made well in advance to Rick Brewer. Parking passes tend to run out quickly and the Media Relations Office has parking available to it in just one area.

The parking lot is located on the corner of Gravelly Drive and Manning Drive, a five-minute walk from the press box.

POSTGAME INTERVIEWS: Following a very brief cooling off period, requested UNC players will head directly to the weight room adjacent to the Carolina locker room for a 20-25 minute interview period. The Tar Heel locker room is closed.

The weight room is directly across from the locker room on the ground floor of the Development Center. (On ground level on the side of the field opposite from the press box). Student assistants from the Media Relations Office will walk through the press box and take player requests from the media midway through the fourth quarter.

Coach Mack Brown will conduct a short interview with Woody Durham for the Tar Heel Sports Network's live broadcast while the players are in the interview area. When the players have finished their 20-25 minute interview period Coach Brown will meet with the media in the second-floor auditorium of the Student-Athlete Development Center directly above the weight room.

Away game procedures will vary, depending on available facilities.

PHONES: The Department of Athletics furnishes a number of telephones along press row for writers to transmit stories. There is a bank of phones stationed along press row. All long distance calls must be by credit card, collect or billed to a third number.

Anyone desiring a private phone should contact Southern Bell at least two weeks prior to the game. If you are calling from within the 919 area code dial 780-2800. However, if you are calling from outside the 919 area code, then you must dial 1-800-919-2800.

Note: the on-campus building number for the press box at Kenan Stadium, for which you will be asked, is #519. Rick Brewer should be listed as the stadium contact for placing the phone.

The Carolina Media Relations Office has one fax machine which will be available for filing. Writers should make a representative of the UNC Media Relations Office aware of their fax needs prior to the end of the game.

INTERVIEWS WITH COACH BROWN: Mack Brown will be available to the media at a press conference at 10 a.m. each Monday preceding a game during the football season. Please note that, different from previous seasons, Coach Brown will meet with all members of the media at one time. Print, television and radio interviews will be conducted concurrently inside the Rams Room, located above the visitors' dressing room.

A teleconference-style phone line will also be available at this time. If you can not be in Chapel Hill during Coach Brown's press conference, you can listen and ask questions by using this service. Contact Steve Kirschner, Director of Media Relations for Football and Men's Basketball, for the phone number and directions.

Interviews with Brown at other times during the week can be set up by contacting Becky Medford, Coach Brown's secretary in the football office. If Coach Brown is unavailable at that time, he will make every effort to return the call as soon as possible. Staff meetings are conducted during the morning. The football office number is (919) 966-2575.

Coach Brown is also available on the weekly ACC Teleconference at 11:30 a.m. on Wednesdays. Contact Brian Morrison at the ACC or Kirschner for the phone number.

PLAYER INTERVIEWS: All player interviews should be arranged through Steve Kirschner or Kevin Best in the Media Relations Office. Players have been instructed to conduct no interviews unless they have been set up in this manner. The interviews will generally be after the player's classes and before practice or immediately after practice. The players have indicated that the post-practice time is preferred.

Each Wednesday several players will be made available to the media from 1-1:30 p.m. at the Rams Room. Specific requests for players should be made to Kirschner by Monday afternoon so players may be notified.

The majority of in-person player interviews will be conducted in the lobby of the football office at Kenan Fieldhouse. Telephone interviews are conducted at the player's convenience. Usually they are handled just before or immediately after practice.

Requests for telephone interviews will be handled by players returning calls to the media. No home numbers for players will be given out and players have been told not to accept calls from anyone asking football-related questions. Interviews are not allowed on the day preceding a game.

Please do not show up and wait for players unannounced at either the dining hall, the weight room, the locker room, players' housing or the football office. The players have been instructed to politely decline the request and refer the person to the Media Relations Office.

Players will not be available for live call-in radio shows.

PRACTICE COVERAGE: Admission to practice is authorized by the head football coach. Passes may be obtained by contacting the Media Relations Office a day in advance. Gate attendants at the practice site are instructed not to allow any access to the practice facility if a member of the Media Relations staff is not present, so be sure to call ahead of time.

Players are not available for interviews on the practice field, whether they are competing or not. Coach Brown will be available following the conclusion of each session.

Once the team goes into pads in the fall, photographers will be allowed to shoot only warm-ups, stretching drills and the first two periods of work (10 minutes). Team meetings after practice are private.

Once the school year starts, practice generally begins with stretching exercises at 3:45 p.m. and the first period of drills at approximately 4 p.m. The team, in general, does only light running and stretching on Sunday and does not practice on Monday, except after an open date.

ATHLETIC MEDIA RELATIONS OFFICE: The University of North Carolina Athletic Media Relations Office is located on the main level of the Dean E. Smith Center, less than one mile away from Kenan Stadium. Parking is available with a visitor's pass in the lot behind Koury Natatorium and can be accessed from Skipper Bowles Drive. Enter the building via the sidewalk which runs between the Smith Center and the Natatorium. The office is on Level 2 directly across the hallway from the men's basketball office.

FAXBACK SERVICE: The Atlantic Coast Conference and its member institutions provide statistics, schedules, notes and releases on a fax-on-demand service. Each school places full post-game boxscores and play-by-play on the service and updates its football release by no later than 5 p.m. Monday afternoon. This is a media information service. Phone numbers are not to be distributed to the general public. If you wish to use this service, please call the Media Relations Office or the ACC Service Bureau for further information.

File numbers for Carolina information is as follows: Monday morning release, including notes from the previous game, a preview of the upcoming contest, injury updates and statistics (file #61050, available Monday by 12 noon); pregame notes (file #61051, available Friday afternoon by 1 p.m.); team statistics (file #61052, available Sunday evening by 9 p.m.); complete box scores with team and individual statistics, scoring summary, play-by-play and postgame coaches' quotes (file #61053, available as soon as possible following the completion of the game); 1996 schedule and rosters (file #61054, available at any time)

SATELLITE FEED AND TELECONFERENCE: A highlight clip of each Atlantic Coast Conference school is available weekly via satellite transmission. Coordinates and time of the transmission can be obtained by contacting the ACC Service Bureau in Greensboro (910) 854-8787.

All of the league's head coaches are also available each week to the media on a teleconference. Starting time is 11 a.m. every Wednesday. The teleconference feed is of broadcast quality. The phone number for the media to use in becoming a part of this teleconference can be obtained through the Carolina Media Relations Office or the ACC Service Bureau.

DIRECTIONS TO PRESS PARKING

From Eastern North Carolina and/or Raleigh/Durham International Airport: Take I-40 West to Chapel Hill. Stay in the left or middle lane because the road about five miles past the airport and the right lane heads towards Durham. Stay to the left and follow I-40 West to Exit 273-B. Signs marking this exit are marked in any of the following ways: UNC-Chapel Hill/Carrboro, Kenan Stadium - Dean E. Smith Center, 54 West. Exit 273-B is a right-hand exit. Stay straight on 54 West for approximately three miles. Exit right onto Route 15-501 South/54 West and follow for one mile. Turn right at the traffic light onto Manning Drive. Follow up the hill, stay straight through the intersection (Smith Center will be down the hill on your left) and turn right at the next traffic light. That is the intersection of Manning Drive and Gravelly Drive. An attendant will check for your pass and allow you to turn into the lot.

From North of Chapel Hill: Take I-85 South to Durham. I-85 will split at exit 174. The right-hand lane takes you to I-40 and Greensboro. Stay in the left-hand lane and take exit 174 (a left-hand exit) for 15-501 South. Stay on 15-501 South all the way to Chapel Hill. Stay to the left on 15-501 Bypass until you turn right onto Manning Drive. See above.

From Charlotte and West of Chapel Hill: Take I-85 North to I-40 East. 85 and 40 split in Hillsborough, just west of Chapel Hill. Take I-40 to exit 270 and exit onto Route 15-501 South. Stay on 15-501 South all the way to Chapel Hill. Stay to the left on 15-501 Bypass until you turn right onto Manning Drive. See above.

From South of Chapel Hill: Take I-77 North to I-85 and then follow the same directions as from Charlotte. Or take I-95 North to I-40 West. 95 and 40 converge just north of Benson, N.C. Then take I-40 all the way to Chapel Hill and follow the directions from the airport. See above.

* denotes players who played at Carolina for Mack Brown

According to a July 1996 survey by College Sports magazine, the University of North Carolina ranked No. 1 in the nation last year in former athletes on professional teams among the four major team sports – football, men's basketball, baseball and ice hockey. Carolina was first in men's basketball with 14, tied for fourth in football with 34 and tied for ninth in baseball with eight. Of course, the only hockey team at Carolina is the NCAA champion field hockey team.
